Donahey, Burke Lead in Ohio And Nebraska

Gov. Bryan Trails Roosevelt Partisan

Representative Is Out in Front in Cornhusker State Race.

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 14 (AP).—Returns from 13 of 2,028 Nebraska precincts for Democratic Senatorial nomination give Bryan 318; Reed, 108; Burke, 746; Bollen, 64; Monahan, 33.

Returns from 10 of 2,028 Nebraska precincts for Republican Senatorial nomination give Smith 199; Renne, 18; Simmons, 396; Wherry, 266; Green, 56.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 14 (AP).—Reports from 454 precincts out of 8,522 in the Democratic contest for United States Senator gave Donahey, 12,441; West, 8,087; White, 8,180.

Reports from 416 precincts in the Republican Senatorial contest gave Coxey, 1,232; Fess, 11,196; Lamb, 925; Vorys, 1,928; Wanamaker, 2,898.

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Nebraska was a political focal point of the Nation tonight. Election returns carrying the fate of the New Deal in this purely agricultural State were watched eagerly by Administration friends and foes.

Overshadowing all others was the race between Gov. Charles W. Bryan and Representative Edward R. Burke for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate.

Both loudly shouted support of President Roosevelt and the New Deal. Burke shouted loudest. Bryan's allegiance was qualified with "reservations."

Voting was heavy. Five Representatives, a slate of State officers headed by the Governor and hundreds of county officers were decided upon.

Bryan Opposed AAA.

Bryan, three times Governor, has carried on the traditions of Bryanism founded by his brother, the Great Commoner. He heads a powerful faction in Nebraska Democracy. Among his "reservations" to the New Deal are opposition to the AAA and a belief that the soldiers'

Byrd Too Weak To Be Moved

But Aids Report He Is Regaining Strength Rapidly.

Little America, Antarctica, Aug. 14 (via Mackay Radio) (U.P.).—Anxiety for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was relieved today when Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, second in command of the South Polar Expedition, reported by radio from the advance weather base that the leader was "resting comfortably" and gives every evidence of being able to make rapid recovery.

The message had been awaited anxiously, first word two days ago reporting Byrd weak and thin from nearly five months of isolation at his tiny shack, buried beneath the snows of the Ross ice barrier, 123 miles south of Little America.

Dr. Poulter, who led the tractor relief party to the barrier to relieve Byrd of his weather observations there, added it would be some time, however, before they would care to expose the admiral to the hazards of a tractor journey back to the headquarters here.

He did not say how long it would be before they could start.

"We shall stay here until he feels able to travel," Dr. Poulter reported. "Our presence here and the fact that we have relieved him of the physical details incidental to his solitary confinement have already lifted a great weight off his shoulders. He is remarkably cheerful."

Dr. Poulter reported he was eager to remain, anyway, and already has begun converting the advance base into a meteorological observatory.

Jackson Quits, Putting Blame On Radcliffe

Baltimore, Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, today formally withdrew his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

He issued a lengthy statement outlining his reasons for abandoning the race and pointing to the fact that the brief gubernatorial candidacy of George H. Radcliffe had wrecked the Jackson campaign plans.

The mayor failed, however, to urge his erstwhile backers to support Gov. Ritchie, who is seeking reelection to a fifth term.

Jackson's withdrawal had been rumored for about a month, and he ceased active campaigning some time ago.

"At the time I announced my candidacy it seemed to be certain that the Democratic party in the State was ready to name new candidates for the offices held for so long a period by the same individuals, and I hoped to have the opportunity to install in the State government those methods and practices in public administration which have been successful in the management of the

Rich Brewer Is Kidnaped In Canada

$150,000 Is Demanded in First Dominion Abduction.

Brother Goes on Secret Trip to Negotiate With Captors.

London, Ontario, Aug. 14 (AP).—Kidnapers—a new type of criminal in Canada—today seized John S. Labatt, well-to-do London brewer, and demanded ransom reported to be $150,000 for his release.

A few hours after Labatt disappeared in the course of a motor trip from Sarnia to London, his brother, Hugh Labatt, went to Toronto, where he had been instructed in a note to obtain the ransom money and wait for instructions.

Provincial police at Toronto and at Sarnia began an investigation of the case, which they declared was the first kidnaping in Canadian criminal records.

The family had been warned in a note not to notify the police and to get the ransom within 24 hours under threat of death or injury to Labatt.

$150,000 Demanded.

Police declined to say whether details of the crime had been communicated to them, but at the provincial police headquarters at Toronto it was indicated that nothing was known of the journey undertaken by Hugh Labatt.

It was revealed here that a note left at the Labatt residence was signed "Three-Fingered Abe" and that the brother was told the get $150,000 in Toronto and await further word.

John Labatt, who is about 55 and a prominent figure in business, social and sports circles, started at 9:30 a. m. today from Sarnia for London.

His automobile was found later outside St. Joseph's Hospital here, its location having been revealed by the ransom note, which was delivered to the Labatt residence.

Children Guarded.

As news of the kidnaping became public in mid-afternoon a strong guard of provincial policemen and volunteers was thrown around the summer home of the brewer at Sarnia Beach.

The kidnaped man's three children—John, jr., 6; Mary, 4, and Arthur, not yet a year old—were reported to be in the home, and it was indicated that the guard was for their protection.

The family was stated to have taken precautions against kidnaping of the children as far back as last summer.

It was learned also that threats against the Labatt children were

Brooklyn Police Hold 22 in Textile Strike

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—Police arrested 22 textile strike pickets and sympathizers, including nine women, on disorderly conduct charges tonight and dispersed a crowd which they estimated at 800 persons, demonstrating before the plant of the Commodore Knit Mills.

It took 50 patrolmen an hour to clear the streets. Two unidentified demonstrators were slightly injured.

Second "Morals" Trial Is Put Off Until Oct. 1

Los Angeles, Aug. 14 (AP).—Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron today continued until October 1 the second trial of Dave Allen and Gloria Marsh, defendants in the "Hollywood morals" trial. The first trial of Allen and Miss Marsh, film extra, ended in a jury disagreement.

Allen and Miss Marsh are accused of participating in an immoral party last April 26 at the apartment of June de Long, another film extra, who appeared as the State's star witness in the first trial.

Court Disqualifies Judges Who Get Fees in Convictions

A judge who gets no pay unless the defendant is convicted is not qualified to give judgment, according to an opinion filed yesterday in the circuit court at Marlboro, Md.

In a test case sponsored by the District division of the American Automobile Association, Judges W. Mitchell Digges and Joseph C. Mattingly held that Judge Robert E. Joyce, police justice of Mount Rainier, was not competent to hear cases involving traffic violations.

The case, chosen to test the legality of the "fee-splitting" system of arrests and trials, was that of Mrs. Emily G. Smith, 1400 block Meridian place, Washington, who was arrested for passing a red light.

The decision was hailed as "the greatest motoring victory of the decade" by Ernest N. Smith, executive vice president of the A. A. A. He said the District division of the A. A. A. would fight all cases involving fee-splitting.

Attorneys of the A. A. A. are now investigating the possibility of recovery of fines already paid by Washington motorists in Judge Joyce's court.

In its opinion, the court said:

"The evidence clearly establishes, and it is conceded by the parties, that at the time of the arrest and proposed trial of Emily G. Smith the law and ordinances governing compensation for the police justice were such as provided compensation only when convictions followed the arrest and trial.

"The bare statement of the proposition arouses in the mind of the average man a definite sense of unfairness.

"It may be possible to provide police justices of such strong character as to be endowed with almost superhuman qualities and able to deny and reject all improper influences brought about by such a situation.

"But whether there is such a police justice or not, in our opinion can make no difference. The policy of the law in removing such temptation from the trial judge is sound."

Mrs. Smith was represented by State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Charles C. Collins of the A. A. A. The court will return her $7 deposited as collateral.

Farley Halts Fight Against Sen. Copeland

Underwood & Underwood.

SENATOR COPELAND.

By Raymond Clapper.

The Administration's covert hostility to the renomination of Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, has subsided and indications are that he will go into the fall election campaign with the blessing, probably unenthusiastic, of Postmaster General James A. Farley.

No public statement has come from the chairman of the Democratic National committee on the subject, but some of his friends said yesterday they believed Senator Copeland would be unopposed by the Administration in the New York State convention a few weeks hence.

Last winter he was in ill favor with Postmaster General Farley, who made little effort to conceal his hope that some upstanding friend of the Administration would snatch the doctor out of the com-

Cost of Food Soaring, Peak Not in Sight

Entire Nation Beginning to Feel Effects of Drought in West.

With food prices soaring nationally, and a sharp increase noted locally, Mrs. Washington Housewife and the other ladies of the land have to take more money to market than they did a month ago, a Washington Post survey revealed yesterday.

The peak is still some distance away, the survey indicated.

Whether the rise locally in food prices is due to the drought, to fear of the drought, or to other causes, is not certain. One thing is definite—that today nearly all foods cost from 1 to 6 cents more in Washington than 30 days ago.

Thrifty housewives throughout the Nation have begun to stock their larders, buying against further price increases. The drought made vast inroads on the National food supplies, and grocers, as well as housewives, have begun to buy before the expected price boosts occur.

No Hoarding Reported.

No actual hoarding has been reported in major cities.

Washington food prices have moved upward in small jumps during the past month, with a number of increases reported occurring about two weeks ago.

Here are the local prices, checked at a corner grocery store yesterday. The July figure is given first:

Tub butter, 29 cents per pound, now 32; package butter, 31 cents per pound, now 34; potatoes, ten pounds, 15 cents, now ten pounds, 17; A-grade eggs, 31 cents per dozen, now 35; sugar, ten pounds, 49 cents, now 55; lard, 9½ cents per pound, now 12; flour, 51 cents for 12-pound bag, now 55. Milk, cheese and bread have remained at practically the same level for the last 30 days.

Meats are up from 1 to 3 cents

Nine Jurors Selected In Insurance Slaying

Cooperstown, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—Nine of the jurors to hear the State's contention that Mrs. Eva Coo, middle-aged road house operator, insured her crippled handyman for $12,900 and killed him for the money, were selected today before a panel of 46 veniremen was exhausted.

A new panel of 100 will appear tomorrow. Three more regular jurors and two alternates will be agreed upon before District Attorney Donald Grant outlines his case.

Mellon Pays $1,500,000 For Raphael Painting

Paris, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The Journal des Debats said today that Andrew Mellon reportedly purchased the famous Raphael painting "Madonna of the House of Alba" from Soviet Russia for $1,500,000.

The Riga, Latvia, correspondent of the newspaper reported sale of the painting to the former American Secretary of the Treasury and Pittsburgh multimillionaire.

The picture was one of four Raphaels in the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad.

U.S. Agencies List 7 Million Still Jobless

Perkins Issues Report on Applicants as of June 30.

Total Is Exclusive of Those Who Sought No Federal Aid.

For the first time in this Administration, the curtain was pulled back officially on the unemployment situation yesterday and Secretary of Labor Perkins said that on June 30 her records showed 7,066,277 men and women had applications pending with the United States Employment Service for work of any kind.

She hastened to add that this did not give a complete picture of the unemployment situation as "all of the unemployed obviously had not registered with the unemployment service."

Temporary work was found for 3,951,563 persons during the last fiscal year, a number of whom later returned to the waiting list of the jobless. In all, the United States Employment Service received applications for work from 12,634,974 persons during the year ended June 30.

Other Estimates Differ.

Her figures threw official light on the controversy which has been going on between the United States Chamber of Commerce and the American Federation of Labor as to the extent of unemployment. The American Federation of Labor estimated the unemployed at 10,363,000; the chamber said this was exaggerated by more than 3,000,000.

Private industry, according to the report of Miss Perkins, furnished only 1,305,873 jobs to be filled by the Government employment service.

The figures represented the first Government unemployment report since 1930, when the Census Bureau sent enumerators into 18 key cities to strike a general average of jobless conditions throughout the country. From statistics gathered at that time Secretary of Commerce Lamont estimated a total of 5,000,000 persons were searching for work.

Figures for Groups.

Breaking down the figures, Mrs. Perkins said:

That of the 12,000,000 applications, a total of 3,000,000 were agricultural workers, 2,500,000 were skilled construction men, 2,519,000 came from the manufacturing field, and 842,943 from commercial and professional groups.

That 6,000,000 of those placed in jobs were assigned to some form of Government projects, such as CWA, PWA and public roads outfits.

"Of course we have no accurate or official count on all the unemployment in the country, Miss Perkins said. "Even these Employment Service figures are not dependable for such an estimate, as they do not represent all the unemployed and on the other hand many of those whose names are on file may have since found jobs."

Miss Perkins said the statistics, to be compiled in final form within a month, would be invaluable to the committee on social security now engaged in studying job insurance along with other safeguards against depressions.

"Skilled workers in this country furnish one of the greatest natural resources," she said. "We are about to enter another pioneering stage in which new trades will be developed to absorb the unemployed."

Aid of Insull Is Acquitted

Sampsell Freed in First Utility Embezzlement Prosecution.

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—Marshall E. Sampsell, defendant in the first of the criminal cases to come to trial as a result of the collapse of the Insull Utility Empire, was acquitted tonight of a charge of embezzlement. A superior court jury returned its verdict after five hours deliberation and six ballots.

Sampsell, former president of the Insull subsidiary, Central Public Service Co. of Illinois, was accused of taking 4,000 shares of company stock to use as collateral for personal loans. Jurors said they were convinced that Sampsell had no intention of embezzling the stock and added they believed the "loan" was authorized by the board of directors of the company.

Samuel Insull, reached at his apartment, said:

"Naturally, I'm very happy about the outcome of the case."

Insull is slated to go on trial next month in Federal Court. He faces indictments on two counts, mail fraud and bankruptcy law violation. In State courts, like his brother, Martin, he is accused of embezzlement through stock transfers.

The Sampsell case, officials declared, had no bearing on any of the cases to follow.

Court Threatens Force To Expel Long's Militia; Legislature Is Recalled

Board Pledges Action To End Labor Rows

Needless Delays Will Not Be Tolerated and Rulings From Which There Is No Appeal Will Issue Promptly, President Told.

The National Labor Relations Board advised President Roosevelt last night that it intended to make short work of labor controversies carried to Washington for settlement, giving disputing factions only a limited amount of time to compose their differences.

Delay, it was said, will not be tolerated. Rather, the board will issue arbitrary decisions from which there is no appeal in the Executive branch of the Government. Failure to comply will mean Government prosecution or loss of Blue Eagles for rebellious firms.

In its first report to the Chief Executive, the board revealed that it was "abreast" of its work, and prepared to tackle the labor situation with renewed vigor.

"Every effort," the board wrote, "will be made to promote harmonious settlements of controversies and to reduce to a minimum the cases requiring decision and enforcement. Our board, in the NRA labor cases brought before it, will try to compose the differences between the parties and to bring about settlements, but such settlements will not be urged unless they can be achieved without delay and without violating the principles of Section 7(a).

In the interests of a speedy settlement the board recommended that regional labor boards be strengthened and restaffed, since "the cases must necessarily be heard in the localities where they arise."

The board, however, did not recommend that regional boards be armed with statutory powers, authorizing them to order and conduct elections of employes and to subpena pay rolls and witnesses, saying that it was believed wiser to "wait at least until the regional board has been perfected and until our board

Cuba Orders Drastic Debt Moratorium

Deferred Payments Slated for Virtually All Businesses.

Havana, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Cuban cabinet tonight took drastic steps toward economic readjustment of the island's business by declaring a series of moratoria and deferred payments on the obligations of sugar mills, railroads, public service groups, farms and private homes.

A decree issued by the cabinet provided a special arrangement for sugar mills, which form Cuba's basic industry. The arrangement is as follows: A complete moratorium on all sugar mill debts until 1936, when they must pay 2 to 10 per cent of the gross value of the sugar they manufacture, based on a scale of sugar prices ranging from $1 to $3.50 a hundred pounds. These figures apply to all debts due on or before June 30, 1938, as do the following scales of payments:

1937—Same payment as 1936 plus 10 per cent of the 1936 amount.

1938—Same as 1936 plus 20 per cent of the 1936 amount.

1939—Same as 1936 plus 30 per cent.

1940—All mills must pay 20 per cent of their principal and interest due on or before June 30, 1939.

1942—They must pay 45 per cent

Mercury Hits 92 Here; Heat To Continue

Rains Afford Drought Relief in Portions of Baked West.

11 a. m.	85	5 p. m.	86
Noon	88	6 p. m.	84

2 p. m.	92	8 p. m.	81

The "good old summer time" bounced back to Washington yesterday on the crest of a 92-degree maximum temperature at 2 p. m., leaving District dwellers only the memory of Monday's cool wave to refresh them.

Fitful showers fell outside the metropolitan area, but there was no rainfall here. Clouds cloaked the sun intermittently during the day.

Today will be fair, without much change in temperature, the Weather Bureau predicted.

The Central West sloshed gratefully through another day of rain, the Associated Press reported, and in those sections of the drought area where there was no precipitation, cloudy skies shielded parched fields from the sun.

President's Hawaiian Trip Cost Him Less Than $400

President Roosevelt's trip to Honolulu and back cost him less than $400. Anyone else, traveling in similar style, would have paid about $150,000.

His ride on the cruiser Houston from Annapolis to Portland, via Honolulu, didn't cost anybody anything.

Salaries of the crew would have continued and the ship would have been steaming somewhere, anyway, so the Navy figures there was no extra cost going to Honolulu.

A private citizen couldn't hire a cruiser for his personal use, let alone two destroyers as convoys and a third escort ship. He might, however charter an ocean liner and a couple of smaller boats to go along to Hawaii for $100,000 or so.

Telegraph executives estimated that official wireless messages to and from the Houston totaled about 150,000 words. That didn't cost Mr. Roosevelt anything either, because he used the Navy's wireless facilities.

Commercial wireless rates to Washington from a ship en route to Honolulu are 21 cents per word. If a private citizen had sent as many radiograms as the President did, his bill would have been $31,500.

A train awaited President Roosevelt at Portland. He rode home in a private car, but all he had to pay was $180.42 for two fares and $111 to the Pullman company for a drawing room. To hire a special train from Portland to Washington would cost anybody else $11,364.10.

The railroad companies classified the President's special as an extra section of a regular train. Everybody who rode on Mr. Roosevelt's train paid regular fares and the train was crowded all the way. The railroads thus made more money on the trip than if the President had hired a train for his individual use.

Mr. Roosevelt slept almost invariably aboard ship or train. His hotel bills, therefore, were negligible. His meals cost little. The Navy would not say whether he had to pay regular mess charges of $1 a day aboard the Houston, on the ground that that would not be polite to the Chief Executive, who is Commander in Chief also.

On most of his stops he was invited out to lunch. His dinners and breakfasts aboard the train cost him regular dining car rates. A generous estimate of the cost of his meals is $50. Another $50 would take care of his incidental expenses.

The cost of his trip in actual cash expended, therefore, amounted to about $391.

Fleming and Aid Held in Contempt

Sheriff Told to Arrest Adjutant General; Lieutenant Fined.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Court-martial was convened tonight to try an unidentified National Guardsman who fired a shot into a restaurant wall and sent a flurry of excitement over the New Orleans "battlefront."

Two newspapermen who went to investigate the shooting were assaulted by the troops. Military officers refused to give any information to police.

New Orleans, Aug. 14 (AP).—Judge Nat Bond in civil district court late today issued a permanent injunction, ordering the dismissal of Senator Huey P. Long's troops from the city registration office. Attorneys said the judge was prepared to enforce his order by armed strength.

The permanent injunction was granted after the court had found Adjt. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, commander of the militia, and Lieut. Numa P. Avendano guilty of contempt of court for failing to dismiss the troops as directed in a restraining order issued more than a week ago.

Senator Huey P. Long, also named in the action, was found guilty as a conspirator in maintaining the troops in the registration office. What action would be taken against him was problematical.

Troops Standing Pat.

The armed State troops, meanwhile, continued to hold the registration office. There was no indication that they would be withdrawn before September 11, the date of the Congressional primary election, in which both Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley are supporting rival candidates.

Armed police of Mayor Walmsley were entrenched across the street in city hall, prepared to resist any attempt of the guardsmen to take possession of offices there.

Judge Bond gave no indication as to whether he would order deputies to drive the soldiers out of the registration office.

Militiamen at Jackson Barracks, their headquarters, prevented deputies from serving any of the court papers on Gen. Fleming, and court attaches said his conviction for contempt, in his absence from court, set a precedent in Louisiana jurisprudence.

Fleming Ordered Arrested.

"While the general rule in case of contempt," Judge Bond said, "is that personal service must be made, the court can not conceive that there are no exceptions to the rule. If there is no jurisprudence in Louisiana on the subject, it is time there should be."

The judge ordered the civil sheriff to arrest Gen. Fleming, who is reported to be in Jackson Barracks, protected by the guns of militiamen, but instructed him not to try to enter the barracks. The sheriff was directed to "use force if necessary" to arrest the general if he was found anywhere else.

Lieut. Avendano, also found guilty of contempt, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and serve 10 days

Goldman Named N. Y. Postmaster

(United Press.)

Postmaster General James A. Farley last night appointed Albert Goldman as acting postmaster for New York City, succeeding Postmaster John J. Kiely, Republican holdover. The appointment is effective September 1, at which time Kiely will become Goldman's first assistant.

Kiely is being retained in the secondary post so that he can remain in the postal service until he reaches the age of compulsory retirement on June 29, 1936. He entered the service in 1885 as a junior clerk and was appointed postmaster in 1925.

Reduced Air Express Rates Now in Effect

Substantial rate reductions for air express handled over the Nation-wide network of commercial air lines by the Railway Express Agency became effective yesterday, C. H. Frame, superintendent here, announced.

Outstanding reductions, Frame said, permit air express shipments of packages weighing three-quarters of a pound or less at the flat rate of 85 cents. Heretofore, minimum charges have ranged up to $1.80. General lowering of tariffs affects particularly lighter-weight shipments, which now constitute the greater percentage of packages handled via the airways.

bonus, the National debt and other obligations should be "paid in greenbacks."

Burke claims "the best record in the lower house of the Seventy-third Congress for support of Roosevelt policies." The President gave his candidacy discreet benediction at Green Bay when he quoted Burke's definition of the New Deal.

Seeking the Republican Senatorial nomination are Robert Simmons, former Representative; Robert Smith, Progressive; Kenneth Wherry, Liberal Republican and friend of the New Deal, and Barton Greene, avowed enemy of the old guard.

Arkansas Casts Light Vote; 1 Jailed in Row

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 14 (AP).—Balloting in fewer numbers than usual, Arkansas voters today nominated candidates for State, county, district and township offices in the Democratic primary.

Ideal summer weather prevailed. Except for the arrest of one person at Fort Smith growing out of an election argument, the balloting was quiet.

Greater interest was shown in the gubernatorial race, with Gov. J. M. Futrell—who was 63 years old today—up for renomination over former State Comptroller Howard A. Reed.

The incumbents in four other State offices and the State's seven Congressmen sought renomination.

Idaho Vote Is Light In Two Primaries

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 14 (AP).—Light voting was generally reported today in the Idaho primary election to name Democratic and Republican slates for the November contest.

Candidates for Governor, two seats in the National House of Representatives, and full State and county tickets, together with nonpartisan candidates for the judiciary, were on the long ballots.

The polls close at 8 p. m. Mountain standard time (10 p. m. Washington time) in most of the state and Pacific standard time in the north.

The race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination attracted chief interest, with Gov. C. Ben Ross seeking a third term. Frank Martin, former Attorney General, and Asher B. Wilson were his opponents.

Three candidates also sought the Republican nomination for the Governorship, Frank L. Stephan, J. Wesley Holden and H. F. Fait.

Eight sought the Republican nomination for Second District Representative and seven the Democratic nomination in the same district, all campaigning to succeed the late Representative T. C. Coffin.

In the First District, former Representative Burton L. French was unopposed for the Republican nomination, but Representative Burton L. French was unoposed for the Republican nomination, but Representative Compton I. White, who defeated French two years ago, was opposed by a young State senator, E. G. Van Hoesen, for the Democratic nomination.

Ohio Casts Heavy Vote On New Deal Issue

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—A heavy primary vote, with the New Deal an actual campaign issue, was cast in Ohio's personality-fraught races as ballots were counted tonight.

A million and a half votes were estimated. Three thousand candidates for posts, ranging from United States Senator down to the lowliest county offices, received the verdict of the electorate. Clear weather prevailed.

Holding particular interest was the three-cornered Democratic race for the United States Senatorial nomination. Gov. George White, battling to round off his political career with a term in the Senate, was opposed by Rep. Charles West, 39-year-old former Denison University Professor, of Granville, and former Gov. A. V. (Vic) Donahey.

West was in the race with the blessing of Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland, and former Gov. James M. Cox, Dayton publisher. Against them, Newton D. Baker, attorney, and former Secretary of War, pitted an indorsement of Gov. White.

On the Republican side, Senator Simeon D. Fess, critic of the New Deal, was expected to be renominated over Judge Walter Wanamaker and John W. Vorys.

West entered the Democratic race a scant six weeks before the primary, with the apparent support of the National Administration. In indorsements of his candidacy, Cox and Bulkley stressed the Representative's 100 per cent support of President Roosevelt in the recent Congress.

This forced Gov. White to emphasize New Deal references in his campaign speeches. Donahey, speaking only a few times during the campaign, depended principally on voters recalling his name and on heavy support from unpledged voters.

The Republican gubernatorial race was believed close between Clarence J. Brown, small-town publisher, and Daniel E. Morgan, former Cleveland city manager.

In the Democratic battle, Martin L. Davey, Kent tree surgeon and former Representative; Lieut. Gov. Charles Sawyer, of Cincinnati, and former Gov. William G. Pickrel, of Dayton, were leaders in a race fought on State issues of taxation and financial aid to the schools.

fortable Senate seat which he has held for three terms. The White House emphasized its neutrality, but Senator Copeland had been made aware of General Farley's desire to eliminate him. Hints that he could have a diplomatic appointment were the mildest form this pressure took.

Finally, Senator Copeland took notice of it by stating that the men and women of his State would decide who the Democratic candidate would be. He continued to be a good Democrat, but not a very good Roosevelt Democrat. He refused to support the Farley candidate in the New York mayoralty election, Joseph V. McKee, and openly worked for the Tammany candidate, O'Brien. He fought the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty and smothered the Tugwell food and drug bill. But it was his siding with Tammany in the city election last fall that incurred the hostility of Gen. Farley. He is one of the few Democrats who went his own way and sought reelection on his own without clutching at White House coat tails. That in itself makes his case one of the most striking at a time when other candidates have been resorting to all sorts of tricks to give the impression that the Administration was aiding them.

One reason Copeland was able to do this was that as a physician he has developed a bedside manner which brings him a tremendous following, independent of politics. His health talks and broadcasts have given him an influence among his constituents that makes the ordinary politician envious. In addition to that he has played close to Tammany Hall and he has tilled his up-State political vineyards with the thoroughness of a scientific farmer.

All Rivals Missing.

So when word got around that General Farley would be pleased to see some other Democrat go after Senator Copeland's seat, the Senator straightened the red carnation in his buttohhole and awaited developments. There were no developments, because nobody could be found who had a ghost of a chance against him.

That being the case, General Farley fell back on Rule 3, which is that if you can't lick 'em, or take 'em into camp, then join 'em.

It's a bit of old-fashioned politics which looks a little odd in the New Deal setting where the Administration extending the helping hand to a Republican Senator in California, to a Progressive in Wisconsin and looks with a kindly eye on a Farmer-Labor Senator in Minnesota, and is all the while reiterating almost daily now that it is keeping hands off in local political contests.

This week the White House has been obliged twice, once in Mississippi and once in Georgia, to repeat that its policy is hands off. It had to do the same thing earlier in Texas.

La Follette, Cutting May Lose Support

(Associated Press.)

The present intention of the National Democratic Senatorial campaign committee to support regular party nominees for the Senate in New Mexico and Wisconsin was made known yesterday by Senator Lewis, of Illinois, chairman, who added, however, the matter would be discussed with the President soon.

Lewis said Democrats believed they had good prospects of electing their own candidates over Senator La Follette, Wisconsin Progressive, and Senator Cutting, New Mexico Republican Independent, both of whom campaigned for President Roosevelt in 1932.

The Democratic candidates are yet to be selected. The New Mexico Democrats are to make their nomination at a convention early in September, while the Wisconsin Democratic primary will be September 18. Senator Hatch, Democrat, serving out an unexpired term, is expected to be a candidate in New Mexico. Representative Chavez (Democrat) is reported to be slated for the long-term nomination to face Cutting.

Senator Lewis said the committee had not yet decided on the Minnesota situation, where Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite, is opposed by Representative Hoidale, Democrat, for reelection. Lewis plans to visit Minnesota to survey the situation, he said.

Lewis also said he planned to write a letter to Senator Hastings, of Delaware, chairman of the Republican Senatorial campaign committee, to get Democratic and Republican Senatorial candidates in joint debate on the "New Deal."

"We have no fear of the outcome," Lewis said.

affairs of Baltimore City," the mayor's statement said.

"Subsequently, Governor Ritchie became a candidate for reelection. I am of the opinion that this circumstance would not have prevented my nomination had not important support, which I believed would come to me, been diverted to another candidate who remained in the field and then retired to seek other office.

"It has been found impossible to bring these forces, once having been scattered, together again in public support of any candidate. If I had obtained the help necessary to make an effective primary campaign, I would have done so."

Mayor Jackson's withdrawal leaves only Dr. Charles H. Conley, the crusading Frederick physician, in the field against Governor Ritchie.

2 More Named To Stock Body

Leon Cohen, F. J. Meehan Get Market Control Places.

Leon Cohen, former New York broker, and Frank J. Meehan, an accountant attached to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee during its stock market investigation, yesterday were named assistant chiefs of the trading and exchange division of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

This division will have jurisdiction over stock exchanges and trading practices and is under the supervision of Ferdinand Pecora, member of the commission. Both the appointees have had years of experience in security trading. Mr. Meehan was attached to the investigation division of the Justice Department at one time and handled many bucket shop and mail fraud cases. Mr. Cohen recently retired as a partner of the brokerage house of E. Lowitz & Co.

Having prescribed on Monday the rules and form under which exchanges must apply for registration, the commission yesterday was in recess, but within a few days will commence work on rules to govern over-the-counter trading, one of its most difficult problems.

$2,294,311 PWA Grant to Howard Included.

Educational facilities of the Nation will be increased by $160,603,032 as the result of PWA allotments, Administrator Harold L. Ickes announced yesterday. Of this amount the PWA furnished $126,755,474, the balance coming from local sources.

The District of Columbia received no part of this directly, but among the expenditures listed by the PWA for Federal schools is $2,294,311 for buildings at Howard University.

The F. W. Dodge Corporation yesterday submitted a report to Secretary Ickes showing that construction financed by PWA and other public bodies was three and a half times greater during the first seven months of this year than in the corresponding period of 1933.

The Sarnia Beach home is about 10 miles from Sarnia, which is directly across the St. Claire River from Fort Huron, Mich., about 50 miles from Detroit.

Secret Journey.

Considerable secrecy surrounded Hugh Labatt's journey to Toronto. The note did not say where in that city the ransom was to be paid.

The route he was to follow in motoring to Toronto was mapped out in detail, however, giving rise to the theory that he would be met on the highway or be given further instruction in some manner before reaching his destination.

Local police took charge of the car after being called by the family at the time the note was received, but would give no details as to the appearance of its interior.

Before leaving here Hugh Labatt would not state whether he was carrying any money for the kidnapers, but it was thought likely that he was not.

Head of Brewery.

Toronto officials would not discuss the matter, except to say provincial police were working on it.

Gen. Victor S. Williams, commissioner of the provincial force, and Chief Constable D. C. Draper, of the Toronto police department, both were reported as being "engaged," though it was not revealed whether they were working together.

Labatt succeeded to the presidency of the Labatt Brewing Co. upon the death of his father about 12 years ago.

He is prominent in southwestern Ontario, where for many years he has taken a keen interest in business and public affairs. He is well known as a horseman.

Labatt was married seven years ago to Miss Betty Lynch, of Ottawa, Ontario.

The kidnaped man is about 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds.

An injury to his foot while playing football as a boy causes him to walk with a slight limp and he usually carries a cane.

The maximum penalty provided for kidnaping in the Province of Ontario is 25 years in prison.

While the Labatt case is the first actual kidnaping police can recall, three men are being held for trial in Toronto on charges of conspiracy to kidnap J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd.

Wallace Promises Wheat Price Probe

Filing of Data by Senator Byrd Awaited.

An inquiry into differences in wheat prices on various markets was promised Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, yesterday by Secretary Wallace, the Associated Press reported.

The investigation will be undertaken as soon as the Virginia Senator files with the Department of Agriculture detailed information on differences in freight rates from Eastern wheat-growing belts to various markets, and rates from the West Coast to Eastern markets. Senator Byrd said these details would be in the hands of the Secretary within a few days.

Goering first was taken to a hospital at Rosenheim, where after an X-ray the doctor said:

"In view of his present condition, there is no special cause for immediate concern."

The Nazi leader was then taken to his home in Obersalzberg. He arrived at midnight, and Hitler visited him at 1 a. m.

His chauffeur was slightly injured. Goering usually rides in the front seat, and likes to go at high speed.

Goering was under an anesthetic during the operation. Although he appeared to have withstood the ordeal he looked weak.

The general was in Munich during the afternoon dress in civilian clothes and accompanied by three secret service men. He toured the business district on foot and made purchases in many small shops where he chatted with the shopkeepers. Crowds were drawn by his appearance.

Strike Spread Laid to NRA "Bargain" Plan

Secretary Perkins Sees Unrest of Labor as Natural Reaction.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins yesterday admitted to newspapermen that the collective bargaining clause of the National industrial recovery act had played an important part in the recent strike wave which has swept the country.

She reiterated her belief that the outbreaks of labor disputes were only natural as an indication of recovery from the depression.

Resistance of employers to the collective bargaining right guaranteed to labor by the NRA was blamed by Miss Perkins to ignorance, some to misunderstanding, and some to deliberate misinterpretation.

"There have been fewer strikes this year than during corresponding periods of recovery," the Labor Secretary asserted, "and the strikes have been of shorter duration. This is because the Government has had machinery to cope with the situation."

Miss Perkins said she did not consider the epidemic of labor disputes "alarming," but added, "I am concerned about it."

Other Developments.

Other labor developments yesterday were:

The National Labor Relations Board in its first report to President Roosevelt stated it would use Blue Eagle removal or criminal prosecution only as last resorts in handling labor controversies.

While awaiting the arrival today of Fred Keightly, Labor Department conciliator, from Philadelphia, the Labor Board marked time in its efforts to end the aluminum strike, involving 8,500 employes of the Mellon-owned Aluminum Co. of America.

The Labor Board told the President that "every effort will be made to promote harmonious settlements of controversies and to reduce to a minimum the cases requiring decision and enforcement."

The report, handed to Mr. Roosevelt through Secretary Perkins, roughly sketched the board's plans for reorganization of the whole Federal mediation and conciliation setup.

"There is no short cut," the board said. "If Section 7 (a) is to be enforced, as it must be enforced, some agency of the Government must pass authoritatively upon each unsettled case as it arises, and that we take to be the duty of this board."

Lloyd Garrison, chairman of the board, reiterated the announcement that the board stood ready to act as a mediator in the aluminum strike, but explained that it was powerless unless both sides agreed voluntarily to arbitration.

Neither the powerful aluminum company nor the well-fortified union workers gave any sign yesterday of yielding in its stand or of accepting the Labor Board's offer.

Strikes "Natural Reaction."

Miss Perkins said that strikes, such as that of the aluminum workers, is only a natural reaction to depression wage scales.

"The workers see the employers getting out of the red and perhaps making a little profit," she said, "and they want a return to former wage standards."

Explaining the role that the collective-bargaining clause has played in the labor unrest, she said:

"It always takes time for a new statute to become enforceable. I remember in New York State that it was usually a year and a half or two years before industry began to conform generally to any new social legislation."

Once the collective-bargaining clause is better understood, the Secretary predicted, there will be less challenging of it and fewer strikes.

While Miss Perkins did not indicate what proportion of the strikes are directly attributable to Section 7(a), it was recalled that Senator Robert F. Wagner, upon retiring as chairman of the National Labor Board, expressed the opinion that 70 per cent of all recent strikes were caused by labor's effort to exercise the collective-bargaining privilege.

Truck Drivers' Stand Assailed By Employers

Charge Strikers Unwilling to Settle; Appeal to President.

Minneapolis, Aug. 14 (AP).—The employers' advisory committee today charged that strikers in the truck drivers walkout do not want to settle the dispute.

The accusations, were made after the Minneapolis protective committee appealed directly to President Roosevelt with demands that Federal mediators act to determine representation for collective bargaining by holding elections among employes.

Outlining newly proposed settlement terms which strike leaders have rejected, the employers said the union's rejection "confirms the employers' contentions that strike leaders do not want to settle the strike."

The employers insisted the peace plan does provide for minimum wage scales upon which to base arbitration. Strike leaders claimed it carries no such provision.

Reinstatement of workers, however, proved the biggest stumbling block, with the strikers claiming the terms did not assure them of reemployment upon termination of the strike. They objected to the clause giving truck owners the right to protest the return of employes in such cases where the employers think they have just cause.

"This looks as though the strike leaders anticipate the employers have good reason to protest return of some of them," said the truck owners.

Provisions for separate bargaining by every employer with his own employes also was opposed by strikers.

Retail meat and groceries moved today under Gov. Floyd B. Olson's orders for such permits to avoid shortages in food. Two calls for aid were received by the National Guard after reported picket activities. No arrests were made, however, and no damge reported.

Strikers at Aluminum Plants Await Mediation

Pittsburgh, Aug. 14 (AP).—A peaceful but determined spirit to insist upon compliance with their demands pervaded picket camps at strike-affected plants of the Aluminum Co. of America today.

Awaiting the results of the Government's mediation efforts in Washington, more than 8,500 union workers remained idle for the fourth consecutive day. The plants involved include three in Pennsylvania and one each in Tennessee, New York and Illinois.

The company's plant at Alcoa, Tenn., was heavily guarded by pickets and 200 nonunion workers were marooned in the plant where they have been since Saturday to care for machinery and other equipment. Company officials at Alcoa rejected a proposal by the workers to replace the men with union members, contending it would involve "recognition of the closed shop."

At New Kensington, Pa., where about half of the striking members of the Aluminum Workers' Council are employed, pickets continued to patrol the plant peacefully.

The Aluminum company, a mellon interest, contends the union demands for a written contract, a check-off system to collect union dues and a universal wage scale involve recognition of a "closed shop."

Money Plans Pondered at White House

President Has Long Talks With Warren, Black and Harrison.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

President Roosevelt spent the major part of his afternoon yesterday discussing financial and monetary policies with advisers as the Treasury took steps to gather into its vaults all the silver bullion in the country.

For almost an hour President Roosevelt was closeted with Prof. George F. Warren, Cornell economist, whose advice guided the White House in the formulation of the gold purchase and revaluation policy. He was followed by Gov. Eugene R. Black of the Federal Reserve Board and Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, who spent nearly two hours with the President.

No effort was made to conceal the fact that the discussions concerned the current monetary and financial situation, abroad as well at home. From Gov. Harrison, recently back from Europe, the President heard what the financial ministries and central bank heads of England, France, Germany and the central European powers thought of recent developments, and what should be done to stabilize world economic conditions.

New Move Not Expected.

Unlike similar conferences held in the last several months at the White House, which usually presaged some new monetary step, yesterday's discussions were understood to be devoted to surveying the situation rather than to considering the launching of a new plan.

The impression in Treasury circles is distinct that there will be no further monetary developments, aside from execution of the silver program for some time, at least until after completion of the Treasury financing operations next month and in October. The entire effort of the week has been to reassure the country and the world that the Treasury is not ready to embark on any large inflation scheme.

The break in Government bond prices following the announcement of the silver nationalization order apparently gave Treasury officials a shock. With the necessity before them of refunding in the next two months securities totaling $1,700,000,000, the Treasury chieftains now fear a drop in bond prices far more than they do the agitation of the inflationists in Congress.

Inflationists Not Satisfied.

Inspired by the Committee for the Nation and led by Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, the inflation bloc does not appear to be satisfied and is now urging further devaluation of the gold dollar. It is possible that Prof. Warren counseled this course when he talked with the President, but in many quarters the belief prevails that Prof. Warren is not as influential at the White House as he was a year ago. As far as is known there has been no change in the opinion President Roosevelt expressed to a group of silver advocates from the Senate when they called on him last spring. He was reported to have said then that he was disappointed with the results of the gold policy.

Prof. Warren, who carried a bulky brief case with him when he entered the President's study, declined to be interviewed on his departure, other than to say he had called to bid Mr. Roosevelt farewell before sailing later this month for Germany to attend the International Conference of Agricultural Economists.

Warren's Trip Private.

The Cornell professor insisted that his trip to Europe was "purely a private affair" and that he had no commission to represent the President or the Government in any capacity.

Gov. Black and Harrison came together and were invited to tea with the President. All that could be learned of their talk was that every aspect of domestic and international finance had been discussed. This was taken to mean that the financing task ahead of the Treasury entered into the discussion.

Both Federal Reserve officials belong to the orthodox monetary school and it is not probable that they urged any further monetary experimentation. When they entered the White House it was thought they had come to discuss Gov. Black's resignation and the choice of a successor to him. But Gov. Black said this subject was not touched on.

Black Wishes to Retire.

Gov. Black for many months has sought to be relieved from his post, but has stayed on at the President's request. Later this week he will lunch with Mr. Roosevelt when his desire to return to his home in Atlanta will be discussed. B. A. McKinney, Dallas banker; Tom K. Smith, the St. Louis banker who last spring had charge of the Treasury's work in bank reorganization; Marriner S. Eccles, now a special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury and Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC have been mentioned as possible successors to Gov. Black.

Meanwhile, significance was attached to dispatches from New York that the Treasury had granted a license for the shipment of $1,000,000 of gold out of the country today, the first major export of gold since the gold devaluation act was enacted last January.

The license was granted to the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and the gold will be shipped to Paris today aboard the S. S. Manhattan. Occasion for the shipment arose when the exchange rate on francs went above the gold export point. The result on announcement that the gold shipment would be allowed was an immediate appreciation of the dollar in francs at Paris. There was no comment here on the granting of the permit, but it was regarded as an easing of the rigid gold policy when necessary.

As the Treasury reported that small amounts of silver bullion were now being received under the nationalization order, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, issued instructions for the delivery of the white metal to the New York Assay Office and the mints at San Francisco, Philadelphia, Denver, New Orleans and the Assay Office at Seattle.

The instructions covering deliveries to the New York office provided that when silver actually is delivered to the assay office a cash payment of 95 per cent of the value of the silver at 50.01 cents an ounce will be made at once and the balance paid as soon as the exact value has been determined.

In the case of silver held at banks or in approved warehouses, holders are instructed to indorse the receipt to "Superintendent, U. S. Assay Office," to have this indorsement guaranteed by a bank or commodity exchange clearing broker and send the indorsed receipt to the assay office. Payment up to 95 per cent will be made within 24 hours. The Government will pay all proper delivery charges and storage after acceptance of the receipt.

The only difference in the instructions governing deliveries at mints or assay offices, other than New York, is that the warehouse receipt must be guaranteed by a bank and not by a commodity exchange clearing broker.

"White Collar" Group to Get Roosevelt Aid

Social Insurance Program Mapped for Congress by Special Board.

President Roosevelt shortly may toss an old-age and unemployment bombshell into the Congressional campaign arena.

That strategy was forecast two months ago when he outlined to Congress in wholly general terms his plans for the seventy-fourth session, which will begin next January. A special committee headed by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins Monday reported progress on the social insurance program.

Outstanding in the Administration plan is determination to do something for the so-called white collar class of workers. These comparatively unorganized millions are mute when organized industry, organized labor, or the farm bloc shout their orders at the pie counter.

Cooperation between Federal and State governments is the basis of the social insurance plan upon which Mr. Roosevelt's experts are working. The system would be similar to but not identical with the $90,000,000 railroad labor retirement act, which the carriers have just challenged in court. The 137 major roads seek to enjoin the railroad retirement board from exacting annual tribute of $60,000,000 as a contribution toward compulsory pensions for 1,000,000 employes. The remainder would come from the workers' wages.

Social insurance is part of a larger program described as seeking to provide the people with homes in which to live, productive employment and safeguards against misfortune.

Unemployment insurance is characterized merely as a continuation of emergency relief. It was estimated at the height of prosperity that upward of 1,000,000 persons would be permanently unemployed in this country under any conditions.

Speaking of insurance shortly before Congress adjourned, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I have commenced to make, with the greatest care, the necessary actuarial and other studies necessary for the formulation of plans for the consideration of the Seventy-fourth Congress. These objectives—security of home, security of livelihood, security of social insurance—are a minimum of the promise that we can offer to the American people."

Donovan Unfit, Johnson Tells Ouster Probe

Deportment Is Blamed for Removal of NRA Union Head.

John L. Donovan, president of the NRA union, was discharged for "unfitness" and "improper conduct," Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson informed the National Labor Relations Board yesterday in writing.

After receiving the consent of John Finnerty, counsel for Donovan, the board accepted Gen. Johnson's written statement, reversing its ruling of last week that the recovery chief must appear in person.

As all testimony now is in the board's hands, a decision is expected before the end of the week.

"I discharged John L. Donovan on June 18, for insubordination in my office, indulging in threaats and other such actions, all in a case which had been settled previously in favor of the employe . . . and for improper conduct all as reported by his immediate superior, Dr. Gustav Peck, and other members of my staff, the statement said.

Gen. Johnson explained that, as he had been absent from Washington for a month, "the importance and volume of accumulated matters requiring immediate attention make it impossible for me to present these facts in person at any time in the near future."

Although Gen. Johnson, along with the American Federation of Government Employes, has agreed to abide by the board's decision, the recovery administrator indicated in his statement that he would seriously object to reinstating Donovan.

"I respectfully submit that since that time (when he was discharged) Donovan has engaged in tactics which have seriously interfered with the government duties intrusted to me and that he has thereby forfeited any right to reinstatement."

The administrator then recited the events leading up to the dismissal of Donovan after he had called with a delegation to intercede for another discharged employe, later reinstated.

After failing to see the recovery chief, because the administrator was called to the White House, Donovan refused to leave Johnson's office, the statement said, and "he wrote and delivered an ultimatum, containing an implied threat of consequences if I did not see him by an hour specified in the ultimatum.

Dismissal Recommended

"It is well known that, as administrator of the NRA, the demands upon my time make it physically impossible for me to see everyone who wants to be seen during any given day. The days simply aren't long enough.

"In view of these facts, well known to Donovan, his behavior demonstrated to me his unfitness for public service or any part in an emergency organization such as NRA.

"I then called Dr. Peck, his immediate superior, to obtain his opinion of the value of Donovan's services in other respects. Dr. Peck told me that the man had been on their dismissal list for months and was absent without leave for days at a time; that he was below par and should be dropped."

Gen Johnson said in order to play fair with the union he called E. Claude Babcock, National president of the union, and told him the story. The administrator quoted Babcock as saying the union did not seek to retain people who were not doing their work properly. "I then discharged Donovan," he said.

When the controversy developed, Gen. Johnson said, he offered to submit to "any impartial tribunal, suggesting the Federal Trades Commission, the Civil Service Commission, and the National Labor Board."

Donovan "has apparently endeavored by every public device to embarrass the administration and obscure the real facts of the case," Gen. Johnson said. "Donovan's representatives," he said, "caused telegrams to be sent to the workers involved in the San Francisco and Chicago strikes urging them to refuse my services which the unions involved in both cases had insistently requested."

The NRA administrator also complained against the picketing of the Department of Commerce Building with "placards of an extremely insulting nature, referring both to me and the NRA."

"This type of conduct," Gen. Johnson's statement concluded, "establishes the unfitness of the man to assume the oath of office or to take any further part in the activities of the NRA."

Mr. Babcock last night protested acceptance of the Johnson statement.

"I desire to state," he said, "that I was not consulted about the concession to Gen. Johnson, and if I had been I would have objected to it, on the ground that the General, in my opinion, should have been heard under the same circumstances as the other witnesses, namely, circumstances which would permit cross-examination in public hearing. I do not believe the employer should be given any superior rights to the employe.

"I have the utmost confidence in the good faith of the Labor Relations Board and hope for a favorable decision promptly."

has had the necessary experience in exercising its own statutory powers."

The President was advised that activities of industrial boards created under NRA codes were being studied so that the purposes both of mediation and of enforcing section 7(a) will be strengthened by adequate cooperative arrangements.

The parent board reiterated that it can not, as a practical matter, engage directly in mediation work, which, to be effective, "must normally take place in the field at the seat of controversy."

"Our borad," it said, "recognizes its responsibility to assist in promoting settlements through the regional boards and with the aid of its own staff, and in conjunction with the Department of Labor will bend every effort to reduce the area of conflict. The board will also hold itself in readiness at all times to arbitrate those disputes which are submitted to it, whether they involve 7(a) or not."

The board said it would also endeavor, through the regional boards, and in cooperation with the Department of Labor, to encourage a more general resort to arbitration.

Short Cuts Shunned.

Believing that a general misunderstanding of section 7A has contributed to the current wave of labor unrest, the supreme labor tribunal will seek to clarify its application, by passing authoritatively upon each unsettled issue as it arises.

"There is no short cut," the President said. "If section 7A is to be enforced, as it must be enforced, some agency of the Government must pass authoritatively upon each unsettled case as it arises and we take it to be the duty of this board."

Since the board took office, July 9, it has disposed of 92 cases which were pending before the old National Labor Board.

Strawn Flays "Vast Powers" GivenPresident

Delegation of Authority by Congress Seen as Dangerous Move.

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—The delegation of Congressional powers to the President was termed by Silas H. Strawn tonight "a dangerous expedient" which he felt the American people would not stand for.

A former president of the American Bar Association and of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Strawn spoke in a radio broadcast sponsored by the Republican campaign committee.

Some academic theorists, Strawn said, attribute present economic troubles to capitalism and prescribe for a cure an arbitrarily enforced, planned economy.

"Obviously," he asserted, "a planned economy can not be effective unless the Executive is vested with power to enforce it. He can not tolerate individual freedom of action.

"That, I submit, is wholly inconsistent with American ideals and American instincts. The American people will not stand for it."

Strawn said he believed President Roosevelt "in the highest sense of patriotism, with the idea of being able more promptly to meet the emergency which he believed to exist," asked Congress to surrender "many of its constitutional powers" to the President, and this was granted.

"Those who believe in the soundness of the Constitution," Strawn said, "regard the placing of such vast powers in the hands of one person, however wise and patriotic he may be, as a dangerous expedient."

He referred to an inquiry made at Washington by an American Bar Association committee which reported that a number of administrative branches of the Government were performing judicial functions; that Government corporations are exercising judicial and legislative functions and eluding restrictions normally applying to Executive activities of the Government, especially as to expenditures; and that the committee "believes it is not going too far to state that the judicial branch of the Federal Government is being rapidly and seriously undermined."

Labor Ills Laid To Johnson by Mrs. Pinchot

NRA Chief Has Betrayed President, She Cries in Harriman Speech.

Harriman, Tenn., Aug. 14 (AP). Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, lashed out at both the administration of the NRA and the management of the Harriman Hosiery Mills in an address prepared for delivery tonight to striking mill workers.

Speaking under auspices of the Central Labor Union of Knoxville, she charged restoration of the Blue Eagle to the mills by John Clancey, special assistant to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, was "illegal."

"It is unbelievable that Clancy, an antiunion man, should have been selected for the position he holds and then allowed to misuse the power of his official position to make a mockery of the law he had sworn to enforce," she asserted.

"It would be about as logical to put the Administration of our criminal law into the hands of Al Capone, Dillinger, and other such—with perhaps one honest citizen worked in somewhere as an observer but without power to make decisions."

Mrs. Pinchot said both she and Gov. Pinchot resented the fact that restoration of the Blue Eagle forced the State Emergency Board of Pennsylvania to keep its contract with the Harriman Mills.

Mrs. Pinchot charged that in the NRA "There is one law for the employer and another for the workers."

"I believe that more than any other man Gen. Johnson is primarily responsible for labor unrest in this country," she asserted. "The great majority of strikes in this country have been called to get only what Congress intended the workers to have.

"They would never have been called if the Administration of the NRA had been on the level and efficient.

"I believe that Johnson has betrayed the President's statement and perverted his purpose and that of Congress—the placing of increased purchasing power in the hands of the workers—by diverting increased profits into the hands of the monopolists."

Von Papen Sees Hitler On His Way to Austria

Berlin, Aug. 14 (AP).—Franz von Papen, who is switching from the vice chancellorship to the post of minister to Austria, started for Vienna by airplane today and apparently got as far as Chancellor Hitler's summer home at Berchtesgaden.

His airplane reached Munich with his baggage but without the vice chancellor. Authorities there said they did not know his whereabouts but it was reliably learned that he was spending the evening with Hitler.

Cost of Food Soaring, Peak Not in Sight

Canned goods have been little affected, averaging a 1-cent increase in most brands, according to averaged figures.

"There is no actual shortage of food," said Miss Mary Taylor, of the consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. "The price increases have come from a fear of the drought, rather than from any real lack of food supplies."

Increase Is General.

Miss Taylor reported a National price average increase since April of 2¾ per cent.

Reporting a sharp increase in the local food prices of 8 to 10 per cent in the past 60 days, Louis Dennison, manager of the District Grocery Stores, attributed the rise directly to the present widespread drought.

Officials of the Atlantic and Pacific Stores stated:

"There has been a price increase throughout the Nation over the past month. Prices in Washington are roughly the same as elsewhere, except for additional freight charges."

Meanwhile, leading National distributors of canned foods admit they are buying in the open market, at a premium, because of the general expectancy of higher prices and the possibility of some shortages. One company is buying on a 90-day supply now as against a previous policy of a 30-day supply.

"We feel a continued rise in prices is in the air for all products," one Washington grocer told the Washington Post, admitting that grocers are spending all available funds now to lay in supplies of canned goods.

Prices in Washington generally are considerably higher than the averages of a year ago, with butter up 4 cents, cheese up 1 cent, white bread up 1 cent, round steak up 5 cents, pork chops up 3 cents, leg of lamb up 4 cents, and eggs up 3 cents. These are average prices only, and do not take into account almost daily fluctuations occurring in the prices of many foods.

Instances Are Given.

Instances of the situation nationally are shown in the following:

St. Paul grocers reported housewives are complaining about higher prices.

Kansas City (Mo.) grocers report canned goods sales are about 10 per cent heavier than normal.

Chicago grocers report wholesale prices rapidly are climbing "out of sight."

Dallas grocers report canned goods such as tomatoes, corn and peas, have advanced during the drought from 10 to 70 per cent.

The old reliable of "meat and potatoes"—the stable menu of most households—is receiving the biggest boost at the moment. Potatoes are stationary, but meats are climbing rapidly. In Boston, for instance, sirloin steak has jumped from 45 to 60 cents a pound since May 11; in New York City from 33 to 39 cents a pound; in Dallas from 32 to 37 cents a pound.

Bacon in Boston has jumped 18 cents a pound to 48 cents since May 1, with gains of three to four cents a pound recorded in most other cities. Eggs generally have advanced 3 to 5 cents a dozen with New York City housewives paying 36 cents a dozen now against 29 cents on May 1.

Butter Price Rises.

In St. Paul butter has jumped from 19 to 39 cents since May 1. Prices generally are higher with the present cold storage supply reportedly 27 per cent less than a year ago.

Milk prices generally have remained about steady, but in St. Louis the price of cream today advanced from 24 cents to 30 cents a pint. Bread prices are fairly steady. St. Louis and one or two other cities reported advances. Flour has climbed forward steadily in all reporting cities.

Fresh vegetables, ordinarily inexpensive at this season, have jumped to a position where they are 50 to 100 per cent higher than a year ago in Washington, D. C. They are comparatively steady in New York City, but sweet corn—now at its zenith—sells at 50 cents a dozen in New York City.

St. Louis, Aug. 14 (AP).—Increases this week in the retail costs of bread and cream were called "indefensible" by Prof. Joseph McKlamonn, of the Washington University economics department.

Prof. Klamonn, speaking before the Advertising Club, said the NRA must throw price fixing overboard or much of the good it will do will stand discredited.

"In a period of rising prices," he said, "real income tends to decline because wage advances can not keep pace with the rise in retail prices. If we add to this normal tendency the price fixing practices of NRA, the result is a very serious danger to the consumers.

"An example of this is apparent in the indefensible rise in the price of a 5-cent loaf of bread which yesterday was increased to 7 cents. This, despite the fact wheat declined 5 cents a bushel at Chicago Saturday and declined almost a cent yesterday.

"Another example of unjustifiable advances in necessities is the sharp advance—approximately 20 to 25 per cent—in cream prices by all the big dairies in St. Louis. Although farm prices for fluid milk have been increased, there has been no increase whatever in the cost to dairies of cream."

Given First Housing Loan

Parley Called To Study NRA Rule by Board

Gen. Johnson Believes Task Is no Longer a "One Man Job."

Proposals for the creation of a board to manage NRA will be discussed by President Roosevelt and his recovery aids at a conference later this week. Problems of all the emergency agencies also will be considered at a joint meeting of the National Emergency and National Executive Councils called for next Tuesday to familiarize the President with developments while he was away on his Hawaiian tour.

As the President was conferring yesterday with Donald Richberg, acting director of the emergency and executive councils on suggestions for reorganization of the No. 1 recovery unit, a New York shoe manufacturer charged NRA was un-Constitutional at a Federal Trade Commission hearing.

Mr. Richberg disclosed that he and Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson would lay their ideas on the next phase of NRA before the President in a few days. Any discussion of a new set-up at NRA is expected to involve consideration of the fact that the recovery act itself will expire next June.

Gen. Johnson submitted written recommendations on the reorganization program to the President before both officials departed on vacations last month. The recovery chief proposed establishment of a board on the theory that direction of NRA "no longer is a one-man job." Opposition to suggestions for transfer of the functions of NRA to the Federal Trade Commission has been voiced repeatedly by Gen. Johnson. He also has fought price-fixing except in cases of what he considered dire emergency.

Observers believed Gen. Johnson would insist on retention of the existing principle of codes of fair competition for all forms of business, but he already has set in motion machinery for reduction of the number of pacts from more than 500 to 300 at the most.

Gen. Johnson's recommendation for selection of a board has not reached the point of consideration of the men to serve on such a commission. Concerning his own appointment on such a board the recovery chief has made plain he would serve only if urged by Mr. Roosevelt.

Edward J. Ramsey, the manufacturer questioned at the FTC hearing, countered accusations that he had violated the shoe code through allowing excessive discounts by contending Congress went beyond its authority in creating NRA by conferring on the President "dictatorial" powers contrary to the intention of the framers of the Constitution. The shoe code, Mr. Ramsey protested, discriminated in favor of large manufacturers because they could give purchasers a much longer time in which to pay their bills than could small companies.

In a test case of NRA code requirements for filing of prices with code authorities the FTC heard arguments by attorneys for three rubber manufacturing companies on what evidence was admissable.

in jail, but the jail sentence was suspended. The lieutenant said he had been acting upon orders from superior officers, in commanding the troops in the registration office.

"I am a citizen and I obey the law," he said, "but I am a soldier and I obey orders."

Legislature Is Called Into Special Session

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 14 (AP).—In the midst of an armed political conflict, the Louisiana Legislature swung tonight into extraordinary session at the call of the Senator Huey P. Long-Gov. O. K. Allen administration. It was charged to pass ironclad statutes of fortifications for Long in his fight to break the power of his enemy, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, in New Orleans.

With his attempts to throttle the mayor and his opposing police force, Long and his commander of the militia, Adjt. Gen. Raymond H. Fleming, ran afoul of the courts in New Orleans. Judge Nat W. Bond today ordered civil sheriffs to hale the adjutant general before the court for sentencing under a rule of contempt.

Long laughed at the New Orleans court as he was stopped in the legislative corridors and informed that Judge Bond had held him guilty of conspiracy with Fleming, for ignoring an order of the court issued ten days ago, demanding dismissal of the troops from the voters' registration office in New Orleans.

Long Is Facetious.

"Is that so?" said the Kingfish. "By golly, I'll have to see Oscar Allen (the Governor) about that right away. Yes sir, I'll have to see him about it right away."

Judge Bond acted on a restraining order filed by Herve Racivitch and Gus Blancand, Walmsley candidates for Congress in the September 11 Democratic primary. They are opposed by Representatives Maloney and Fernandez, of the Long faction.

The Walmsley favorites claimed that their chances for nomination were damaged by Long's National Guard troopers shouldering guns in the registration office.

Judge Bond accused Adjt. Gen. Fleming of "hiding out" and avoiding service of the rule of contempt against him. The jurist likewise overruled exceptions filed by Long's counsel, claiming that the court was without jurisdiction because the Governor was not cited.

Senator Long came here today from New Orleans where his troops still held the registration office and entered the Governor's office in a joking and mock servile mood, at first knocking at Gov. Allen's executive doors and then being temporarily "denied" an audience with the Governor.

Long Cracks Whip.

Soon he went into the Governor's palatial suite and after a conference a formal call was issued for the special session to convene at 10 o'clock tonight to last 12 days.

Subjects submitted for consideration dealt largely with amending the "general powers" of the charter of the City of New Orleans and investigating its administration.

Long cracked his whip over the legislators as they plunged into session with the police power of Mayor Walmsley seriously threatened and enactment of laws guarding the registration books, taxing and election practices in prospect.

Item 10 in the formal call provided for "any resolution necessary to investigate the government of the city of New Orleans, and the State, district, local and municipal courts therein."

Roosevelt Acts Today on New Drought Policy

By Leon Dure, Jr.

As the prospect of a sharp rise in the cost of living this winter began assuming first place in official concern, the White House said the President intended to give an informal exposition of Administration plans at his first press conference since his return this morning.

That an increase of 6 to 7 per cent in living costs may be expected as the "inevitable" aftermath of the drought is conceded by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. This expectation was enhanced further yesterday when the Labor Department reported retail food prices are at their highest stage in 30 months.

Prices Compared.

In its report on costs for the two weeks ended July 31, the Labor Department said that retail food prices were 110.4 per cent of their 1913 average of 100. This compares with 90.4 per cent in April, last year, when prices were at their lowest level. It is also 5.5 per cent higher than a year ago at this time.

Already Administration officials are centering their attention on means to prevent the cost of foodstuffs from getting out of hand, and President Roosevelt is expected to have something to say on the same subject this morning. Both the White House and the AAA have been at pains to emphasize that there is no danger of an actual shortage of food.

Further assurances are expected today from President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace, who also will talk on the drought at a press conference this afternoon. At the same time, the Agriculture Department hoped to have ready its report on the status of the Nation's feed and food supply.

Meanwhile, Secretary Wallace's plan for the establishment of an "ever normal" granary, consisting of Government warehouses for food products for use in lean years, was seen as the Administration's probable solution to the problem of drought years. Under this plan, carry-overs would be maintained at safe levels to insure adequate supplies.

May Relax Control.

Heavy surpluses already existed when the crop reduction campaign was put into effect this year. But the ravages of the drought have been so great that officials already are conceding that acreage control will be relaxed for some crops next year. If crops for that year are allowed to become too heavy, then the Government would take some of the surpluses as insurance for the future.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell was among the callers at the White House yesterday. He said he reported on his recent trip to the West, during which he argued the advantages of a controlled production. "Oh, yes, there'll be plenty," he said as to the food supply.

The Weather Bureau continued to report good rains in portions of the West, but damage in most areas is beyond repair. The Agriculture Department, meantime, advised farmers not to plow up acreage which may produce hay next year, "even though they do not produce a full crop."

Under Age, Candidate Hopes Senate Will Wink at Youth

West Virginian Cites Precedent Set by Henry Clay.

Rush D. Holt believes a "Roosevelt Senate" will treat him as well in the "technical" matter of age as that august body once did Henry Clay, the Associated Press reported yesterday.

Holt, Democratic nominee for the Senate from West Virginia, is only 29. The age limit for senators, set by the Constitution, is 30, and Holt will not see his next birthday until June 19, 1935.

But yesterday he termed that a "technicality" and said if the voters choose him over Senator Henry D. Hatfield, Republican, he thinks he will take the oath when Congress convenes again in January. Henry Clay, of Kentucky, was seated when he lacked a few months of being 30.

"I can not believe a Roosevelt Senate would refuse to seat a Senator supporting the Roosevelt policies on a technicality," Holt smiled. "The Constitution says specifically that the Senate is the judge of its own membership and there is the precedent of Henry Clay."

"The Constitution says 'no person who shall not have attained the age 30 years' shall be a Senator but it does not say a Senator must be 30 years old at the time of his election. Nor does it say specifically he must be 30 at the start of his term.

"I have an opinion from one judge that this clause could be interpreted to include anyone who would reach 30 during his term."

The nominee, a slight, wiry youth with tousled hair, came to Washington, he said, to see President Roosevelt and address a Democratic meeting. He calls on the Chief Executive tomorrow.

He expressed confidence he would win in November and said he wished to make one thing clear—adding the charge had been made during the campaign—that he is not an atheist.

"How could a man be an Elk, a Moose and a cousin of a Methodist and be an atheist?" he asked.

500,000,000 Pounds of Food Are Served by U. S. to Needy

Fuel and Blankets for Winter Also Given to Thousands.

An inventory of Government food-purchasing activities showed yesterday that more than 500,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs "from soup to nuts" have been distributed by relief agencies to needy unemployed.

The Surplus Relief Corporation, charged with responsibility of feeding the hungry, reported that in its first nine months of operation it had shipped 546,374,000 pounds of surplus commodities into every State for direct family relief.

Although men and women out of work and penniless could not dine luxuriously from the Government's bill of fare, they might satisfy appetites with the following menu:

Beef soup, veal roast, beef or pork, beans, bread and butter, sliced oranges or apples, and cheese.

For breakfast one might have cereal, toast and fruit.

During winter months, relief agencies supplemented their feeding program with activities designed to make homes more cheerful. Thousands of tons of coal were purchased and shipped to needy families. Surplus cotton held by various Federal agencies was manufactured into blankets to warm many unemployed.

Farmers in the drought area received millions of bushels of feed grains—wheat, corn, oats, barley, and milo—for starving live stock.

In July the relief corporation shipped out 39,887,304 pounds of foodstuffs, as well as 307,302 yards of ticking to cover mattresses donated to the poor.

Officials were considering increasing the list of surplus commodities they will purchase to include peaches and other fruits and potatoes.

Cuba Postpones Debt Payments of all principal and interest due on or before June 30, 1939.

The amount due between 1939 and 1942 would be handled on a deferred basis.

The sugar growers were given a moratorium until 1942 on the amounts they owe the mills.

Railroads and public service companies were granted a moratorium on mortgages and bonds until 1934, but they must pay six months' interest annually.

Docks and storehouses are treated similarly under the provisions of the decree.

Farm owners and private home owners were granted deferred payment by a plan under which they pay during 1935 2 per cent of all amounts due on mortgages on or before June 30, 1935; another 2 per cent during 1936; 3 per cent in 1937, and 4 per cent for each year in 1938 and 1939.

The amounts due between Jnue 30, 1939, and June 30, 1942, would be handled on a deferred basis as would the balance due June 30, 1939.

The decree gives similar treatment to all Cuban industry.

Husband Beat Her, Wife Says

Mrs. Edmond Coolidge, Jr., Wed Two Years, Seeks Divorce.

Edmond B. Coolidge, jr., 116 Jones Mill road, Bethesda, Md., was sued for divorce yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court by his wife, Mrs. Virginia M. Coolidge.

Married in Washington on March 26, 1932, Mrs. Coolidge charges that her husband recently has become infatuated with another woman.

For two days after July 22, she asserts in her complaint, she was confined to bed because of injuries received when he beat her. On August 9, she states, Coolidge drove her from home and took their 20-months-old daughter, Martha Elizabeth, to the home of a neighbor, refusing to let either the mother or the child return.

Mrs. Coolidge, who is represented by F. Barnard Welsh, Rockville attorney, asks for custody of the child, alimony for the child's maintenance until majority, permanent alimony for herself, and counsel fees to cover cost of prosecution.

A final decree of divorce was issued yesterday in the circuit court, separating Earl A. Blundon, of Silver Spring, from his wife, Mrs. Mildred Reed Blundon. Judge Charles Woodward ordered Blundon to pay costs of the trial.

Tri-State Gang Aids Blamed For Bombing

Suspect's Wife Declares Blast Threat to Hush Witnesses.

Underlings in the notorious Tri-State gang, were responsible for the Sunday morning bombing of Club Forrest, Richmond resort, police were told last night by Mrs. Arthur Misunas, whose husband is in jail awaiting sentence for confessed participation in the murder of E. M. Huband, Federal Reserve truck driver.

Mrs. Misunas, who came from San Francisco to aid her husband, visited police headquarters at Richmond yesterday. She came direct from her husband's cell, where she had talked with him for half an hour.

She talked freely, and quoted Misunas as saying Club Forrest never would have been blasted and burned if he were not a prisoner.

"Knows Too Much."

"The club still would be there," asserted Mrs. Misunas. "Nothing would have happened there at all. It was because Arthur is sitting in his cell, and Arthur will have to take the stand at the murder trial of William Davis, and Arthur knows too much, and has talked——"

"Does your husband know who bombed the club?" Mrs. Misunas was asked.

"I can't say any more, can't you see?" replied Mrs. Misunas, shaking her head.

"I came here to help my husband in every way I can. If I talk something may happen to him—or to me. Our lives already have been threatened, you see."

"Do you think the club was bombed by friends of Davis or Mais?" police asked.

Probe Is Pushed.

Again Mrs. Misunas shook her head.

"I can't tell you any more," she said tearfully.

Acting upon Mrs. Misunas' statement, police redoubled their efforts to find the bombers of the club, who came shortly before dawn and ordered two colored caretakers off the property.

The club was closed some weeks ago, but members of the tri-State gang are alleged to have frequented it from time to time, when they operated their hijacking ring up and down the Eastern seaboard.

Fear the Misunases may talk and implicate someone who so far has kept clear of the police led to the blast, police asserted.

In Washington Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, stated he believed all the principals in the tri-State gang had been captured.

Leaders Held.

"Of course, there may be little fellows," Burke said yesterday. "But, as far as we are concerned, the mob has been pretty well cleaned up. We've got everybody we want in the case."

Mrs. Misunas' statement was interpreted in Richmond as indicating her husband knows who the bombers were. It also was regarded as establishing that the men were friends of Davis and Mais, who are awaiting trial here for the murder of Ewell Huband, Federal Reserve Bank truck driver, last March. Davis will go on trial Monday. Date of Mais' trial has not yet been set.

Club Forrest first was linked with the activities of the gang last spring, when a broadcast sent out by Federal agents named Herbert Myers, club bouncer, as an associate of Davis and Mais.

Crash Victims Recovering.

At the Richmond Hospital, where they were taken after the police car in which they were taking Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fontaine to Hustings court, overturned, Postal Inspector Leo DeWaard and Mrs. A. D. Mansfield, Washington policewoman, were reported recovering.

Detective Sergeant Floyd Truscott, driver of the machine, was cut slightly, and Mrs. Fontaine, who was back in Washington yesterday, was slightly bruised.

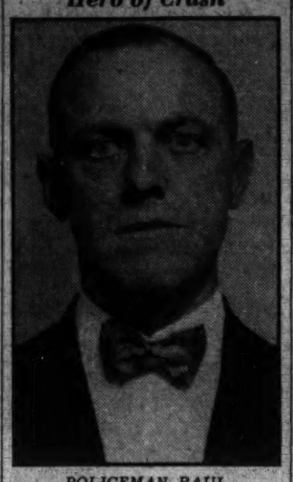
Hero of the crash, which occurred on the highway near Bowling Green, Va., was Policeman George Nicholson, driver of the convoy car.

He leaped out of his automobile and sprinkled the blazing, overturned automobile with a fire extinguisher before flames could ignite the gasoline tank.

Two Army Officers Die.

The War Department was notified yesterday of the deaths of two officers. Lieut. Col. Joseph M. T. Partello, retired, died in San Francisco, Calif., last Saturday. Lieut. Col. Philip Remington, retired, died in Windsor, Conn., on Monday.

Hero of Crash



POLICEMAN PAUL NICHOLSON,
whose courage in seizing a fire extinguisher from his convoy car and squirting the blazing, overturned police automobile carrying Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fontaine to Richmond Monday probably prevented an explosion of the gas tank, and the deaths of all its occupants.

Although the actual funds have not been set aside, the PWA has approved a loan and grant of $177,000 to Falls Church, Va., Mayor L. P. Daniel told the town council at its monthly meeting Monday night. This money will be used for the installation of a municipal sewer system.

The original loan application called for $225,000 and was made by the council several months ago. The new allocation was made with the understanding that the town and Arlington County would participate in construction of a trunk line along Four Mile Run and the use of the county disposal plant.

When the final allotment is made the town will be notified of the requirements it must meet to get the money, Mayor Daniel said, and these will entail the issuance of general obligation bonds. The town will receive a 30 per cent grant. Before the money can be obtained the question of a sewer system must be voted upon by the citizens.

School Board Member Named.

The council reelected Horace E. Brown a member of the town school board for a three-year term. Brown, at present, is chairman of the board. His new term will begin September 1.

Three building permits were issued authorizing the construction of three filling stations at the junction of the Lee boulevard cut-off and the Lee highway.

Lightning Fires Baltimore Plant

Boulevard Traffic Tied Up Hour by Blaze.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—A bolt of lightning last night was believed the cause of a fire which damaged the sand-drying plant of the United Railways Co. repair shops on the Washington boulevard at Gunpowder street.

Officials of the plant said the bolt, following a chimney, apparently ignited coal in a furnace in which there had been no fire for four days. The blaze quickly spread about the furnace room. Firemen battled it for an hour before it was controlled, and traffic was tied up on the Washington boulevard.

More than two thousand Elks had registered and indicated their intention of taking part in the parade tomorrow night. There will be four or five thousand others from adjacent cities, not in the Tri-State jurisdiction, as well as hundreds of bandsmen, in line.

The Elks and their friends staged an ox roast at the Fair Grounds today. Tonight they will have another cabaret dance. Vaudeville acts and a fashion review will be presented. The purple bubble ball, climax of the convention, will be held tomorrow night following the parade.

Two of the oldest Elks in point of years and membership in this district, Henry F. E. Dismer, 80, a member of the Washington lodge for 40 years, and Henry Mears, 82, Baltimore, a member for 43 years, are attending the convention.

Three Saved In Night Fire

Hagerstown Blaze Guts Wingert Building in Public Square.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Fire menaced the downtown business section early today and three persons were rescued by firemen when the former Wingert Building in the public square was found afire. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiles and their small child were carried down ladders from the third floor by firemen, while two other families in adjacent apartments escaped in their night clothes.

The firemen confined the blaze to one small section and the loss, aside from smoke and water, was not great. Stocks in several stores beneath the apartments were slightly damaged. The fire brought thousands of persons, many of them returning from the Elks' convention cabaret, to the scene and a heavy pall of smoke hung over the business section for hours.

New Drought Cuts West Virginia Crops

Corn Condition Reduced 59 Per Cent in Month.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—More damage has been wrought to farm crops of West Virginia by the second drought of the season, according to a survey by James B. McLaughlin, State commissioner of agriculture, and H. C. R. Stewart, statistician of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

Pastures were burned and relief gardens were seriously damaged, while crops throughout the State were stunted, the survey shows, as the result of two weeks' lack of rainfall and high temperatures. Wells were dried up on many farms and many of the small streams went dry.

At the first of the month the State corn crop was 59 per cent below its condition a month previously. It is now estimated at 10,464,000 bushels, as against 13,920,000 bushels last year. The winter wheat crop is yielding more than earlier estimates, being placed at 1,836,000 bushels, as compared with 1,798,000 bushels in 1933. The oats crop is the smallest in 26 years, being placed at 1,960,000 bushels, while the potato crop is one of the smallest in the State, being estimated at only 2,880,000 bushels, or 1,000,000 bushels less than the five-year average.

Maphis Urges FERA Institute Fight Illiteracy

University Dean Declares Schools Have Failed to Meet Problem.

By Howard Turner.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 14.—Problems of illiteracy as a part of the Federal emergency educational program were discussed in today's session of the FERA training institute at the University of Virginia.

Speaking before several hundred school officials, State emergency educational supervisors, and teachers from Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, Dr. Charles G. Maphis, dean of the University of Virginia summer school, declared the public school systems had failed to supply the minimum of instruction due every citizen.

"If they had done this job efficiently," he said, "this topic would not be a part of this program today. But they have failed, for various reasons; and in many States, for lack of proper compulsory laws, they are still failing to meet the ends for which their school systems are maintained.

Deplore Lack of Training.

"It is a great reflection on this great country of ours, committed as it is to universal education, that such vast numbers have been in the past, and many still are, deprived either from their own indifference or the careless enforcement of school laws, of elementary instruction, and are therefore classed by the census takers as illiterates."

Instructions to illiterates is included in the adult educational program to be resumed this fall. The institute, one of several being conducted throughout the country, is designed to prepare State supervisors, public officials and emergency teachers to carry relief education sponsored by the educational division of the FERA.

Other projects included in the program are vocational training, vocational rehabilitation, general adult education, worker's education, parent education and emergency nursery schools. Authorities on the various topics give special institute lectures and lead the open forum discussions.

Illiteracy Record Cited.

Cora Wilson Stewart, of the National Illiteracy Crusade, Washington, who also spoke on today's program, described the illiterate adult, and told of the National aspects of the problem.

Dr. Maphis cited the number of illiterates in the States represented in the conference. The 1930 census listed Maryland with 49,910; Virginia, 162,588; West Virginia, 62,492, and the District of Columbia, 6,611.

Dr. Maphis recommended special schools for illiterates and near illiterates. These schools, he said, should be conducted as a part of the State educational system and trained teachers provided for them. If the initial burden is too great for the State, he added, the Federal Government, as a part of its recovery and welfare program, might assist.

Justifies School Tax.

In commenting on established school systems, Dr. Maphis asserted that "the only justification for the expenditure of tax dollars for public education is the promotion of the public welfare on the theory that an educated citizen is a more valuable asset to the State than an ignorant citizen."

"While the practical value of education," he continued, "especially the higher forms, is being more and more questioned in these later years, I still believe the truth of Jefferson's statement that "whoever expects to see a government that is ignorant and at the same time free, expects what never shall nor can be.'"

Conley Plans Southern Trip In Vote Drive

Glenburnie, St. Marys and Anne Arundel Counties to Be Visited.

Baltimore, Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Dr. Charles H. Conley's campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will be carried into Southern Maryland this week, following what his backers term an encouraging tour of the lower Eastern Shore.

Thursday the Frederick physician who turned politician will speak at Glenburnie, Anne Arundel County. On Friday and Saturday he will swing through St. Marys, Calvert and Charles Counties, escorted by groups of county and district leaders.

Tonight Dr. Conley was guest of honor at a picnic of the Woodmen of the World at Laytonville, Montgomery County. He will make a brief visit to the upper Eastern Shore tomorrow to speak at a church picnic at Kennedyville, Kent County, and will return to the Western Shore Thursday.

He has virtually ceased his private medical practice to devote all of his time to campaigning throughout the State.

Leaders Hear Goldsborough.

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Addressing the largest gathering of District leaders of Kent County ever assembled, Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough this afternoon opened the last phase of his Eastern Shore campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor of Maryland.

At the Voshell Hotel, before leaving for Queen Anne's, Caroline and Wicomico counties, the former governor said in a ten-minute talk that he will not make any rash promises in his primary fight since he knows too much about government to promise things that may not be accomplished.

He refused to criticise the Ritchie administration or Harry Nice and Webster Smith, of Baltimore, his Republican opponents, and stated that if nominated he will make the best fight he can in the light of his previous experience as Governor, 20 years ago.

He said that in three campaigns in Kent County, he had not seen such a representative gathering of local leaders.

L. Bates Russell, editor of the Enterprise, presided, and among the speakers was State Senator Wallace Williams, of Cecil County, with whom Senator Goldsborough traveled from an Elkton meeting.

Fleet "Battles" at Sea, Deserting Roadstead

Norfolk, Aug. 14 (AP).—With the exception of the cruiser Concord, Hampton Roads was deserted by fighting craft today as battle and scouting force craft assembled in the roadstead over the week-end engaged in target practice and war maneuvers on the southern drill grounds, 50 miles off the Virginia Capes.

Headed by the battleship New Mexico, flagship of Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander in chief of the United States Fleet, the fighting craft will move into the roadstead this week and put back to sea again next Monday to resume battle practice.

Young West Virginia Farmers Will Operate Own Cannery

Association Headed by Boys of Ages From 17 to 20.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The Young Farmers Association has added canning to previous jobs of planting, cultivating, harvesting, marketing and financing.

A modern plant, already installed and ready for a test run this week, will be owned and operated by the Young Farmers.

The plant comprises about $1,000 worth of canning machinery and equipment. It is located in Inwood. Tomatoes, corn, beans and the succotash mixture of corn and beans, with possibly other vegetables or fruits, will be canned.

It is believed here that this group is the only band of farm youngsters over the Nation equipped to take their produce from the field to the grocers' shelves, fresh or canned, entirely by themselves.

House-to-house marketing was first tried by the boys and then selling to merchants. However, they found the house-to-house method a poor second to selling direct to the local merchant, and have now turned their energies entirely to cooperating with established merchants. A trial given roadside stands was abandoned.

Approximately $3,000 of produce was marketed last year. All this produce they grew themselves. In spite of the dry weather this year they expect the volume to be even greater.

Recently the name of this organization was changed from Future Farmers of America to Young Farmers' Association, to allow members to continue membership after leaving school. It has 46 members with several prominent farmers of the county as members and on the board of directors.

Officers are: President, James Van Metre, 20; vice president, Ted Snyder, 18; treasurer, Alfred Stanley, 17; secretary, William Noll, 19. Leighton Watson, 18, is sales manager.

G. O. P. Blocs In Frederick Reach Accord

Threatened Fight Over Committee Slate Is Averted.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Factional troubles which threatened to cause a bitter fight at the primary election September 12 over the selection of a new State committee and delegates to the State convention to nominate a candidate for Governor were ironed out at a meeting of the Frederick Republican County committee yesterday.

E. Austin James, chairman of the committee, announced that Reno S. Harp, G. Edward Myers, Eugene A. Alexander, Frederick, and Emory S. Remsberg, Jefferson, who had previously filed for State committeemen had withdrawn and that Dr. Morris A. Birely, Thurmont; William I. Renner, Rocky Ridge, and George Whalen, colored, Burkittsville, and a member to be selected from Middletown, would fill the vacancies. It was further announced that the delegates to the State convention would be selected at a conference with party leaders from different sections of the county.

The trouble was precipitated at a meeting Saturday, when announcement was made that a State committee composed of Mr. Harp, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Myers, Mr. Remsburg, Dr. Charles F. Goodell, this city and Miss Helena Stauffer, Walkersville, had filed for the committee. It was charged that the same wing of the party had also selected delegates to the State convention, were in favor of holding a county convention to nominate candidates for county offices and were also backing certain candidates for office.

Half a dozen speakers protested sharply against what they characterized as an effort on part of certain organization leaders to run the affairs of the party without consulting other leaders. A resolution was finally adopted empowering the chairman to confer with city and country leaders to recommend a new committee and delegates.

From a registered vote of 28,241 in Frederick County, Democrats claim a majority of 69. Some years ago Republicans had a registered majority of more than 900. Both parties are looking forward to an active campaign and a close vote for most of the offices is expected.

Insanity Increases During Depression

Virginia Report Shows Drop in 1932-33.

Richmond, Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Admissions to Virginia insane asylums increased alarmingly between 1930 and 1932, the heart of the depression, but dropped again in 1932-33, it was shown in a State Department of Public Welfare report.

Virginia G.O.P. Wages Battle In 2d District

Hopes for Victory Over New Deal Candidate in House Race.

By C. B. Carr.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 14.—Led by a young, militant member of their party, Republicans of the Second Virginia Congressional District, of which Norfolk is the largest city, are waging a Congressional campaign on a platform declaring that they will "protect, preserve and defend the Constitution and the American form of Government."

By acclamation, the Republicans have nominated Geroudl M. Rumble, Norfolk attorney for the House of Representatives. He will oppose Colgate Darden, Norfolk Democrat, standing for reelection.

Republican leaders say Mr. Rumble and a reorganized district organization will return the district to the party.

Loyal to New Deal.

Darden seeks reelection on the record of the Roosevelt Administration, all of whose measures he supported except the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty. Rumble says he is standing "100 per cent" on a platform declaring for the return to the form of Government "along the path chartered by its founders, largely Virginians, and marked out for us by our charter of liberty."

In answer to the claims of the New Deal that it will win the war against depression, Mr. Rumble's platform declares that "as the other alternative we believe that by sane, sound, constitutional methods, with rigid government economy, that, like England, we can win the war against depression, without destroying the very foundation on which our government is built, and on which it has prospered for 150 years."

The unemployment situation in Norfolk will not be favorable to the Democrats, political observers declare. Norfolk is a city of 129,000 and a recent report on unemployed showed that heads of 4,000 families are jobless. Democrats state that the territory around Suffolk is the peanut center of the world and that as a result of AAA crop reduction programs, peanut farmers will receive a minimum of three cents a pound for their product this year. This price, it is said, is three times what it was a year ago.

Count on Job Gains.

The Democrats are also reported as hopeful the unemployment situation in and around Norfolk will show marked improvement before fall. In this connection they point out that the Norfolk Navy Yard will start August 15 to lay the keels of two new destroyers, which operations, they claim, will mean the employment of much additional labor. Private concerns here are also said to be lining up a large volume of maritime repair work.

During the last several years, some socialistic sentiment has been developing in the Second District, although it is generally believed that this has not reached the point where it will be a factor in the coming election. The Socialists, however, have nominated a Congressional candidate, George Rohlsen, of Norfolk, on a platform calling for a "cooperative Commonwealth."

The Second District has for years been regarded as a Democratic stronghold. When Menalcus Lankford (Republican), Norfolk, defeated Representative Joseph T. Deal in 1928, Democrats linked the victory with the Hoover landslide. However, when Mr. Lankford again defeated Mr. Deal in 1930, the Democratic leaders are said to have taken notice of a strong Republican vote.

Kelly's Resignation Demanded by Holt

West Virginia Democratic Head Backed Shaver.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.). As a result of the recent bitter Democratic primary election campaign, Rush D. Holt, of Weston, party nominee for United States Senator, has called upon Robert G. Kelly, of Charleston, Democratic State chairman, to resign that position.

While Mr. Holt declined to make any statement on the demand, Mr. Kelly stated: "It is a matter affecting party welfare about which I do not care to comment at the present time."

The demand for Mr. Kelly's resignation results from his open support of Clem Shaver, of Fairmont, for the party nomination for United States Senator, for which there were nine contestants. Mr. Kelly called upon the Democratic organizations of the State to support the Shaver candidacy, explaining that he was informed by James A. Farley, National chairman, that this would be desirable in the hope of concentrating upon one candidate and uniting the party. He stated that so far as he was personally concerned, he would remain neutral in the senatorial race.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ONLY a few gaping redcaps, itinerant salesmen and early loiterers stood still yesterday morning to watch ten smartly-garbed young women stroll through the gates at Union Station.

Only one C. B. S. official, a few railroad people and this department cared to break slumbers to view for the first time on any platform the pick of the Nation's singing and acting talent chosen by judges from 20,000 candidates to compete tomorrow in New York for the finals of Columbia's "Hollywood Hotel" contest.

Well, the girls arrived. And with only a few moments on their hands while their train wheezed, several scampered out to the station plaza to view the Capitol dome; others grabbed sandwiches while the rest hung on to the skirts of their Chicago governess, a very winsome young lady, indeed.

Among the girls who will face judges, including Peggy Wood, actress; Gene Buck, composer; Ferde Grofe, composer; Fay Bainter, actress, and Beatrice Lillie, English comedienne, was our own Helen Ault, winner of WJSV's contest. Her father, who is head of the Consolidated Cab Co., was there to meet and wish her luck.

From these girls, who stopped here yesterday on their way to New York, will be chosen tomorrow one lucky lassie to play a radio role opposite Dick Powell in Columbia's forthcoming air show, "Hollywood Hotel," scheduled for the winter. Left to right, back row—Dell Adams, of Windsor, Ontario; Zella Sexton, of Junction City, Kans.; Doris Shumate, of St. Louis; Rowene Williams, of Chicago, and Betty Kelly, of San Francisco. Front row—Ludi Mai Sensabaugh, of Dallas; Betty Brunn, of Columbus, Ohio; Margaret Chesick, of Charlotte, N. C., and Helen Mack Ault, of Washington.

ASIDE from chatting with the girls about California weather, Denver journalists, Chicago winds and Montreal night clubs, there was but little time to note anything but the fact that Columbia has arrayed some smart looking girl for the finals.

While in New York, C. B. S. officials, headed by Kate Smith, will outdo themselves for four days showing the lassies the sights of the famous town. After they've tried swimming, tennis, golf, night clubbing, interviews, tours, luncheons, theater parties and visits to Columbia's Radio Playhouse, such of their number who still feel like it will face mikes at 8 p. m. tomorrow for the final auditions.

Each contestant will draw a number in the presence of one official just before approaching the mike. No name or identification will be known until "No.——" will be announced as the winner of a radio role opposite Dick Powell.

Helen Ault, by the way, looked swell and very chic in a brown ensemble. Just as the train got in motion she hopped aboard with cheers from this department and silent prayers from her father, who expects that Washington will be heard from in the finals.

JOHNNY GREEN (the "In the Modern Manner" lad)—"I believe very few people—apart from those directly involved in the process—realize the great changes wrought in orchestrations of popular music by the advent of the microphone. As in vocal work this sensitive mechanical ear reveals any thinness of orchestration; all bare spots, so to speak. The result has been that for broadcasting purposes orchestration of every instrument has had to be refined, enriched and embroidered. In fact, the microphone has revolutionized and developed orchestration of popular music far beyond the wildest dream of jazz arrangers a few years ago." (Ed. Note—This is about "orchestrations" and it sounded pretty good. And we know Johnny's cousin, too, so that's why our editorial pencil withheld its dastardly punishment.)

Adelaide Moffett (daughter of James A. Moffett, housing administrator, who emerged semifinal runner-up in "Hollywood Hotel" contest.)—"I did not finish with the cup."

Jeanie Lang (informed she was going to be costarred with Buddy Rogers.)—"Was I excited, and did my temperature soar!"

Georgie Price (singer and m'c'er.)—"One of the greatest accomplishments in radio is that of jockeying the microphone and the audience simultaneously."

Richard Himber (he waves a wand)—"I think it's about time the maestri found a new word for 'press agents!'"

Emery Deutsch (Gypsy violinist)—"There is a definite trend along 'Tin Pan Alley' toward the slow, continental type of melody . . . the style of haunting Gypsy compositions."

WALTER WINCHELL, who styles himself "Mrs. Winchell's little boy, Walter," returns to N. B. C. networks on September 2 for his third season of Sunday night frolics.

As before, New York's bad boy reporter will scare us all with exclusive lore about persons, reflections on life, and the positive low-down on what's it all about.

N. B. C. through its ever-energetic, enterprising, commercial production manager, Shannon Allen, unearthed recently a fist full of local talent due for a debut tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. over WRC.

You'll hear smooth harmony, an amusing script, guitar music, delightful impersonations of Chinatown characters and "Grunty," who does some smooth grunting and some intriguing bass notes in the Mills Brothers manner.

Billed as "Spade Flush," the program, the result of auditions over WRC's "Airbreaks" Saturday night spot, will be the entire work of five colored youngsters, all in their 20's. They've written the script, arranged the music and delved for original characterizations pointing to something that should be worth listening to for a change.

Every one who has heard them says their stuff, in the vernacular of the city room, is a "wow." Samuel Woods plays the guitar. Robert Glenn booms the bass notes and plays "Grunty." Perry Davidson, script writer and impersonator of the Chinese, harmonizes with his sisters, Mildred and Beatrice Davidson.

None has faced a mike before. Shannon Allen says they're "original." And Allen knows pretty much what he is talking about.

Whitecaps.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

The "Strange Animal" Takes a Man

Because Uncle Joe and Aunt Judy were coming over to spend the day, Aunt Lindy was up and stirring pretty early Sunday morning. And she soon had Tom out of bed, though he grumbled about having to get up so early on Sunday morning when there wasn't anything to do.

"Even Hound Dog isn't up, and it looks like you could let me sleep as late as he does," he said to Aunt Lindy.

Until then, Aunt Lindy hadn't thought of the dog, but she had no idea of letting anybody stay in bed after she got up, and so she stuck her head out of the kitchen window and called: "Here dog, here dog, here dog." She expected to hear him bark an answer and to see him come out of his house, but neither of these things happend. She called again, but still there was no noise or movement out at Hound Dog's house. She had her hands in the biscuit dough, so she couldn't very well go out, but she called to Tom to hurry up and get on his clothes and go out and see what was the matter with the dog.

When Tom opened the dog house door, and found Hound Dog lying there all tied up, and a muzzle on his nose, he was about as badly scared as if he had found Blacky there was no ham there. No wonder there was no ham. Just look at those tracks! She didn't have to strain her eyes to see them, for they were plain enough, but they were not the tracks of a man. They were made by that "strange animal" that Uncle Joe had told her about!

You have heard of people being "fighting mad." Well, that's just how mad Aunt Lindy was about that ham, and she told Tom and Jay Bird what she would have done to that robber if she had been awake when he came.

"And that means we have got to eat some more fresh meat for dinner, and I had my mouth all fixed for the old ham. How I would like to wring that robber's neck!"

And then she turned to Hound Dog and said, "Sic 'em, pup, sic 'em." And Hound Dog took out across the field, just as if he knew he had the right track, and he was making an awful lot of noise until he got clear out of hearing.

(Copyright, 1934, by The Washington Post Publishing Co.)

Bear in there, and he almost screamed for Aunt Lindy to "come here quick!" Aunt Lindy didn't let the biscuit dough hold her back any longer, but came running out to the dog house.

"Just look," Tom said, pointing to Hound Dog, and Aunt Lindy looked. She could see right away that he wasn't dead, for he raised his head up and began nodding it and trying to bark.

"Take your knife and cut those strings off of him," Aunt Lindy said. In a minute the strings were off, and Hound Dog kicked his legs a little to get the cramps out of them, and then he got up and jumped out of the house and began smelling tracks. After turning around and around several times in front of his house, he seemed to find the scent, and started out for the spring house, with Aunt Lindy and Tom right behind him. When he got to the door it was shut, but he stood in front of it, and barked and barked just like he would if he had treed a 'coon.

Tom came and peeped through the lattice, but he didn't see anything inside, and so he opened the door, but still he didn't see anything—not even a ham! No, sir;

Russian Realism.

A brief dispatch from Moscow adds to the growing evidence that Russia is slowly but surely taking the steps necessary again to become a nation enjoying free intercourse with the other nations of the world. After many pleas, which she rejected as the lures of the capitalistic spider for the entrapment of the communistic fly, she is now joining the entirely unofficial Institute of Pacific Relations. This in itself may seem a minor step, inasmuch as it entails no governmental pledges, but to those aware of the importance of the institute it is a significant departure for the U. S. S. R.

This institute, which binds no member nations by the opinions it may express, has been in existence since shortly after the war. The United States, Canada, Great Britain, Australia, Japan and China—all have "national councils" in the institute and send representatives to its biennial sessions of discussion and study. Everything it does is informal and unofficial. But everything in its program is directed toward the forwarding of good relationships between the countries which have a direct interest in the Pacific area.

Several times in the past the institute, whose good work is manifest in its ably edited Pacific Affairs, has invited Russia to establish a national council. But each time Russia has refused, indubitably because it has felt in the past that the council is somehow entangled with the maintenance of capitalistic and imperialistic policies in the East. Whether Russia has now come to realize that this criticism is "the bunk," or whether it means that the Bolshies despair of ending capitalism by the nose-thumbing process, is perhaps less important than the fact that Russia is joining the institute. The step adds confirmation to the reports that Russian membership in the League of Nations will not now be long delayed.

The King Over The Water.

Monarchs and chieftains in exile are not immune to plebeian emotions. Banished rulers may keep up shadowy courts; may retain their former fortunes. But they are no more proof against the soul-disease of nostalgia than is the meanest immigrant. Napoleon fretted to death at St. Helena. And Abd El Krim is now begging Napoleon's successors to let him return to Morocco.

For years this fiery Arab defied both French and Spanish armies. When his prowess finally succumbed to overwhelming odds he was sent to Reunion Island, a lonely fastness in the Indian Ocean. There he is guaranteed an income on which he can live in luxury. He was even allowed to take with him two of his many wives.

Nevertheless, Abd El Krim wants to return to his desert home. He petitions the French Republic humbly. He points out that he has been well-behaved on Reunion. He promises to be well-behaved in the Riff. He will promise anything if only he is permitted to go home.

It would be easy to make sport of this petition, easy to wonder if its cause is not the wives who share Krim's exile—or the wives who don't. Or it would be easy to wonder if his plea is not a subterfuge for launching another Moroccan war. Indeed, the Quai d'Orsay reports that there is "not much chance" of granting his request.

But whatever other motives may inspire him, nobody who knows how "hillmen love their hills" will doubt his basic sincerity. Nobody will be skeptical who has himself been so blessed—and cursed—with love of the land that bore him as to carry into exile the idealized memory of his boyhood home.

The French Negative.

The Paris Temps is what the French euphemistically call a "semiofficial" newspaper. This means that what it says editorially on national policies is with good reason accepted as the opinion of the government. Now—with Austria balanced on the tight-rope of desperation, with monarchist Chancellor Schuschnigg rushing to Budapest, with monarchist Vice Chancellor von Starhemberg conferring in Italy, with all Europe consequently talking of a Hapsburg restoration—the Temps delicately intimates that such a restoration would not be suitable to France.

Declarations of what would not be suitable to France in the affairs of central Europe have been all too frequent since the end of 1918. Just for a change it would be refreshing to have Paris keep quiet on the subject. In that unlikely event the rest of the world might be able to get a clear idea of what sort of rearrangement is suitable to central Europe, which to the detached observer would seem to be a part of the problem worth considering, assuming that constructive solution is desired.

Alternatively, it might be in order for the French foreign office to substitute some affirmative suggestions for Austria's pitiable plight. Union with Germany is vetoed; so is union with Hungary; so is Hapsburg restoration. What would France be pleased to permit, understanding, of course, that the self-determination so enthusiastically applied to Alsace and Lorraine is out of the picture?

Some Arresting Parallels.

German editors, as shown by their current writings, are deriving satisfaction from what they conceive to be "more than passing resemblances between the policies of President Roosevelt and those of Chancellor Hitler." To this seemingly far-fetched parallel the first reaction of nearly every American will be one of strong resentment. And perhaps it would be better for our National peace of mind if we stopped at that first reaction, refusing to be curious about the arguments which the Germans have to offer in substantiation.

One of the most interesting of these arguments centers on the willingness of the American people, for all their vaunted individualism, to accept Presidential leadership in experimental fields without any serious analysis, question or debate. Mr. Roosevelt, German observers assert, is obviously "Der Fuehrer" of this country, just as Hitler is "the leader" for Germany. In both countries public opinion has largely ceased to be critical and there is a general acquiescence in any program, workable or unworkable, which may be handed down by centralized authority.

As a result, the Germans point out, "the liberalistic business system" is being progressively surrendered to the encroachments of state control. (In Germany, "liberal" is now a term of contempt.) In both countries executive leadership has taken the form of governmental aggrandizement at the expense of individual initiative. In both countries a superficial conception of the welfare of the average man, and a questionable assumption that it is the duty of the state to manage his life, is uncritically accepted as ample justification for the trend. In both countries the emphasis is on a National socialism which is to be carried out by the executive without any direct mandate from the electorate. Acceptance after the event is regarded as equivalent to approval in advance.

Other imaginative parallels, as seen by the Germans, are equally thought-provoking. The press of the Reich comments with approval on the "red-hunting" which the American Legion and other private organizations are sponsoring. Of course, all American teachers are not Nazified, but from the German viewpoint we are making good progress in that direction. Exploitation of Moscow's "subversive propaganda" has been a boon to Hitler's program. It is intimated that the same tactics might prove useful in transforming the United States to a dictatorship.

There is great satisfaction across the Rhine in the current indications that Constitutional guarantees and traditional liberal concepts can so easily be ignored by groups of California vigilantes and similar semimilitary formations. In this connection it is asserted that "Silver Shirts" and other direct-action units are gaining in strength throughout this country. Since money to this end has come from Germany, the wish may here be father to the thought.

One fundamental difference between the development of Fascism in the United States and Germany is noted by commentators in the latter country. In Germany, it is said, the political transformation from a liberal republic to a national socialist dictatorship came first, with economic reorganization following the overthrow of parliamentary government. In the United States, says a German editor, "the structural change takes its initiative from the economic side."

Clear-thinking Americans do not need to be told by foreign observers that when the economic changes have been carried far enough the political revolution will follow automatically. That method of procedure is much more subtle and tortuous than the road which Germany has followed. But there are more ways than one of killing a cat.

To Be Or Not To Beebe.

Dr. Beebe has been indulging in his annual summer-time dives into the warm waters of Bermuda, and the other day he arose from the depths with a shattered illusion in his hand. Sharks, he said, do not attack men. In fact, the learned scientist declared that he could not even get a 5-foot shark to fight after he had poked said shark in the ribs.

He was capturing a puffer fish when the shark came along and poked his nose into the affair. "Go away," said the doctor, and lo and behold, that is just what the shark did. Without so much as a snap of the jaw he disappeared when Dr. Beebe tickled him with the iron end of his fish net.

"Now you can see how little reason we have to be afraid of sharks," he said, telling his story.

We would not even hint that the doctor was exaggerating. He was there and ought to know. But consistent students of the rotogravures, who must often have seen Dr. Beebe posing in his bathing suit, will perhaps look further into the shark's reactions. From the strictly carnal viewpoint one can imagine a more satisfying meal.

New England Tragedy.

Two institutions born in New England have perhaps had more to do with American culture and politics than any others. They are the town meeting and the general store. They date from earliest times; our literature is full of references to them; they have inspired artists, emotionalized orators, and placidly challenged the onrush of both the New Deal and the chain store. Here, in short, are democratic forums that have persisted even unto the present degenerate day.

For goodness knows how long the postoffice of the town of Stevenson, Conn., has been in the general store, owned and operated by Messrs. Edwin Twist and George Burr. Under Republicans and Democrats alike, Mr. Burr for years sorted out the mail, glanced at the postcard messages, and handled the mail order catalogue each spring and fall. When poor Mr. Burr passed on recently everybody expected that good Mr. Twist would still handle the mail. But Postmaster General Farley heard of a deserving Democrat and, Mr. Twist, being a Republican, gave this interloper the job. The new postmaster has no general store. The office will be in his home!

Faced with this unprecedented change, the town of Stevenson arose. More than 100 townsfolk have petitioned for the return of the office to the general store, the cracker barrel and the pot-bellied stove. If Mr. Farley remains adamant, it is difficult to say what will happen. If he is wise he will grant the petition. For the New Deal may change the economic order and do what it wills with East and South and West. But to defy the sanctity of the general store in a New England village is something else again. It is what no other Administration has ever dared to do. It is what no wise Administration will ever dare to do.

The Stock Exchange Rules.

The initial instructions issued by the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission have been promulgated on the admirable theory that self-regulation, if honestly conducted, is the most desirable form of regulation. More or less technical in nature, the pronouncements call for expulsion of firms which may violate the new regulatory law, for the signing of a pledge of compliance with the commission's rulings, and for enforcement, as far as possible, of such compliance on the part of individual members. That these rules are reasonable in nature is attested by the report that only one amendment to the present constitution of the Stock Exchange seems to be necessary in order to insure the full compliance of its membership.

A considerable amount of detailed information about the stock exchanges, individual members, and the securities listed, is demanded. But these requirements are more a systemization of existing rules than an imposition of new restrictions. The commission, in short, is carefully observing promises to avoid unnecessary interference with the operation of the securities market. It seeks to avoid addition to the obstacles hampering economic recovery.

Perhaps more significant than the initial rulings is the statement of Chairman Kennedy to the effect that the old rule of caveat emptor still has meaning. He warns that the controls which are being set up over the trading of securities in no way guarantee the merits of any listed stock. Keen judgment and an analytical understanding of the market are not supplanted by the new protection afforded buyers. This warning is not superfluous.

Mary Austin.

Mary Austin had high claims to the attention and affection of her public. She did more to advance the earlier cause of feminism than many figures now better known therein. Her best novels were forerunners of that "pioneer" type which, since then, has become almost excessively popular. And she wrote fiction that brought its characters to life through their author's keen observation and through a clarity of style as grateful to readers as it is rare with authors.

Finally, from the lips of aged men and women in out-of-the-way places, she gathered together, by long labor and tireless tact, a vast collection of unwritten Indian legends and lost Spanish literature—a lasting service to our native folklore. For these three things she will be remembered after most of those who followed her trail to the Southwest have been forgotten.

Sign Him Up!

It probably is utterly futile to be annoyed by the leap of that snake-bitten Carolina preacher from pulpit to network. But in spite of that it is difficult to suppress the exasperation that arises in our Tory breast. Here was Pastor Teester, safe in his mountain fastness, defying rattlesnakes in the name of Faith, and preaching convincing sermons to his homespun flock. Then, suddenly, he is overwhelmed with the American spirit and is lured from his rocky pastures and wooded haunts to stand before the ubiquitous microphone. Somehow it's all as ill-fitting as Mr. Teester's new store clothes.

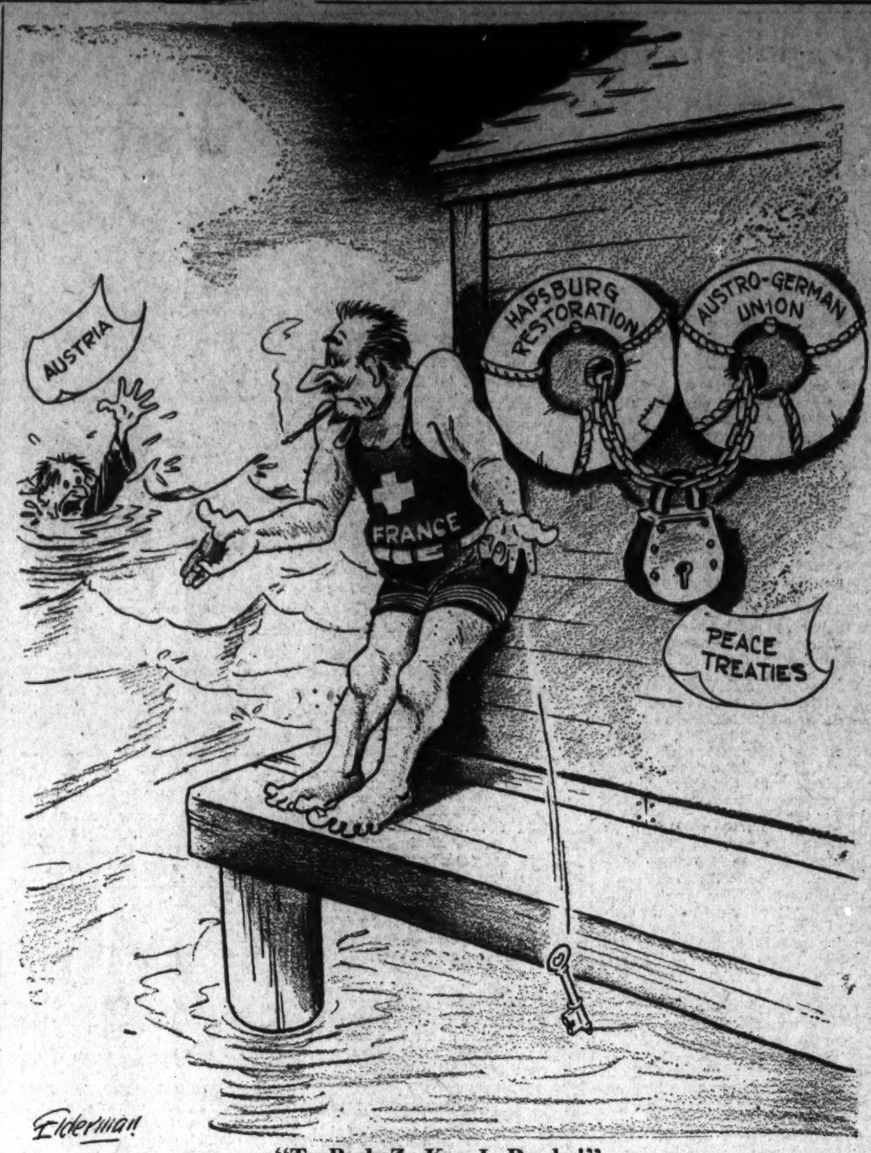
The American people will do almost anything to escape from thinking, and our inherent lack of discrimination in this frenzied flight is forever making itself manifest. It seems immaterial who is chosen as lamb for the slaughter of the great god Publicity. It may be the father of a bandit, the mother of quintuplets, the baby of a sugar-daddy, a flagpole sitter, or just an ordinary individual who happened to poison a husband or wife in a moment of pique. What matter? As soon as he or she gets his or her name in the paper, along comes a city slicker with a contract in his hand!

But it doesn't do any good to get hot under the collar about it. We speak much more in sorrow than in anger. There was something very moving about that mountaineer defying the venom in his arm, so long as he waved it in a little chapel of the hills. But just as soon as he began talking over a National hook-up, well, at that moment his "faith" became moronic. The preacher can't be blamed for seeking a wider audience. But he lost both his rustic dignity and his evangelical fervor when he succumbed to the lure of Publicity, the bane of American life.

It may be just as well that the average man has to keep his nose to the grindstone most of the time; otherwise he'd probably go around with it stuck up in the air too much.

Many a person hangs on to life, such as it is, merely out of curiosity to see what the samhill will happen next. This explains why women outlive men.

What this country needs is a good bill collector.



"To Bad, Ze Key Is Perdu!"

"The Lost Church" Stirs Our Readers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos your editorial about the earlier church at the site of St. John Lateran, John J. O'Connor makes a clear statement of the Petrine Claims of the Roman Catholic faith. But he makes it as if there were no other side to the question.

Without examining the disputed interpretation of that passage in the Gospels whereon these claims are based, and without citing other New Testament passages which conflict with such interpretation, may I call attention to one undisputed fact? There is some debate as to whether Rome was ever the apostolic seat of St. Peter; there is no debate about his having presided as Bishop of Antioch for seven years before that traditional administration of the Roman See. It could, therefore, be well argued that the present Orthodox Patriarch of Antioch is the prelate "in direct line of succession" to the claims made for St. Peter — though, of course, no Orthodox would so argue because the Orthodox hold that the church is a living organism of which Christ, and Christ only, is the head.

Mr. O'Connor calls you to task for assuming that the Saint-Emperor Constantine "helped establish" the hierarchy of the Undivided Church. Of course, "all power in the church was immediately conferred by Christ upon the Apostles," but their episcopal successors were "established" in the state (that is—as Webster defines the term "established"—made stable or firm) by Constantine the Great, preceding whose historic action in regard to Christianity they had no standing in civil law.

BASIL NOCOLSKY.
Washington, Aug. 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many letters to your paper commend your staff of able writers. Let me remark one of your careful readers, a certain John J. O'Connor.

Up here in the hills of southern Pennsylvania I have neither the time nor the means to consult reliable sources for exact names and dates, and so I am glad there is a "Johnny-on-the-Spot" to detect, not mere inaccuracies, but fundamental errors in some of your editorials that touch upon historical, religious truth. I refer to his letter on your editorial "The 'Lost' Church" August 8, and the article on Mexico.

(REV.) URVAN ADELMAN,
O. M. Cap.
Salisbury, Pa., Aug. 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent Post editorial appears a letter from John J. O'Connor in which he assails an editorial wherein reference was made to the first Pope as reigning at Rome 300 years after the death of Christ. He follows with a curious array of argument.

A study of church history shows that the first Bishop of Rome to assume the title of Pope was Adrian I in the last quarter of the eighth century, as shown in Abbe Guettee's book, "The Papacy." Prior thereto the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Rome comprised southern Italy and the Islands of Sicily, Sardinia, and Corsica, as stated in Rufinus' Ecclesiastical History, published in the fourth century. In the north of Italy, the Bishop of Milan had independent authority. That there was no Pope early in the seventh century is proved by the following excerpt from a letter sent by Gregory the Great, then Bishop of Rome, to Eulogius, Bishop of Alexandria, and Anastasius, Bishop of Antioch, severely criticizing an alleged attempt by Bishop John of Constantinople to become the head of the universal Christian Church (in Letters of Gregory the Great, Benedictine Edition, Book V; see also Book VII, Epistle 31):

"As your Holiness, whom I particularly venerate, well knows, this title of universal was offered by the Holy Council of Chalcedon to the bishop of the apostolic see which by God's grace I serve. But none of my predecessors would use this impious word, because in reality, if a patriarch be called universal this takes from all the others the title of patriarch. Far, very far, from every Christian soul be the wish to usurp anything that might diminish, however little, the honor of his brethren!"

Being of part Irish ancestry myself, I fancy it may be interesting to Mr. O'Connor to know that Ireland had an Independent Christian Church until forced into the Papacy by King Henry II of England, and his Normans, after they had conquered the island in 1172. X. Y. Z.
Clarendon, Va., Aug. 13.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Your editorial on the "Lost Church," which one of your readers finds "unhistorical," is not only historically correct (substantially), but biblically correct. The head of the Apostolic Church at Jerusalem, immediately after the crucifixion of Christ, was "James, the Lord's Brother." To him both St. Peter and St. Paul came with their differences and he "gave sentence" or judgment (Acts xv:19). There seems to have been no assumption of superior powers accorded to any of the apostles, save as the men themselves, as in case of St. Paul, showed intelligence and divine guidance in dealing with hitherto untried methods to evangelize the world."

Following the Apostolic Church came the Apostolic Fathers, which ushered in the Greek element, which gave an era of Greek domination as well as Greek interpretation of fundamental doctrines. But present-day Protestantism more nearly follows the Greek than it does the later Roman Church in both polity and spirit.

J. O. KNOTT.
Washington, Aug. 11.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Woe to the editorial writer who dares to touch on a controversial religious subject: Here is Mr. John J. O'Connor ascribing to you "two fundamental errors" in your editorial on "The Lost Church," whereas many of your readers would characterize Mr. O'Connor's "corrections" as themselves the fundamental errors. Whether or not the Popes hold their power directly of St. Peter is, of course, one of the questions over which controversy has raged these many centuries. On each side of that controversy are arguments that are absolutely convincing to their proponents, but leave their adversaries cold and unimpressed. That is one of the commonest of psychological phenomena. For example, I have never been able to understand what Gregory the Great could have meant by his denunciation of John of Constantinople, as late as 589, when the latter called himself the universal patriarch, and Gregory's statement that no patriarch was universal—if Gregory and his predecessors already regarded themselves as the heads of all Christendom. But I have no doubt there is an answer waiting.

As to the statement that Constantine "helped establish the hierarchy of Rome," it seems to me that Mr. O'Connor misinterpreted your meaning. Certainly, if "establish" is taken in its primary meaning of making stable or firm, there is no fundamental error in that statement. Constantine, and not the Pope, convened the Nicene Council, in 381, which refuted the great Arian heresy denying the divinity of our Lord and reaffirmed the Nicene Creed.

But, Mr. Editor, I trust you have now seen the error of your ways in having the audacity to touch on matters of church history in an innocent editorial. It is sure to put you between Scylla and Charybidis. Your situation reminds me of a story told by the late Bishop Willmer, of Louisiana, concerning a colored preacher who was scolding his congregation. He closed by saying that in life there were only two roads to take, and exhorted his hearers to make their selection then and there. "One road," he said, "leads to perdition, and the other road leads to damnation." Whereupon an old colored brother rose up and called out, "If dem is the roads, den I'll take to the woods!" The woods for you, Mr. Editor, if you begin to determine what are and what are not "fundamental errors" in religious controversy!

Wheat Speculation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of August 10, "Nice for Speculators," is very timely—but why not mention wheat? In one month, wheat has advanced about 21¼ cents per bushel. "Nice for Speculators," but the poor consumer will have it to pay.

There is an abundance of wheat, sufficient to last the home consumers at least two years. Silver has advanced in the last month 2½ cents. Your quotation of August 10 is 49¼ cents; the Government is buying silver at 50 cents; the speculator would profit ¾ cents, which all the people will pay. Recently in your columns, Ralph West Robey complained about the speculators making no money trading in silver. The speculator in wheat will profit 21¼ cents per bushel, which the poor consumer will have to pay.

Why not curb the speculator in wheat? My figures were taken from your market quotations.

"A Fair Chance."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an Englishwoman, and therefore a lover of fair play, let me congratulate you on your recent article, "Picture of a President." I am a constant reader of The Post, and enjoy everything in it, excepting the nasty little sarcastic knocks so frequently given to a man of such high caliber as President Roosevelt, who is working against such odds to help the very people who try to block him at every turn.

I wish that for the next two years the people of this country would cultivate a little of the English spirit, "The King can do no wrong" and so give the man whom the majority elected a fair chance to show them how he wants to help them.

Street Names.

I have yet to . . . show the futility of trying to commemorate a hero by making a street his namesake . . . Who, passing through Cromwell road, ever thinks of Cromwell, except by accident? What journalist ever thinks of Wellington in Wellington street? In Marlborough street what policeman remembers Marlborough? In St. James's street has any one ever fancied he saw the ghost of a pilgrim wrapped in a cloak, leaning on a staff?

Other ghosts are there in plenty. The phantom chariot of Lord Petersham dashes down the slope nightly. Nightly Mr. Ball Hughes appears in the bow-window of White's. At cock-crow Charles James Fox still emerges from Brook's. Such men as these were indigenous to the street. Nothing will ever lay their ghosts there. But the ghost of St. James—what should it do in that galley? . . .

Of all the streets that have been named after famous men, I know but one whose namesake is suggested by it. In Regent street you do sometimes think of the regent; and that is not because the street is named after him, but because it was conceived by him, and was designed and built under his auspices, and is redolent of his character and his time. From this redolence I deduce that when a national hero is to be commemorated by a street we should ask him to design the street himself. Assuredly, the mere plastering-up of his name is no mnemonic.

Great Snakes!

Postoffice, Wednesday.

ANYHOW, there is one business that is picking up: the snake business.

And there is another that is even beating the snake business: the lizard industry.

But these industrial improvements are not without their darker side. They are seriously alarming certain eminent experts:

Fashion is responsible—and Fashion always means (we don't know why) Fashion for Women.

According to a recent bulletin of the Science Service, a thoroughly reliable agency, "the fashion of using the skins of snakes and lizards for shoes, handbags and even for dresses and hats is creating a number of unusual problems for zoologists."

About time!

It appears that the Reptile Skins Committee of the Imperial Institute of London—apparently a special committee called into feverish being by the present crisis—has collected figures which demonstrate a vast increase in the total of reptile skins exported annually by India alone. For the year 1932 it was a mere matter of some 2,500,000, which did not seriously alarm the remaining reptiles of that once well reptile-stocked country. But it also appears that last year the figures had risen to 4,500,000—and that the snakes and lizards and the snake-lovers and the lizard-lovers (not to be confused with snake charmers and lounge-lizards) are at last beginning to worry.

"By far the largest trade," says Science Service, "is in lizard skins. Of these, 4,248,480 were exported from Calcutta last year." The Calcutta export totals under three heads were listed thus:

Crocodiles	72,213
Pythons	6,112
Other snakes	56,789

And, believe it or not, "reptile skin exports from British Malaya have increased from 9 tons in 1931 to 1,749 tons in 1933!"

* * *

Is it any wonder that feeling runs high? How would you like it if foreign traders and alien exploiters came over here and rushed all the rattlers off to Italy to make a Roman holiday?

But it is the sentiments of those zoologists with which the present Science Service bulletin is chiefly concerned. There's H. W. Parker, Assistant Keeper of Zoology at the British Museum—where zoology surely needs a keeper—and member of the Imperial Institute's Reptile Skin Committee: he used to favor the nefarious trade "so long as certain protective measures were observed." But now he considers that nearly all snakes "should be protected by law during their breeding season, while the slaughter of young snakes should be prevented by imposing a minimum size limit—just as you might say, "same like lobsters."

Moreover, Mr. Parker has quite as much sympathy for the little lizards as he has for the ruthlessly sacrificed snakes. No lizards should be killed, he pleads, which are of less than 7 inches maximum girth. And then he darts back to his snakes with the declaration that "the minimum permissible width for the skins of boa constrictors and pythons ought to be 8 inches."

* * *

That is the zoological aspect of the case.

There is another.

We have always wondered what snakes were for. Of course, we know that they provided pleasant thrills when observed from the safe side of thick plate glass or fine wire mesh. We have also always been aware that there are some people who get some sort of thrill—presumably pleasant — from seeing other people, circus people, twine the graceful creatures around their necks or insert the snake's head in the human mouth. But we could not quite believe that snakes were created merely in order to earn a living for their charmers or even to produce excitement for the charmers' patrons.

Well, Mr. Parker supplies at least what he thinks is an explanation for our difficulty. Listen to it.

He points out that "the extermination of snakes, however poisonous, is not necessarily desirable, even from the point of view of the ordinary inhabitants of the areas where they are found. Most of the snakes prey on rodents, which would in many instances increase enormously, to the serious disadvantage of men, if their natural enemies disappeared."

* * *

So there you are.

We hope you are convinced and converted.

We aren't. As between snakes and rodents, we prefer rodents. And until we have a better argument than Mr. Parker's we shall continue to heave a rock at a snake every time we see one—and miss it 9 times out of 10.

Says Mr. Parker, according to Science Service:

"Several reptile species have already been exterminated by wholesale slaughter, whereas, if closed seasons had been imposed, a good supply would have been available indefinitely."

A good supply!

"The species in most danger," adds Mr. Parker, "are those only found within a restricted geographical area, however plentiful they may at present be within that area."

We are left quite unmoved.

We will advocate a closed season for snakes only when snakes observe a closed season for us.

Barging Through Europe With Carlisle Bargeron

We Found a Bon Mot.

AT SEA—Dear Aleck: We have made the most amazing find, Aleck. We have found a bon mot that for sheer beauty beats anything in the bon mot line that I have ever seen. I don't think I told you that on this trip I intended to look for rare bon mots. I didn't, because I realized it was such an ambitious undertaking and I had considerable doubt as to whether it would be crowned with success.

BARGERON

The plain truth is, though, Aleck, that while I have never said anything about it I have been interested in bon mots ever since Frederick William Wile began writing so often about them. It was one of the first things that intrigued me when I came to Washington. Every other day or so he would tell about a bon mot in some salon of the Nation's Capital. Alice Longworth was represented by him as having quite a collection. Fred Essary, another gifted correspondent, also tells frequently of a bon mot he has run across in some salon.

I understand there are bon mots in all the European capitals. Apparently they are something peculiarly associated with capitals.

• • • •

Well, Aleck, I am satisfied that the bon mot I have found surpasses anything in any salon of any nation's capital. We found it in a most unusual way. We had been steaming along the Gulf Stream when all of a sudden we realized that if it was France to which we were going we had to get out of the Gulf Stream. Because the Gulf Stream simply does not go there, Aleck. It goes northeastward to Iceland, or anyway it goes away from the way which we should pursue to get to France. Well, you can understand that this being the case we left the Gulf Stream. We would not have done this, you understand, had it been the Gulf Stream we wanted to go in. It was France we wanted to reach, Aleck, don't you see?

Well, just as we turned off there was a scratching underneath the boat. We knew we had run across something. The boat sort of hesitated, swung crazily around and then because of its momentum, pushed on across the obstacle in our path.

• • • •

We came to an immediate halt, of course. The captain wanted to see what it was his boat had run across and whether or not it had done any damage.

There, just slightly below the surface, gleaming in the midday sun, was the bon mot. Aleck, it was entangled in a bunch of latitudinal and longitudinal lines, like a fish caught in a net. Struggle as it might to free itself, it could not do so. Apparently it had been down in Florida waters for the winter and was now headed northward. Anyway, its plight was something terrible to see.

It made no effort to attack us. Instead, it appeared grateful for our delivering it. We put men out in small boats with instructions to handle it most tenderly. And never did bon mot hunters hold their breath so tensely as we did while these patient fingers worked so laboriously unwrapping the latitudinal and longitudinal lines in which our find was enmeshed.

• • • •

It was about the size of one's thumb, Aleck, but a bon mot beauty in every respect. It shone the colors of the rainbow, its brilliance challenged the eye. It has exactly 20 facets, each a delight in its own right. The passengers were in a high state of excitement, all demanding what in the name of goodness the dazzling thing was. The Middle Westerners and Southerners, you see, Aleck, have never seen a bon mot. Only those who have lived in Washington a long time or consorted in the salons or with the diplomats of other capitals know a bon mot.

Of course, we bon mot lovers aboard recognized it immediately for its full worth. Oh, that the archeologist Carter would have been along. No Pharaoh's tomb has ever given forth anything so rich, so gorgeous, so helpful to the human mind in its pursuit for the more abundant life.

I intend first, of course, Aleck, to exhibit it in the capitals of Europe. This is not because I am unpatriotic but simply because I will be in the capitals of Europe before I am again in the Capital of the United States. I shall return to Washington with it, however, and after a brief round of salons there, I intend to place it in the Smithsonian Institution as a permanent memorial to Washington diners-out.

Profiteer in Food Will Face Publicity, License, U. S. Sales

AAA Mapping Program to Protect Consumers From Gouging; Would Distribute at Retail Only as Last Resort.

Editor's note—Government experts are watching food prices with an eagle eye these days as crop control and drought melt away commodity surpluses piled up in depression years. No one will go hungry, they say, but nevertheless, Agricultural Department legal talent is looking through the law books for ways and means to keep prices where they ought to be and nip potential profiteers before they get started. Here, in the first of a series, is how they are guarding the consumer's pocketbook.

By William A. Bell, Jr.
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Out of the ruins of the drought a new danger—profiteering—arose yesterday and the Federal Government prepared to fight it with every resource at its command.

Surveying their graphs and charts and a Department of Agriculture crop report predicting the smallest grain yields in 30 years and more, economists said the Nation was not in for a long period of high living costs, but undoubtedly would experience some higher prices during the next year.

Unless thwarted at the start, selfish interests may spring up like mushrooms to grow fat on the country's misfortune, officials feared. There is enough and more for all to eat, they announced, and raids on the consumer's pocketbook, with shortage as an excuse, will be considered unwarranted.

Some Increases Expected.

Some food price increases will be condoned. To a limited degree the Agricultural Adjustment Administration contemplated higher retail meat prices long before the drought struck.

It planned to dispose of a 6,000,000-head cattle surplus. Exigencies of the drought produced the emergency slaughter program which will wipe out the extra numbers and more during the next six months.

Had the first plan been followed, housewives would have paid more for their beef sides, bacon and rounds just as they will because nature beat human agencies to the job.

Plans to Curb Profiteers.

Emphasizing that stored supplies, added to what the drought has left, were ample for human and animal needs, officials listed the following methods which could be used to thwart profiteers who say it isn't so:

1. Publicity devices employed by the AAA consumers' council.
2. Licensing powers incorporated in the adjustment act.
3. Federal participation in commercial food distribution.

If food hoarding ever became a serious menace—and this was not anticipated—supplies could be rationed as in war-time.

It is easy to discover profiteering, officials declared. Their day-to-day reports reveal the margins of "middlemen," handlers, processors and retail dealers. When the margins get out of line with what the farmer is receiving and what is justified by manufacturing and processing costs, the Government will prepare to crack down.

Quick Warning Seen.

Quick warning to the consumer that he is being cheated can be given by the consumers' council, which reports regularly on food prices and often notes where they are justified and where not. In case of a particularly serious instance of "gouging" the council might publish the name of the offending individual or firm.

The powers of this agency are being extensively explored in anticipation of drought after-effects, and its lawyers were said to have discovered authority which hitherto had not been developed. None would specify what these powers are.

Significant control over distributors is contained in existing AAA marketing agreements and licenses, and additional licensing authority may be invoked. The Government could set maximum prices to afford a "ceiling," beyond which the licensees could not go unless they cared to risk revocation of their permits to do business.

Retailing as Last Resort.

Unless profiteering sweeps the land, the Government will not go into the meat business. It could, of course, cook, can and sell to the public some of the beef and mutton which it is buying on the hoof in drought territory and giving to poor families on relief rolls. The threat is of itself an effective preventive, officials pointed out.

In one way, the emergency cattle slaughter tends to keep prices at equitable levels, it was explained. Meat packed between now and January 1, 1935, "will come pretty close to providing a year's supply for the relief population," they said. So that portion of the population is out of the market and so much more is to be had for others.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

Rico the Rocket.

JUST who Rico was, and in just what South or Central American country he rose from banditry to be dictator at 20, Antonio De Fierro Blanco leaves nicely misty. But in all the necessary details of the man and his career (if indeed this be not a composite picture of many similar men and careers), Mr. Blanco is as fertile with color and anecdote as one could ask. What we have in the author seems to be a Spanish-American Trader Horn. Mr. Blanco, now close to 80, had a full and active life. In his old age he came upon hard times, found a friend to shelter him, and in return he is drawing upon his past for stories to amuse the world—and to make books. Last winter we had "The Journey of the Flame" from Mr. Blanco and his benefactor and translator, Walter de Steiguer. Now, a far better book than its fiat, unimaginative title would indicate, comes "Rico: Bandit and Dictator" (Houghton Mifflin, $2).

THEO. HALL

It is the gusty, lusty tale of a hard, spectacular, and surprisingly sensible man. Somewhere in his travels Mr. Blanco had crossed his trail, or some one very like him. From the reports of Rico's generals, secretaries, and mistresses, from a very fishy sounding 17-volume work by a pedantic German traveler, from the words of a San Francisco derelict once known as the "Black Ghost," who used to have the engaging habit of collecting human ears and presenting them to his best friends, Mr. Blanco piles together a rare heap of entertainment.

• • • •

Rico was no common type of man. Born of a reputed Austrian archduke in Spanish-American exile and an Indian woman descended from priests of the "Old Religion," he acquired very early a hard head and a brave arm. He found he could make religious miracles himself, and he found that he drew all kinds of boys and men to him.

When the governor of the province tore down his father's house looking for treasure (which Rico had cannily hidden), Rico swore vengeance. He was not yet 20 when he led his guerrilla army into the provincial capital, but he had the governor's palace dismembered and the site strewn with salt. "The Anger of Rico," the barren spot was thence called.

• • • •

But for all the bloody parts of this rise to power, the most interesting sections are those on Rico's canniness once he was dictator. There was Rico's request to one of the overthrown conservatives that he run against him on the presidential ballot. "So particular is the Great Republic of the North," said Rico, "that they think an election, to be legal, must have two candidates. Oblige me."

When his secretary of state's wife and daughter began to plot for his favor, he instituted the Order of the Two Ysabels "to be given each year to those two women over 16 who most deserved it." The consequent rivalry over that award kept all the women in his capital so busy fighting each other that they had no time to bother Rico. In fact, Rico was considerably of a cynic about women and romance—some of his notions might have come straight from Bernard Shaw's 1910 preface to his play, "Getting Married." The strong-minded woman of Atlan, who had reared Rico, told him "never trust a women, lest she cease to be a toy, and in so ceasing, betray thee." Seldom, I dare say, has such advice been better observed. Rico relaxed once, when his only woman secretary, a very capable creature, fell in love with him, and the scare he got from that served only to underline the moral.

• • • •

Then there was the adventure of the Argentine Miss, who tried to kill him with cyanogen gas, and the farce of the North American journalist who had come down to expose Rico, and the time Rico got kicked in a fight with a Texas ranger—"my mule," commented Rico afterwards, "which usually enjoys looking on at a fight, lay down and died from envy or perhaps from rage at being outkicked by a Yankee."

So the wealth of this book goes—excitement, adventure, and a strictly American kind of humor.

• • • •

But I spoke of Rico's "sense." Penologists may not agree, but Rico was a firm believer in hard and sure punishment. He had, it is true, few laws, but their penalty was death—by capital punishment or by assignment to the front ranks of his army. If his judges and police did not catch the culprit within a week, they themselves were shot.

The result seems to have been most salutary. Said Rico: "You have, therefore, in my country, the most law-abiding land in the world. Respect my few laws and no man will trouble you. Break a law, and you, yourself, will be broken, with absolute certainty and promptitude. To teach this respect has, it is true, cost some thousands of lives, but without such respect, the lives lost would have been counted by the hundred thousand."

• • • •

Impressive as Rico's regulation of his country may have been, I suspect by this no means flyweight book of very shrewd satire on dictatorship in general. For, at the age of 40, after sending millions of dollars out of the country for his private account, Rico disappeared.

But it is notable that the country went to pot at once. One minor and very funny item was an election which produced more ballots than there were men, women and children in the land.

No, nothing is good in this world unless it is good the day after tomorrow as well as today. Even the benevolent dictators are likely to disappear on the morrow.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Two No-Thumps!"

• • • •

Sims claimed the victory on the ground he bid one punch, and made it.

• • • •

The immediate outlook is for a book on "How to Play Bridge by Max Baer" and a supertournament in the Madison Square Garden Bowl, with Joe Humphries cutting the cards.

• • • •

Water buckets, resin and gongs now become recognized equipment at all bridge parties with the two major precepts, "Always cover a wallop with a wallop" and "Never lead from a scissors."

• • • •

It is even possible that major bridge tournaments will be covered blow by blow:

North was first in the ring. He seemed drawn and nervous. South came in a few minutes later escorted by his handlers and two uniformed policemen. East climbed into the ring wearing his famous green trunks with "Lenz A. C." on them in white letters. West was the last to arrive. He stripped well and seemed full of confidence.

• • • •

At the bell the boys came to the center for instructions. There was considerable feeling when West demanded that the tape on South's hand be removed and examined.

• • • •

North, coming out of a crouch, bid one club. East danced nimbly for an opening and bid two uppercuts. South sneered and West shot a straight left to his nose, using the Culbertson pyschic sock system. South doubled. North picked up a chair. The bell saved the furnishings.

• • • •

The referee ordered the hand played over. North and South ganged East. West failed to come out of his corner. It appeared that he had been doped. The bystanders were in an uproar. At the bell East was so badly cut up he had to be taken out in spades.

Va. Beach "Defended" By First Infantry

Norfolk, Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The First Virginia Infantry, with a record of more than 100 years of service, today is engaged in "defending" Virginia Beach and Norfolk from an advancing "Red" army that theoretically has effected a landing on the Atlantic Coast, south of Camp Peery, where the Ninety-first Infantry Brigade is encamped for two weeks' training.

Col J. F. Bright, Mayor of Richmond, and commander of the regiment, assigned his forces early today. With maps of the area, battalion and company commanders proceeded to block all roads leading toward Norfolk and Virginia Beach. Trench mortars were in action, gas attacks were met with new masks just issued to the troops, and bridges and culverts "blown up" to check the advance of the "enemy."

Monkey Superior to Man If Judged by Monkeys

By Robert Quillen.

The usual definition of a snob is a rich man who is "stuck up" because of his money. Like most popular definitions, it is inaccurate and inadequate.

The dictionary defines a snob as one who has an excessive regard for wealth and social standing.

This definition is unsatisfactory, also, for one may scorn both wealth and social position and still be a snob.

The snob pretends to be something he isn't because he is ashamed of what he is; or he is proud of the wrong things and ashamed of the wrong things; or he has too much regard for qualities peculiar to the few, and too little respect for qualities common to the many.

If good birth makes him a snob, his rank among the well-born is never the highest. He apes and venerates those above him, yet feeds his vanity with the knowledge that he is one of their class. He regards wealth, learning and achievement as matters of secondary importance. Birth alone makes people superior, and he is therefore scornfully superior to nine-tenths of the race.

If wealth makes him a snob, he regards possessions as the one proof of human excellence. The poor are "the common people." Learning, good birth and accomplishment other than money-making are things that matter little. He demands deference because he is rich; stands in awe of men who are richer, and dismisses a nobody with the contemptuous query, "Huh! what has he got?"

If learning makes him a snob, he regards as inferior animals all of those who know less. The rich and the noble and the doers of great works deserve no respect if they have no degrees to attest their knowledge. They are morons. He delights in making them blink by using words unknown to them.

If poverty or want of education makes him a snob, he is never free of shame. He apologizes for being a common worker. He reddens painfully when asked where he was educated. He cringes in the presence of the rich and the learned. He makes pathetic effort to hide his poverty and his want of schooling, and hates those of his own kind because he is one of them.

Whatever the cause of his snobbery, the result is silly. It is ignorance of values that makes both vanity and shame.

The Fifteenth of August.

In all Roman Catholic countries, and in all Roman Catholic churches in any country, the 15th of August is one of the great days of the year. Like Christmas and unlike Easter, it is a fixed feast, invariably falling on the same day, August 15. It is the feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, celebrating her ascent into heaven and her coronation.

Although I am not a Catholic, I always attend a Catholic Church on this day, if there is one within reasonable distance; because it is interesting to me to take a humble part in a religious ceremony that has been regularly observed for so many centuries.

In 1903 I was in the small seaside village of Carolles in France, within view of the Mount St. Michael. There were processions in the streets, and we all went to the ancient village church.

According to the original story, immediately after the death of the Virgin Mary, her body was carried in a cloud to heaven, and there united with her coul.

The feast in mentioned by the famous hymn writer, St. Andrew of Crete in the seventh century, and it is believed that the date August 15, was chosen by the Emperor Maurice, who died in the year 602. In Rome it was celebrated as early as the same century.

As I understand it, although this is one of the great days of the year, the belief in the bodily assumption of the Virgin is not a dogma which every Catholic must accept, but it is a part of the common agreement of the church.

Apart from purely religious worship, no woman in history compares with the Virgin Mary as an aspiration in great creative works of art—in painting, architecture and music. One has only to remember the great cathedrals in her honor, Notre Dame at Paris and the Cathedral at Chartres; the "Ave Maria" of Schubert and innumerable other musical compositions; and the history of painting in the golden centuries thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth; the Madonnas of Raphael, every one a masterpiece, from the early tiny one in Leningrad to the Sistine Madonna at Dresden.

When I first entered a certain room in the Louvre at Paris many years ago, I could see only one painting—"The Immaculate Conception," by Murillo.

I am quite aware that at this moment Murillo's fame is not so high as it has been in certain times; but it will always be high in my heart.

Tomorrow—Old Robert Burton.

Reunion Planned By 80th Division

Large Delegations Expected From the Virginias.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Preparations for the entertainment and housing of several thousand veterans of the Eightieth Division during the fifteenth annual National reunion at Conneat Lake Park, Pa., Thursday, through Sunday, have been completed.

The largest delegations are expected to come from Virginia, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

The division trained at Camp Lee, Va., and gained an exceptional record in France on the British front and in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, of Pittsburgh, wartime leader of the Eightieth, and Brig. Gen. George H. Jamerson, of Richmond, Va., former commander of the 159th Infantry Brigade, and many other officers of the division, have made reservations.

Mid-August Finds Capital Amusement Places Flourishing

By Kay Ware.

Watchman, what of the night-clubs?

To add a word or two, what of the cocktail lounges, restaurants, gardens, and entertainers that make up Washington's more frivolous amusements?

Perhaps "The Drunkard," started it all. Those who chortled and applauded at the melodrama presented at the Willard roof last night will be glad to hear that the Willard's Tavern Club will be a permanent fixture. Three nights a week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday it will be open to the public "who dislike formality."

The Tavern Club folds back the calendar into the middle of the last century. There should be tear jerkers and war whoops from patrons and entertainers alike.

The younger generation will have plenty of opportunities to find out what amused their fathers, the older generation can forget they have ever left their "teens."

Johnny Slaughter's music for dancing.

More celebrities hie to the Hi-Hat during cocktail hours. Borrah Minnevitch, and the Pickens Sisters were there last week. There's an atmosphere of things going on all the time. Excitement is found at nearly every table.

The names on the wine list are worth a giggle or two. Ask the manager what a "Monkey Gland" cocktail is. The management concocts the cocktails and their respective titles, and considerable imagination is shown in the making of both.

The "trade-mark" of the Hi-Hat is a modification of a French wine label. Look for it; it's the little rooster, high-hatted, with a cocktail glass in its fist—or is it claw?

A Trip to Havana.

The Shoreham's going in for internationalism in a big way. If you've had to give up your world tour, stop in the Shoreham from time to time and see what you've missed. Tonight a trip to Havana is promised. The Reyes, Cuban dance team, head the bill; in addition the De Limas will present a waltz, a bolero and a satirical carioca. Ought to be good; there's something satirical about a plain carioca.

To finish off the evening in true Havana style, special concoctions from the bar are promised. Hats and fancy favors will add to the holiday spirit.

Jeanne Gordon, who was there last week, will show what is meant by the "Havana Strut."

By the way, cocktail hour is supposed to have originated in Havana.

Same doings at Club Michel. The never-to-be-forgotten Godfrey, Doris and Juanita, dance team, the boy who tap dances, and Ernestine Gardner, identified as a torch singer.

Rain is no problem to this roof. If it sprinkles, they move downstairs.

Have you seen—

The antique shops in Bethesda just past the Woman's Market? . . . The tall water flowers in somebody's garden on the River road? . . . The old mills along Seneca Creek? Their walls are sometimes 5 and 6 feet thick. . . .

The silly looking fish at the Department of Commerce Aquarium? . . . The Indian art work at the office of Indian Affairs? . . . The "family tree" of music's evolution at the Library of Congress? . . . The water lilies at the Pan-American Building? . . .

The contraption near the airport that makes you feel what flying is like? . . . The newsman at Fourteenth and the Avenue who looks like Andy Gump? . . . The shop on E street that carries all sorts of practical joke gadgets, puzzles and games for your friends' annoyance and amusement? . . . The collection of head hunters' trophies at the Smithsonian? They'll give you something to dream about. . . .

Oasis for Swimmers.

Need a sun tan? There are ideal little balconies and outdoor spots where you can toast to your heart's content. These are to be found at the Maryland Club Gardens. Of course, there's the pool nearby, in case you begin to scorch.

You can see a lot of plain and fancy swimming in the pool. It's practically an oasis for Washingtonians who want to get over the heat. If you're one of them, this country setting, with all the things to help you have a good time, will be a favorable spot.

If you want a desert near the dance floor, or a Mayan temple for a tete-a-tete, or a Spanish patio for a quiet luncheon, you can find them all at the Madrillon. The Latin-American atmosphere makes it a meeting place for the diplomats who want to pretend they are at home again. Sometimes one or two of them decide to indulge in a tango and it's well worth watching.

And champagne! From one of the most famous Spanish cellars, Codorniu, the Madrillon's Peter Borras has made his selections and purchases. If you've forgotten what real champagne is like, the Madrillon will be glad to remind you.

Incidentally, Peter Borras says he dances a good tango. Perhaps you can persuade him to perform. He's always anxious to please his guests.

The Parrott, at Twentieth and R streets, is serving exceptional lunches and dinners in a walled garden. The inside of the house is known for its array of cupids, carved in oak in the old fireplaces.

Washington Etiquette.

Never turn your searchlight on parked cars on the Speedway; everybody gets embarrassed.

Don't call a Senator a Congressman; he frets.

Don't say "the next square" when you mean the next circle; a street is a block and a corner is a circle.

Try not to guess what State someone came from; be different.

Never pick the Congressional flowers appropriated to the parks; they belong to our country.

Don't ask the taxi driver to hurry; he laughs.

If you're a woman, don't wander about late in the evening alone; it's unusual. If a man, don't bother.

Colonial Charm.

If you are on the way back from Mount Vernon, and are still steeped in antique atmosphere, stop off for dinner at the Collingwood Tea House. You'll think the Father of His Country was about to come in from winning a battle.

A uniformed butler opens the door, ushers you into rooms of colonial charm. The same butler goes around the rooms at dusk and lights candles here and there.

The place literally whispers of historical names and events. Capt. John Smith was supposed to have been the first man to drink of the waters of the "Johnson Spring." George Washington formerly owned the land. Many famous duels were fought in the vicinity.

For the English Tudor surroundings that are restful during cocktail or dinner hour, the Hay-Adams House is at the top of the list. The lounge is ideal for sipping appetizers; from there you stroll into the dining room for a delicious dinner. Quite the British manor idea.

Air-cooled and comfortable, the lounge and dining room are open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. The late breakfast, or early luncheon, cocktail and quiet dinner are served with the finesse that goes with the dignity of the place.

Heigh-Ho or Powhatan, Pete Macias is the synonym. He's a pretty busy man these days; what with rushing from one to the other to be jovial, then down to the sea in a ship.

But he's justifiably called one of the nicest hosts in town. Always cheerful and gay, full of conviviality and pep. Debutantes follow the direction of his baton, night-clubbers, or cocktail loungers know that Pete's management will be the best.

Lotus' floor show this week sports a whirlwind dance team. Also, a comedy dancer should provoke giggles. Al Norton, the master of ceremonies, takes time out to sing, and when he does, Lotus patrons are delighted.

Watch the flying fingers of the pianist.

If the rain stops long enough, the Arlington Roof is ready to hand out a good time. Cellophane (or something) straws are served in the tall drinks, and they don't get mushy after the first half-hour. Most drinks outlast the straws by a considerable margin.

Call "Costello" for reservations.

As Danced in Havana

The De Limas, featured at the Shoreham Terrace this week, carry out the Spanish idea in a new way. "A Night in Havana" are the catch words.

By Ruth McE. Dean.
West Falls Church, Va.

It was winter on a post in Montana, with snow falling, and Monte, our half-coyote collie looking out the window, standing on his hind feet with his forepaws resting upon the sill, pressing his nose against the pane, then dropping to the floor with a grunt. The snow eventually ceased to fall, and the sun shone brilliantly.

Weather hardly ever stopped my daily horseback ride, so when I opened the door to go to my horse, Monte dashed past me, disappearing in the direction of the stables.

Curious about his unusual behavior, I mounted and followed his trail. As I neared the stables, I saw an amusing situation. Sitting on a platform in front of a storage room sat Jeff, an Airedale belonging to one of my husband's fellow officers. He looked very solemn and was watching Monte, who was across the road under another platform digging away in the snow.

Suddenly he stopped digging, his big plume-like tail wagging gracefully as he emerged holding a huge bone in his mouth. I thought, "What can that little rascal be up to? A bone! In this weather!" He crossed the road to where Jeff was sitting, the latter's right paw bound in gauze where he had caught it in a trap. Monte deposited his treasure at Jeff's feet, backed away to sit down and happily watch Jeff. Monte evidently felt it his duty to serve Jeff until he would be well again. They were real pals.

Prince, my fox terrier, is one of the laziest dogs in Dogdom.

He is always the first to reach the car if we are going for a ride, but as he needs some exercise I take him whenever we go for a walk.

One morning last year I went for a walk and took Prince along. When I arrived at the drugstore, where I usually stopped before turning homeward, I went in, and left Prince waiting outside. When I came out of the store I looked around for Prince to find him sitting on the running board of a taxi, his eyes pleading with me to ride home.

I called him to show that we would not ride, and all the way home he reproached me and sulked.

District Guard Reconnoiters In Sham War

Troops Take to Field at Camp Ritchie After Weather Clears.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Although the District National Guard encamped here awoke today to find heavy fog and slight showers, the weather cleared and the troops took to the field for practical training. The 121st Engineers continued instruction in bridge and road building, while the division staff, with special troops of the division, held reconnaissance trips through the area in which the theoretical war is being fought.

The division staff's requirement for the day was to move the division from Monterey, Pa., to the vicinity of Leitersburg, Md., where combat is expected with the "Red" troops. After brief lectures in the morning, the staff, accompanied by enlisted men of the headquarters detachment, inspected the area between Monterey and Midvale, Md., where the troops are supposed to be on the march. In the afternoon, a critique was held in the brigade building and details were discussed.

Maj. William T. Roy, commanding the special troops, accompanied the 29th Military Police Company and the Signal Company, of Norfolk, on a trip through the combat area, pointing out spots at which military police will be needed, and the command posts and stations communications. The Signal Company, in charge of Lieuts. C. B. Whittenberg and George C. Lyon, stretched approximately 15 miles of telephone lines between Pennersville, Pa., and Chocolate, Md., in preparation for the problem.

Officers Visit Areas.

Officers of the staff of the 121st Engineers Regiment, which also will take part in the problem, visited the areas for personal reconnaissance before actual operation.

The rear echelon of the division will not function in that capacity during the problem, but has been assigned to the various sections of the forward echelon. In the headquarters detachment, the men have been assigned as follows: Private Donald F. Riordan, orderly to the commanding general; Master Sergt. Lee R. Wilson and John V. Berberich and Private William F. Benham, to the G-1 section; Master Sergt. James M. Lynch to the G-2 section; Master Sergt. George A. McCarthy, Staff Sergt. William E. Bahre, Ernest Gonzales and Irvin A Brown, Corporals Charles T. Warner and Max E. Kaplan; Privates William Branovick, Robinson P. Bludsworth, Reginald Fields, William P. Brown and William S. Warner to the G-3 section, and Master Sergt. Thomas P. Baxter, Technical Sergts. Harry A. Nelligan, Langdon P. McAninch and Charles A. Norris, Sergt. Warren C. Snyder and Corporal James W. Maximow to the G-4 section.

Semifinal Fight Results.

The semifinals of the boxing tournament were held last night, resulting in one technical knockout in the second round and five decisions. The knockout was made by Roger Jordan, Company A, defeating John M. Whalen, Company F. Vincent Ceccarelli, Company D, won the decision over William H. Barnes, Company C. In the third bout, Edward H. Evans, medical detachment, defeated Bernard Stromberg, Fifty-eighth Brigade Headquarters Company. Gilbert B. Jenkins, Twenty-ninth Military Police Company, won from Charles D. Gates; William L. Thomas, Company F, over Lawrence P. Perkins, Company B, and Daniel Howard, Company B, defeated Milton H. Powell, Company F.

Refereeing and recording were under the direction of Sergt Harry A. Nelligan, headquarters detachment.

Pets Provide Local Color At Out-of-Town Tea Houses

Out-of-town tea houses have their pets. If you go to the Little Tea House in Alexandria you might stumble over a tiny black kitten, which will mew plaintively and wrinkle its nose at you. Aside from the attraction of the kitten, the brown bread there is delectable, the souffles are something to tell the cook about.

Canaries are particularly musical at Mrs. K.'s Toll House Tavern. They hang in cages along the wall, and toss bits of melody around the heads of the diners. Also, the wall paper, printed with Dickens' characters, are well worth an extra look. And the chicken and waffles. M-m-m-!

Normandy Farms has a gander just inside the door. It isn't alive, but it looks almost ready to quack a cherry welcome. But in the yard there are all sorts of feathered fowl which will probably appear on your plate later. Be sure to order the French cream soup there. Mrs. Carbury, the hostess and manager, counts the ingredients on her fingers and has to go over them three or four times. The soup is a masterpiece.

At Olney Inn you'll see cows and chickens and innumerable—shall we say pets?—that identify the place as a farm, and are an assurance for good food. The house itself is filled with beautiful old furniture, wide fireplaces and hospitable atmosphere. Mrs. Downey never lets anything escape her notice, from a withered leaf on a table bouquet to the exact seasoning in the spiced apples.

Interest Rate In Alexandria Cut to 2½ Pct.

Order Effective Sept. 1; Sergt. Bargagni Named Parade Official.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Clearing House Association, with the approval of the boards of directors for the four member banks of Alexandria, has decided that the interest rate on savings deposits will be reduced, effective September 1, from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent. This will apply also to time deposits.

The action is said to be in line with similar procedure on the part of clearing houses in Washington, Baltimore, Richmond and other cities, and is made necessary by inability of the banks to invest savings profitably. The banks' operating costs, it is said, have been increased substantially by NRA requirements and assessments of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Sergt. A. J. Bargarni, of the Washington Fire Department, has been chosen grand marshal of the firemen's division of the parade to be held in Alexandria Labor Day by the National Firemen's Association.

The route will be confined to Washington street, on which the reviewing stand will be erected. A total of 7,000 seats will be available for sale to the public.

A clinic for physical examination of children of preschool age will be held from 2 to 5 p. m. today by Dr. W. Clyde West at his office, 906 Prince street. This is one of a series arranged by the Parent-Teacher Association under the supervision of Mrs. C. E. Dodd.

Mrs. Julia S. Rice, wife of George S. Rice, died Monday at her home at Wellington Villa, south of Alexandria in Fairfax County. Besides her hubsand, who is a mining engineer for the United States Bureau of Mines in Washington, she is survived by two children, Mrs. Catherine Rice Mollison, of Wellesley Hills, Mass., and Julian B. Rice, of New York.

Mrs. Rice was a native of Schoolcraft, Mich., and had made her home at Wellington Villa for the past two years. The funeral will be conducted at 4:30 p. m. today at the home by the Rev. Dr. William J. Morton, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria.

George S. Rutherford, 55, died Monday at Alexandria Hospital. His home was at 1209 Duke street, and he was employed by the R., F. & P. Railroad.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., at Cunningham funeral home, by the Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

The Rev. Dr. R. A. McGowan, assistant director of the Social Action Department of the N. C. W. C., will address an open meeting today at 8 p. m. in Judiciary Square, under the auspices of the Catholic Evidence Guild. He will explain the attitude of the Catholic Church in regard to labor.

Treasure Seekers Must Find Bow Of Sunken Ship

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 14 (AP).—After dragging the sunken treasure ship Islander from Davy Jones' Locker, salvors decided today they must dive for the vessel's bow, sheared off in a wreck, in the hope it contains the money vaults.

They found gold inside the barnacled hulk, with some of the bones of 72 men drowned when the Islander, carrying Alaskan miners back from the rich Klondike diggings to the States, crashed an iceberg—but not the amount of gold they expected.

Popular belief is that she carried one or more millions. The salvage syndicate has spent $200,000 and two years diving in an effort to learn. The bow lies in about 190 feet of water, about 2,000 feet off the island. At least 30 days' more work will be required.

County Will Pave Seven Locks Road

Decision Settles Debate Over Two Stretches.

The debate among residents of western Montgomery County as to which of two sections of Seven Locks road should be paved was settled yesterday by the announcement of County Commissioner Chester F. Clagett, of Potomac, that both sections would be constructed.

The 1-mile stretch from Bealls Mill toward Scotland will be started within the next two weeks, Clagett said. Bids have been advertised for stone.

The second stretch, which extends a mile between Bradley boulevard and River road, will be surfaced in the fall, he said. Citizens of Bealls Mills have been ardent advocates of the first project, and residents of Bradley Hills have appeared before the board of Montgomery County commissioners on behalf of the second.

West Point Wedding of Interest Here

Miss Jarman Will Wed Lieut. Jablonsky This Afternoon.

Ceremony Is to Take Place in Famous Cadet Chapel.

Washington society hears of still another wedding. It is that of Miss Dorothy Jarman, attractive daughter of Col. and Mrs. Sanderson Jarman, of Washington, to Lieut. Harvey Jablonsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Jablonsky, of Clayton, Mo., which will take place this afternoon at West Point.

The ceremony will take place in the famous Cadet Chapel, which is indeed a most romatic place. It stands high in the hills behind the Academy and overlooks the plain and across the Hudson River to the opposite shore where the ruins of "Dick's Folly," an old, old estate, are still visible.

Inside the handsome graystone chapel, the day light filters in through the stained glass windows, to which collection a new one is added each year by the graduating class. Attached to the walls on either side of the building are staffs which extend toward the center out over the long aisle, and from which hang historical old National and Regimental flags, encased in fine silken cases.

Chaplain to Officiate.

The ceremony will be performed at 4:30 o'clock by Chaplain Clayton Wheat. The ushers, Lieut. Edward O'Connell, Lieut. Charles Revie, Robert Kinnon, resplendant in their military uniforms and with gleaming sabers, will march slowly up the aisle.

They will be followed by the four bridesmaids—Miss Rita Shea, of Washington; Miss Alice Jablonsky, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Helen Hines, of West Point, and Miss Beatrice Thomen, of Staten Island, N. Y., all of whom will be attired in frocks of pale green mousseline de soie, made with unusually full skirts and fitted bodices which are finished at the neckline with standing collars. Their large leghorn hats will be trimmed with bands of green velvet, which fasten with a large bow toward the back and they will carry armfulls of late summer blossoms.

Miss Barbara Bonnycastle, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Bonnycastle, of Washington, who will be the maid of honor, will wear a costume similar to those worn by the other attendants. Her frock of mousseline de soie will be of "summer yellow" and her large leghorn hat will have an encircling band of yellow velvet. She will carry pastel-shaded flowers.

Col. Jarman will escort his daughter to the altar where Lieut. Jablonsky and his best man, Lieut. Garrison Davidson, will await them.

Bride to Wear Empire Model.

The bride will wear a becoming Empire model of white satin, made with the long straight skirt terminating in a graceful train. In the front, three tapering points of the satin will extend into the yoke of Venetian lace which forms a high neckline. The sleeves, which are puffed from the shoulders to the elbows, have insertions of the lace and are fitted from the elbow to the hands. Miss Jarman's tulle veil will be caught into a cap of the tulle which is finished with a rolled edge and held in place with a spray of orange blossoms. She will carry a handkerchief of rare old lace which belonged to a great-aunt. Her bouquet will be of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, Lieut. Jablonsky and his bride will leave the chapel, passing beneath the traditional arch of sabers, formed by the ushers. There will be a reception at Cullum Hall. Later the young couple will leave for Canada on their wedding trip. Upon their return they will be at home at West Point, where Lieut. Jablonsky, who was captain of the Army football team last year, will be a coach. At the close of the football season, Lieut. Jablonsky and his bride will go to Fort Monroe, Va., for station.

The bride was graduated from Smith College this past June and the bridegroom was graduated from West Point with the class of 1934.

Col. and Mrs. Jarman, who, with their daughter, left on Sunday for the Academy, will return to Washington at the end of the week.

Fete Is Given in Honor of His Daughter, Who Lives Here.

Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, who is in command of the U. S. S. Arkansas, which recently returned from the midshipman cruise in the Mediterranean and which is now anchored at Norfolk, Va., entertained at a dance aboard the battleship Saturday evening in honor of his daughter, Miss Lucia Ellis, of Washington.

The ship was brilliantly illuminated for the occasion and music was furnished by the ship's orchestra, which is made up of members of the famous band of the Tennessee. Among the prominent guests aboard were many from the Capital and Norfolk, also a number of the midshipmen who made the cruise to foreign ports aboard the Arkansas.

Miss Ellis, who has been attending school at Dobbs Ferry for the past several years, is a probable debutante of the coming season, but as yet no definite plans for her coming out have been made.

Members of Washington society will remember the debut several years ago of Miss Ellis' sister, Mrs. John Davis Leland, the former Miss Martha Lamar Ellis, when she was presented to society by her parents at their estate, Woodley, which a few years later they sold to the former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, when the former was a member of the Cabinet of President Hoover's Administration.

Culbertson on Bridge

An Oversupply of Aces.

In the play of any Bridge hand the combined trick-taking resources of both sides must amount to exactly 13 tricks—never more. But the possible supply of tricks after each deal is usually far in excess of the required 13. If all the suit lengths in the four hands were developed to their maximum trick-producing capacity, there would be many more than 13 potential winners available, and since only the first 13 can be counted, the rest must be sacrificed. Consider that if each player held a complete suit, one 13 spades, another 13 hearts, &c.—which various romanticists and practical jokers cause to occur practically every day by stacking the cards — each player at the table would hold 13 potential trick winners, but only he who obtained the final contract would actually obtain any of those little packets of four cards each to put in front of him. This almost impossible case has its counterpart, though in less degree, every day.

Sometimes even Aces at notrump must be sacrificed to the pressure of time, and in one remarkable hand all four Aces remained to the very last trick, at which time they all fell together—the Ace which was led winning the trick and the other three, despite their exalted rank, being of no more value than though they had been humble deuces.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ J 3 2 ♡ 7 3 ◇ A Q 10 5 4 3 ♣ K Q
♠ 10 9 7 6 ♡ A 8 6 5 4 2 ◇ 7 ♣ 6 2	N W E S	♠ A 8 5 4 ♡ K J ◇ K 8 6 ♣ 9 7 5 4
	♠ K Q ♡ Q 10 9 ◇ J 9 2 ♣ A J 10 8 3

South dealt and bid one club. After West passed, North bid one diamond, East passed and South bid one notrump. North raised to two notrump and South carried the bidding to three notrump, which was the final contract.

West opened with five of hearts, which East won with the King, returning the heart Jack. South covered with the Queen, but West was now in a peculiar predicament; if South had the heart Ten he had a stopper, and even if East held the heart Ten and South had no stopper, his suit would be blocked and West's small hearts could never be used. West therefore decided to duck and hope that East held the heart Ten, which he could overtake on the next lead and run the entire suit. South therefore held the trick and led the diamond Jack, which he finessed to East's King.

Upon winning the diamond King East saw that he must try desperately to put the lead into West's hand so that the balance of the heart suit could be realized. His best chance seemed to be to hope that South held the spade King but not the Queen, and that if he (East) led a small spade South would guess wrong and finesse to Dummy's Jack. East therefore led the spade four, which South's King won.

At this point South could have claimed the balance of the tricks, but his sense of the esthetic was too great and he saw the opportunity for a most amusing climax. South therefore played a small club and took tricks with Dummy's King and Queen. He then led the four of diamonds from Dummy, winning with his diamond nine, and cashed the Jack and Ten of clubs, on which he discarded the last two spades from Dummy. Dummy's hand now consisted of nothing but solid diamonds. South's third diamond was led and Dummy won the Ten, then ran off the Queen and five. On the thirteenth trick the Dummy had remaining the Ace of diamonds. East had saved the Ace of spades. South had the Ace of clubs, and West had retained the Ace of hearts, the only valuable card in his hand. When North's diamond Ace was led, the four Aces fell, one by one, around the table, constituting probably the most remarkable trick in all the history of Bridge.

Granted that North and South held one trick too many, so that the ultimate result of the hand in tricks won would have been apparent almost to a blind man, there can be no better illustration of how easily possible it is that high cards which would win a trick, could they but be led, can be sacrificed to the factor of time and fall valueless on someone else's winning lead.

Poppies 'Chic' This Season; Fuchsias, Too

Posy Fancies Fluctuate Still, Reminiscent of the Tulip Boom.

WHEN the great tulip boom in Holland was over, the tulip growers and speculators were both pitiable and ludicrous. For many had invested their entire fortunes in tulip bulbs, believing the craze would last forever and that the way to become fabulously rich was to possess many rare bulbs.

When the tulip madness had died down these sepculators found their fortunes gone, their prize bulbs valueless.

No other flower has sent a nation on a career of reckless prosperity and subsequent depression. But flower fancies still wax and wane and the craze for "rare flowers" still rages.

Enthusiastic gardeners this year are specializing in collections of fuchsias and geraniums and many almost forgotten varieties of these are seen at flower shows.

They are almost as popular as the oriental poppies, which long have been objects of the hybridist's training. And so extravagant has been the praise awarded these new varieties, that gardeners are growing somewhat skeptical about them. For it is hard to believe that each new poppy is perfect, as their growers proclaim them.

But the gardener who is unwaveringly enthusiastic about poppies may have a full five weeks of bloom. And he may have all ranges of color, from the purest white to wanton scarlet. There are all kinds of shapes and sizes, too, and the gardener can choose them plain or fringed, small or large, lordly or modest.

"Smart" Peonies Change.

For many years the person who could grow the fattest peonies carried off the prize at the flower show, but the newest peony fad is for the single and Japanese types. These flowers have only a few petals, but are exquisite in coloring and form.

Delphiniums are great favorites with those who are successful at growing them, although delphiniums require constant care. Blues are the favorite colors, with whites and opals runners-up.

The rock garden craze which swept America a few years ago is still raging, although rock garden enthusiasts are rarer. But alert rock gardeners are collecting rock plants from our mountains both in the East and West.

What Today Means

"Leo."

IF AUGUST 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m.

This August 15 may find business somewhat stimulated by some large corporations making appropriations for needed equipment and improvements. Close buying, however, may make it advisable for sellers to use sharp pencils in submitting prices. Competitive bidding probably will be unusually keen. You might find it good judgment to bear in mind "the customer is always right," and avoid any arguments. If a rather illiterate and arrogant individual is guilty of a breach of etiquette on this date, by ignoring this person's rudeness and retaining your temper, you may in the long run benefit financially by it. If invited out socially, it might prove advisable to ascertain if the affair will be formal or informal, and dress accordingly. By obtaining this information in advance, you may save yourself embarrassment. Married couples, and those contemplating matrimony, might find this August 15 a good one on which to discuss and plan a definite line of action regarding their future, especially regarding financial expenditures and savings. Today two can not possibly live as cheaply as one, and that fact should be faced. Sensible people will appreciate that married life has certain problems that can only be solved by mutual cooperation, which requires a clear understanding on the part of both, regarding the subject.

If a woman and August 15 is your birthday, this should prove a very propitious day for you. There is the possibility of your being the unexpected recipient of a good deal of gratifying attention. Any nature of work involving painstaking effort should appeal to you, and prove both interesting and profitable. Chemistry, library, or technical research work offer excellent fields for one of your nature. If you marry, your married life should be a very happy one.

The child born on August 15, when it reaches its teens, should give evidence of a decidedly artistic nature. Music, drama, or art will probably have the strongest appeal. Every encouragement should be given, and proper training provided if the child evinces the right amount of interest.

If a man and August 15 is your natal day, you probably possess the poet's longing for solitude. Loud speaking people and confused noises prove exceedingly annoying to you. A business or profession where quiet is essential will prove not only congenial, but enable you to put forth your best efforts and get results.

Successful people born on August 15:

Willis B. Hawkins, journalist.
Abram J. Ryan, poet-priest.
Mrs. John A. Logan, editor and author.
Merritt Gally, inventor.
John B. Magruder, Confederate general.
Charles Lowell, clergyman.

Employment Expert Puts 'Federal House' in Order

Harris & Ewing.

Miss Mary La Dame, Associate Director of U. S. Employment Service, Attempts to Eliminate Duplication in Aid to Job Hunters.

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

REDUCING a chaotic National and State labor market to a system of good housekeeping, eliminating duplication and confusion, making it possible for those in white collars as well as those in shirt sleeves to save time and shoe leather in a future search for jobs—that is the gigantic task in the hands of the United States Employment Service, recently organized under provisions of the Wagner-Peyser act.

Responsibility for success of this program rests largely upon the shoulders of a woman—Miss Mary La Dame. Scientific-minded, Miss La Dame has behind her a 17-year record of achievement in the employment administrative field. Notable were her investigation of the New York Employment Service under the direction of Frances Perkins, former State Labor Commissioner; her surveys, as a member of the research staff of the Russell Sage Foundation into the employment service structure of other States; her studies, brilliantly reported, of labor exchanges in seven foreign countries.

As a result, she has qualified for one of the most outstanding appointments of the New Deal—Associate Director of the United States Employment Service. While this position, as well as her former ones, is in the administrative field, Miss La Dame manages to maintain a happy awareness of the individual viewpoint. Speaking in her present capacity, she says:

Hits Duplication.

"To the man or woman who is broke and hungry, a job is the most important thing in the world. As a citizen, he or she has a right to expect the ultimate in efficient service from a State employment office. But the job seeker on the street can not be blamed for bewilderment when those in the top ranks of employment service are working in a maze of duplication and confusion."

In this frame of mind and with the Wagner-Peyser act as a chart, Miss La Dame and her associates have set about putting one of the Government's very large houses in order. It meant first, reorganizing the United States Employment Service as a bureau of the Department of Labor; eliminating duplication and overlapping of effort and raising it to a standard of working efficiency. In her own words:

"It was quality, not quantity of service that the millions of unemployed needed during the depression. The Federal employment offices had been created in former years virtually without regard to the public employment services already operated by many States and municipalities."

Next it meant bringing State employment offices up to a level where they could be affiliated and coordinated with the National organization, Federal aid being the stimulus. The process of affiliation is the special job of Miss La Dame.

Humor Is Required.

Since last July she has conferred individually and collectively with labor commissioners and occupational service heads from every State in the Union. With sympathy and remarkable comprehension, she led many of them through the haze of their own local labor situations, and helped them straighten out their courses. It took long-suffering patience in some instances. Often it required a sense of humor.

With a characteristic twinkle of humor, Miss La Dame recalls one labor head from a Middle Western State who kept wandering onto the subject of his crooner son. In the midst of calculations he would remember some song with which his son had made a hit on the local radio, or tell of a critic who predicted a future for the boy on "the big time." Another representative had a newly arrived twin offspring on his mind. But these interruptions she disposed of with a minimum of time and effort.

Speed and progress have been her watchwords from the first. Already she has 20 State employment service affiliations to her credit. This meant action by the State Legislatures, raising of required appropriations (these sums to be matched dollar for dollar by Federal aid) and other detailed requirments. Other affiliations will follow soon.

But Mary La Dame will not count her day complete until she sees the whole picture—until she can look outside and view the world of employment running more smoothly because her administrative house is not only adequately constructed, but in order.

PILLAR TO POST

Concerning Senator Borah and a Lady Who Admired Him.

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH, without seeming to court it in the least, has always had a large following among women. Whenever he is scheduled to make an address in the Senate the galleries are filled with his feminine admirers. Many women have been more than mere Borah fans without ever having known him personally.

* * * *

One such recalls with amusement a crush she had on the Senator, even while she was engaged to be married. She was the secretary for a well-known newspaper correspondent here, and she confided to her boss there was something she would like to do before she married; that was to talk to Borah face to face, just once.

* * * *

"That can be arranged," said her boss obligingly. "I'll send you to interview him. You can pretend you are a newspaperwoman, and you can ask him if he intends stepping into La Follette's shoes (the progressive Senate leader had just died). I'd like to get that story."

* * * *

She was aghast at the suggestion at first, but then decided to follow it. Determined to look her very best, she put on the dress that she had planned to be married in.

Trembling with mixed emotions she was shown into the Senator's office. Timidly she put her question to him.

* * * *

"How can I say anything about that?" he demanded. "Why the man is hardly cold in his grave." The pseudo-newspaperwoman would have liked to sink through the floor, so great was her embarrassment, and within her burned a fierce resentment against her boss for sending her on a fool's errand. Perhaps the expression on her face elicited the sympathy of the Senator, for he added less gruffly:

* * * *

"Give me a chance to think it over, and come back." When she returned to her boss and told him what the Senator said, he laughed.

"I knew he wouldn't talk about that. He just wanted to get rid of you. I won't even give you a dime car fare to go back."

* * * *

But she did go back, anyway, and was rewarded by the Senator handing her a typewritten statetment concerning his position.

"By golly, you've scooped the whole town and it was all written out for you, too," cried the boss, dancing around with the paper in his hand.

The girl looked down at her wedding dress. It had been soiled, riding to and from the Capitol in the street car. She would have to have it cleaned before she got married in it. Perhaps that was a bad omen.

It's a long time now since she was divorced.

Herbery Is Added To N. Y. Museum

An herb garden has been added to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. Visitors now may see in the medieval setting of the cloisters branch of the museum, at 698 Fort Washington avenue, an herbery suggesting a medieval monastery garden.

The purpose of the garden is decorative and educational. Included are more than 30 varieties of herbs such as borage, anise, rosemary, thyme and caraway. All are labeled. Some of the plants were purchased in this country, some were raised from imported seeds, and others were presented by an expert from her garden.

Herbs played an important part in the Middle Ages in medicine, cooking and sorcery and are portrayed extensively in tapestries and painting.

Simple Lines and Plaid Make Good Fall Team

This pert little plaid number worn by the girl below is an example of what the collegienne will wear to class this fall, if she attends one of those dressier colleges where the battered sweater and skirt costume is not the rule. Something on the same order will travel away on prom week-ends, too.

The small collar is made of white pique; the cuffs match. The blouse buttons down the back, as do many of the better blouses this fall. The skirt is made distinctive by the use of diagonal plaid.

Strictly Speaking

What About These?

1. What is a Eustachian tube?
2. What is the difference between Arcadia and Acadia?
3. What is the preferable pronunciation for Milan?
4. What is the meaning of this line from Pope: "Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian Spring?"
5. Define and pronounce virulent.

Answers Here.

1. It is a tube between the ear and the pharynx. It was discovered by Eustachio (u-STAY-ki-o) an Italian physician.
2. Arcadia was originally a mountainous district of Greece, inhabited by contented, pastoral people. Later, the name was applied to any quiet region. Acadia is Nova Scotia.
3. MIL-an or mil-AN. The best English speakers are decidedly in favor of the first. The Italian pronunciation is mee-LAHN-o.
4. This line is the second from the well-known couplet beginning "A little learning is a dangerous thing." The Pierian Spring is a figurative reference to knowledge.
5. VIR-oo-leen ("i" as in "it") means extremely poisonous.

Unknown Lady Takes Taxi Driver for "Ride"

Tough Hack Pilots Metamorphose Into College Graduates and if There Are Holdups They're Usually at the Wrong End of the Gun.

By Marguerite C. Rand.

THE taxi driver leads a hectic life. He was once considered a bit rough, and was viewed with suspicion—a person with whom husbands feared to trust their wives. Today the man who weaves you skillfully through the traffic is probably a college graduate, possibly an M. D., trained for a profession and extremely glad to get a job.

So the situation is reversed. The papers frequently carry accounts of holdups of drivers while the robbery of a passenger is very rare. So rightly enough, the driver is suspicious of his fare and he's not always as safe with the traveling wives as they are with him.

If you've been holding yourself aloof from the "hack herder," you've no doubt missed many an anecdote or tale of strange adventure. I wonder if one prominent Washington woman realizes just how bad a time she gave her taxi driver, who was later mine and told me the story.

He was cruising along F street toward the Willard, late one afternoon, when a striking looking woman came rushing out of the hotel, passed the doorman, and hailed the taxi. She was attired in an elaborate evening gown with only the merest suggestion of a wrap, although it was only five o'clock. She fairly gasped at the driver.

Off to Baltimore.

"Can you get me to Baltimore in 45 minutes?"

"Lady, Baltimore's nearly 40 miles from here and there's a lot of traffic right now."

She flung open the door and jumped in.

"Well, make it as fast as you can. I have an appointment I've got to make. How much will you charge to take me over and back?"

"Fifteen dollars, lady."

She seemed satisfied and they were off without further discussion. After an uneventful trip they reached Baltimore in the minimum of time and drew up in front of a leading hotel. Before the driver could get to the door, she had it open and was out.

"Wait for me here. I'll be back in a few minutes," and she disappeared within.

He was glad to sit back and wait, to relax after the hasty drive. After a time he grew hungry, saw an eating place across the street, and drifted in for food, all the time with his eye on the cab in event the woman should reappear.

He finished his dinner. The minutes dragged into hours and still nothing happened. He began to wonder if he wasn't just another "sucker." Had his passenger gone out another entrance with no intention of returning to Washington? He had no idea who she was, so what could he do about it?

Five hours had passed and he had just about decided to give up hope and return to Washington when out came the woman. He was distinctly nervous and apprehensive of the trip back. Nevertheless, he started without comment.

She seemed amiable and well satisfied with her evening, inclined to be somewhat conversational. He wanted to question her but did so hesitantly. She appeared to sense his suspicion and her replies served only to increase it. He expected from moment to moment to feel the nose of a gun in his back.

"Hot Money."

But at last the dome of the Capitol loomed before them and he began to feel more secure. They drove up before the Willard and she stepped out.

"How much do I owe you?"

"Lady, I told you I'd take you over and back for $15, but that wait wasn't in the bargain. You owe me $10 more for that."

She opened her evening bag and drew out a $20 bill, then another, followed by a 10, and handed them to the driver.

He blinked as he looked at them—then felt sure his suspicions were not without grounds.

"Lady, is this money hot?"

She laughed. "Yes, it will probably burn you. I thought you were suspicious of me." And she disappeared into the hotel with a "good night' 'to the doorman.

The taxi driver turned to him.

"Say, do I dare use this money? Who is that lady?"

The doorman laughed.

"I wish I had $50 of her money. That is Mrs. X, wife of Senator X."

Bandbox Look Easy to Have And to Retain

Secret of Grooming Is Simple Coiffure and Little Make-Up.

By Frances Mangum.

WHAT is the secret of that handbox look?

Every one can call to mind some acquaintance who is outstanding not so much for her beauty or the way she dresses as her scrupulous tidiness.

"How in the world," one asks, "does she manage to look that way?" On the hottest days even though she has been out shopping for hours she still looks as though she had just stepped from a bandbox.

Her's is no deep secret. In fact her's is no secret at all. She is merely a sensible women who realizes grooming is very necessary—and very easy.

Simple Coiffure.

In the first place, her coiffure. She does not attempt anything intricate. She has a good permanent which she is careful to brush thoroughly. And she brushes it away from her face. She realizes that curls clustered around her face will quickly become damp and mussy. In the evening she combs her hair over her forehead, or slightly over her cheeks if she chooses, but then she is able to keep her weather eye open for disarrangements. Not that she bothers about them. She arranges her hair so simply and carefully that it isn't likely to come down or look unkemp. For sports she generally ties it back with a plain ribbon, or wears a sports bandeau.

Little Make-Up

But why does her face never have that plastered, coated appearance? Because she uses little make-up in the daytime and that of the very best. She never puts a second coating of powder over the first. It takes but a few minutes to cleanse her face and she knows what this cleansing means. She wears indelible, nonsmearing lipstick and is careful to rub this in with her finger so that it will be smooth and parmanent.

In the evening she invariably applies her powder and rouge over a good foundation lotion, and even then she doesn't apply glaring amounts. For the first few minutes the vivid effect is good, very good. But an hour hence——. Consequently she makes up with foresight, and finds that it pays.

Her secret—which is no secret—is continuous and careful grooming, down to the minutest detail.

On Sale At All Sanitary and Piggly Wiggly Stores

Prices Tumble To One Dollar At Local Shop

Something in Every Department Goes for This Sum Today.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

SNAP your fingers at the budget! This is the day of all days when you can cast it aside and say, "You may be pretty accurate with your old figures, but when it's dollar day I don't need your advice!"

It is dollar day in a downtown store. Seldom, if ever, have so many things been sold at this price. In every department there'll be something, so, no matter what you need, pack your purse with a dollar and come down after it.

There are satin slips, plain and shadow proof—one dollar. And gowns, and bed jackets—one dollar. Don't think because they've suddenly been converted to a humble price they've acquired an inferior quality. Just see them!

Even black velvet berets, soft and flattering as hats can be, are one dollar today. If you are convinced you can't wear berets, try one of these. They can be pulled around, tucked in here and there to suit anybody. And they look nice with almost anything.

The last of the linen suits are pleading for attention at one dollar. They realize their day is about over, but they're making this final stand. If you can find one to fit you, remember a linen suit will look mighty good to you when you unpack your summer things next year.

Alarm clocks, too. One dollar for a little songster that's guaranteed to make you one of the early birds.

Blouses, too. Gobs of them—$1. If you want plain ones for tailored suits, they're here. If you want them with bows and furbelows, they're here, too. All colors, all sizes, all styles.

Here's a come-on for the gentlemen—straw hats not $1, but two for $1.

In the toilet goods department you may buy two $1.50 boxes of bath powder for $1, two $2 bottles of perfume for $1, and three $1 boxes of face powder for the same price.

Traveling Atomizers.

Many travelers have packed their belongings and set off, leaving their atomizers at home. We can't take you along, they say, because you spill your contents just as you see it.

That's true of the average atomizer, but not of those in a downtown store. These are traveling atomizers that come neatly packed in small cases which hold the pastel glass bottles, firmly secured with metal tops. Next to this is a little section reserved for the atomized bulb. Packed this way, there's no danger of leakage.

The manufacturers have made a name for themselves in the atomizer business. People know their products can be depended on to do what they're said to do. So!

Makes Gray Hair Snowy.

Hair was never meant to be just a covering for the head. It was meant to be a vital part of you, and to stand as strongly for your charm as your voice or eyes. It was meant to accentuate the beauty of a lovely face, to offset a homely face.

Those with streaked hair sigh to themselves that it's bad enough as it is, why worry Others with gray hair deplore it, dye it, and do many things to take away its natural beauty.

There are many dyes intended for gray hair, but there is but one tonic which turns gray hair to the silvery color it should be. When it is applied it strengthens and thickens the hair, clears the color of streaks, takes away the faded look, and turns it to a veritable triumph of white. Remember it isn't soft, snowy white hair that ages your face, but dull gray hair.

You need have no fear of using this. While it changes the hair to a natural loveliness, it also helps the hair to grow thicker and gives it a healthy gloss.

Another Alcoholic Item.

The same store caters to imbibers with a metal tray covered with rules and regulations for cocktails, highballs and wines. Across the top in bold type is printed, "Say when—and here's how!" Underneath are several suggestions for the cocktail hour, recipes for favorite cocktails and highballs. Underneath is a list of tempting appetizers. On the otherside are several after-dinner suggestions in the way of appropriate drinks. Under this is a list of "in the evening" drinks. The middle section is taken up with a wine list, side by side with courses and separate dishes.

This sells for $1.

Scarfs for Evening Wear.

For cool summer evenings, sheer chiffon scarfs! They're so wispy and light that they literally float around a person's neck. But even at that, they keep out the light evening chill, and prove pretty and comfortable at the same time.

One of the loveliest scarfs at a downtown store is one of these soft chiffons, a light lavender, covered over with misty-looking flowers.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

By Susan Mills.

Salads and salad accomplishments are always interesting and practically a necessity in hot weather.

Also, they are something not to be merely sniffed at. A salad rises in the rank of the menu, reaches an honorable place and stays there.

Tasty Accompaniment.

One favorite salad accompaniment is the following one featuring cheese and uncooked rolled oats as a basis.

Sift together 3 cups of sifted bread flour, 4½ teaspoons of baking powder, quick acting, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Add ½ cup of cheese, grated, and ½ cup of rolled oats after the last sifting. Cut ½ cup of butter into the mixture. Make a well in the center, add ¾ cup of milk and mix with 40 strokes of a 2-tined fork. Sprinkle rolled oats liberally over a bread board. Place the dough on the board and sprinkle the dough liberally with rolled oats. Roll very thin, ⅛ inch, and cut in strips of desired size or 3½ inches by ¾ inch. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) for 8 to 10 minutes. Brush with melted butter as soon as removed from oven.

Favorite salads for this time of the year are quick cole slaw for dinner accompaniment and served with a large platter of cold meat. To 4 cups of cabbage, finely shredded, add a chopped green pepper or a diced tart, red apple and a few drops of onion juice. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 tablespoon of sugar and a dash of pepper, and moisten with mayonnaise which has been combined with 2 tablespoons of vinegar. Mix well and serve garnished with crisp lettuce.

Fabric Masquerades as Cereal

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—If you're in fashion, for every dish of farina or bran or oatmeal you stow away at breakfast, there's a corresponding silk to be taken on the street, at the bridge table, even over the cocktail shaker.

The "cereal" fabrics, as they're named (and the individual silks are acutally called by the names of various breakfast foods), are fine rough-surfaced silks which somewhat resemble the old-fashioned fabrics known as "armures."

They have a distinct look and feel of wool, but of a very lightweight, almost sheer wool. They take color beautifully and drape and tailor well. So you'll find them made up into trim tailored street dresses, in soft afternoon dresses and even in the more formal cocktail type dress.

Most of the new silks are more "pebbled" of surface than they were last year. The cantons are rougher. And in addition to these "cereal" fabrics there's an alpaca-like silk, crisp and wiry, though not as stiff as the old-fashioned alpaca.

This alpaca is also used for tailored and formal dresses (even for evening dresses where crisp fabrics are very important).

When you examine this year's ribbed and crinkled silks you're going to be impressed by their greater practicality. They've been improved so they don't pull and stretch as much as they did last year.

Heavy sheers are still being used for dressier daytime costumes and are particularly liked by older women.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Colon Diverticula.

About 40 years ago there appeared a very comprehensive review of a series of cases of a disease of the colon that had been little studied. The disease described was characterized by sacculations or pocket-like outgrowths of the colon wall. For the last generation the condition, known as diverticulosis and diverticulitis of the colon, has been intensively studied, and much progress has been made in understanding the nature of the disease and in devising proper remedies. One of our clinics has reported that in a large number of X-ray examinations of the colon nearly 6 per cent showed diverticula of the colon wall.

The wall of the colon is comparatively thin and is composed of a much folded mucous membrane lining and a muscular coat. Should any part of the wall of the colon be weakened, that part may, under pressure, stretch and form a sac-like projection. Although these dilated or stretched areas may occur in any part of the colon, they are more common in the transverse and descending portions.

Whenever fecal matter is retained within these sacs or bowel wall the patient ususally knows that something is wrong, as the resulting inflammation may give rise to temperature, to an increase in the white cells of the blood, and possibly to abdominal distention. Inflammation caused by diverticula may cause considerable pain, and diarrhea will alternate with constipation.

If abscesses form, or if the sacculations are fairly large and are discharging puslike material into the intestinal tract, surgery may be needed.

POTOMAC PARK

By CAROLYN COX

In the group of friends in Wanda Mallory's circle of friends are Kentucky Queen, who is in love with a Congressman, Zeke Tolliver; but he loves Zephyr Leighton. Royce another member of the crowd also loves her. Nick is enamored of Priscilla, who taunts him by flaunting other suitors. Wanda cares deeply for David Randall, who seems to reciprocate, but does not propose to her.

WANDA and David walked briskly through the park and stood by the pool to watch the skaters, graceful and awkward, young and old, carefree and derermined to be so. The poetry of motion. Unfortunately, Wanda was out of it.

"Never learned, and not now. I'm reluctant to break any bones this bright day. Let's walk around the Tidal Basin."

They did. As they returned through the shrubbery near the War Memorial bandstand, they saw a couple of skaters who had forsaken the pool. Priscilla, mindful of esthetic effects, had posed her red and black costumed figure against a fluted marble column in provocative languor. She smoked a cigarette, and studied Nick, whom she had lashed into a jealous temper.

"Is Carlin that bird you're always dating up?"

Priscilla's red lips released a ring of smoke to the frosty air.

"Yes, darling. What are you going to do about it?"

"This!" Nick answered savagely, demonstrating.

Priscilla went limp in his arms and closed her eyes rapturously.

"Rats!" scoffed Wanda as David tactfully hurried her by. "She makes me tired. Can't take an honest kiss without going Hollywood. Spiritual—my hat!"

Two Martyrs.

When they arrived at the apartment, famished, Royce was helping Kentucky in the kitchen, and Zephyr was sitting on the lounge with Zeke. Their flushed, happy faces made her uneasy.

Self-abnegation carried too far ceases to be a Christian virtue, she mused. Royce and Kentucky are just a little too good for this vale of tears.

Priscilla stopped at her apartment to change her red pants for a skirt," explained Nick, arriving alone a few minutes later, unable to resist a jibe at the costume he secretly admired.

She came in shortly, wearing a look of seraphic innocence and a clingy sweater suit of fuzzy white and blue. The buckwheat cakes were passed around. Kentucky was kept busy at the stove. David tried to help, but was shy and hesitant as one who had lost the knack of doing things which were easy once.

Zephyr poured the coffee at a little table. Zeke assumed that he helped most by keeping in an out-of-the-way corner. Nick did as he was told cheerfully. Priscilla awaited with regal patience to be served. Royce saw an empty coffee cup the moment it was drained, brought cream and sugar, was on the spot with more butter, sausage or syrup before it was requested.

A Thoughtful Man.

He is the most thoughtful man I ever saw, Wanda was thinking. I hope that Zephyr has the sense to notice it.

When appetites were appeased, he carried the dishes into the kitchen and then fetched his heaping plate with Kentucky's, and they sat down to enjoy the fruits of their toil.

Afterwards, he waved Wanda aside and helped Kentucky again in the kitchen.

They're bending over backwards to be generous to their rivals, Wanda thought. Suppose David took a fancy to Zephyr; would I chase myself off and let her take him without a blink of my eye? I would not!

"I'll show my grandmother's quilts now, Zephyr," Kentucky said, leading her into the bedroom when the dishes were done. "If you want to borrow any of them for the charity exhibit, you are welcome."

The telephone rang. It was a call for Priscilla, who, as usual, had informed the operator where she might be located in the event of possible dinner invitations.

Zephyr refused Royce's seat on the lounge and Zeke's rocker, and sat on a footstool by the window, idly turning through magazines as she talked.

Priscilla was saying: "Oh, yes, Mr. Carlin! How nice of you!"

Nick's ears—was it an actuality or an illusion?—turned forward like a setter's, pointing toward the telephone until Priscilla accepted the invitation.

"Such an interesting man, Mr. Tolliver," she explained as she returned to the room, a little languorous than when she left it, which was a fairly sure indication that she was inwardly less so. "I want you to know him."

"Pleased, I'm sure," Tolliver replied politely, without interest.

Nick glared. The conversation turned politics. Wanda felt the pull or jealous undercurrents as Royce, sublimating his rivalry to an intellectual plane, attacked the Congressman through what he termed the mistakes of the Administration.

Zephyr watch Royce admiringly as she listened. Zeke noted it and grew sarcastic.

Problems Discussed.

"You speak as if you had advance information, Kilgore—a private conference with God; oh, something of the sort."

"I wish I had, Mr. Tolliver. Only God knows what is going to happen if we go on, blindfolded, pushing up artificial prices. We must limit crops, they say, because we have lost the foreign markets. We havn't exhausted the possibilities of getting foreign markets back."

"Not on your life!" Agreed David instantly. Some of our best minds are concentrated upon stirring up a tidy little foreign war to consume our surplus."

"That's no joke either. But if we can't find legitimate foreign markets, we must make our own. Raise the standards of living to embrace more luxuries and nonessentials."

"For instance?"

"You supply the examples for me. A truth game. We've all given up something since the depression that enriched our lives but was not essential to existence. Where did you pinch your budget, Kaintuck?

Everyone Economized.

"Oh, my goodness! All along the line—loads of little things—season tickets for the symphonies and theaters. I used to go to the National every week—first nights."

"Now you're coming. Luxuries. You go on living, don't you? Just as happy?"

"Well, it's a habit. You miss them terribly at first."

"In other words, your cultural standard was lowered to meet your budget, and actors and musicians and stage hands are on relief rolls."

"Don't blame me——"

"I'm not. You next, Priscilla. Be frank, now."

She sighed. "Clothes. I've worn nothing but rags as $7.95 or two for $15. I've done my own shampooing and manicuring. I've given up a special brand of bath salts that made me feel like a Gainsborough duchess, and a sachet powder that made you think of honeysuckles and moonlight."

"That's just what I mean," Royce explained. "I don't hold that riotous spending will bring prosperity; I believe that we ought to live within our incomes but keep our standard of living as high as possible. It is the things we can do without that are at the root of this unemployment."

Luxuries Provide Jobs.

"My mother still lets a pail down into the well on a rope and draws it up hand-over-hand for her cooking and washing," Kentucky said.

"Exactly. And if we may judge by the specimen before us, your mother raised as fine a family of citizens as Uncle Sam can boast of anywhere. Your mother deserves a gasoline pump to get the water in the house and an electric washing machine and other laundry equipment. We talk about American extravagance because a few millionaires on Park avenue and Miami Beach show off. The standard of living of the great majority of American citizens is not too high."

"We're waiting."

"I'm telling you all I know, and nobody knows better than I that it isn't much. We'll never be able to pay for what we have a right to unless people can work. We've got to get credit somehow to start up the factories for the things we can do without but oughtn't to. With people working they can buy radios, automobiles, frigidaires, electric clocks, dishwashers, pianos, bridge tables, rugs, books, central heating pants, and all the things that go to make up what the Democrats call a more abundant life."

Time to Go.

"For mercy's sake!" gasped Zephyr, looking at her watch. "I must go!"

They made a leisurely departure. Wanda and David were left alone in the apartment when Kentucky went out with the others toward the elevator.

"You didn't say much," Wanda remarked. "Didn't you like it?"

He tested her understanding by the cryptic retort: "Did the wandering Israelites like manna?"

"You mean—that it was bread from heaven?" She was puzzled. "You are smarter than any of them," she asserted loyally. "If you had wanted to, you could have talked circles all around them."

"Oh, my dear, I said all I wanted to say. I was so contented, just sitting here by you, who are pleased to like me a little, in this pretty, cheerful room, among friendly, intelligent people and—and feel their friendliness. To feel no hostility for them either—that was pleasant, too."

Her bewilderment deepened. "To feel—how?"

"Oh, to feel all the marvelous vibrations of hearts beating, of laughter, of minds thrumming the void, of bodies radiating vitality, to share the pleasantest thing in the whole wide world—the communion of human beings."

Wanda looked at him searchingly. Her small, thin face grew almost beautiful as understanding welled up from her own isolated spirit and filled her eyes with starry mist.

"You've been awfully lonely, haven't you?"

Her query lay on her hushed breathing, soft and uncertain as a wandering snowflake. "Can't you tell me why?"

He hesitated briefly, and shook his head. She sighed.

"I've been lonely, too. Not in the same way, perhaps. In fact, I didn't quite realize the depth of it until you came. You've made me feel that—that you and I will—together—find wings for ourselves—to soar into some world of knowledge out there in some beyond we could never find alone. Am I awfully foolish to think so?"

"Perhaps." His hands cupped her face, lifted it. "But God bless your folly, my dear. We'll emulate the Administration in the courage of experiment."

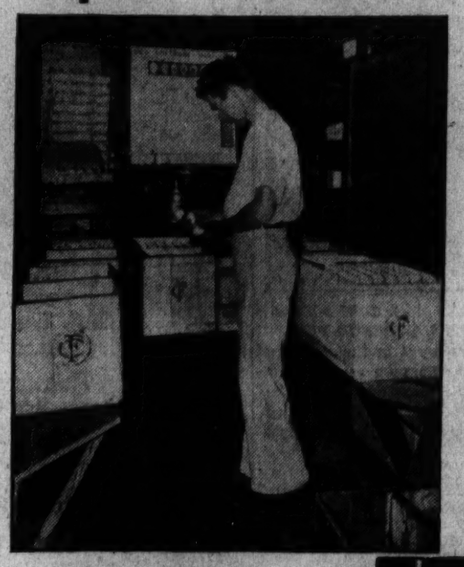
No ordinary egg can pass the strict requirements of this high Government rating. To qualify, these eggs must be first of all STRICTLY FRESH. Then they must be LARGE (24 ounces per dozen or over), UNIFORM and CLEAN. They must pass tests as to condition of yolk and shell. In short, they must be strictly of the highest quality available.

Expert Candlers and Graders



Licensed by the Government, make certain that every egg passes the rigid rating known as

U. S. Extras (large) Grade "A"

The Government does not permit the promiscuous use of its seal. To use it, the graders must be licensed by the Department of Agriculture as being capable of maintaining the high standards set up under this rating. Their work is examined and supervised by a member of the Department itself.

A View of Our Candling Department

With the aid of the "candler," these men actually "look inside" each egg. Their trained eye watches the amount of air space (which determines its freshness) and any blemishes inside or cracks in the shell are readily noticeable. Such eggs are promptly set aside and are not permitted to be cartoned under the Government seal.

We are safe in saying that you can find no better eggs in the City of Washington. Yet the price is surprisingly low for such quality.

Hood, Noted For Skyscraper Designs, Dies

Architect Won Fortune by Daring Departures From Tradition.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Raymond Hood, who achieved international fame in architecture through daring departures from his profession's traditions, died today at his home in suburban Stamford, Conn. He was 53 years old.

Hood was past 40, none too successful and burdened with debts, when in 1922 he designed a monumental Gothic skyscraper, in association with John Mead Howells.

Their design won the $50,000 prize offered for the Chicago Tribune tower and as the imposing structure was reared on the Illinois city's Michigan boulevard, Hood's fame—and clientele—grew.

Ill of Arthritis.

He designed the American Radiator and New York Daily News buildings and other skyscrapers, was one of three consultants in development of Rockefeller Center and one of the architects at The Century of Progress in Chicago.

Ill of arthritis for several months, he had returned home recently from Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. The widow and three children survive.

Born in Pawtucket, R. I., March 29, 1881, Hood was educated at Brown University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He began the practice of architecture in Pittsburgh in 1903 and came to New York 11 years later.

Had Struggle at Start.

Commissions were scarce and irregular. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid gave him one of his first tasks, doing over a bathroom for the prospective use of the Prince of Wales.

Hood estimated a $12 masonry job, but Mrs. Reid urged him to make further suggestions.

"Place a sporting print on the wall," Hood replied.

He redecorated a restaurant and took board and room in exchange. This "retainer" enabled him to marry Elsie Schmidt.

His $10,000 share of the Chicago Tribune tower prize paid off accumulated debts and a new era opened for architecture's "brilliant bad boy," as he was called by some of his contemporaries.

Marie Dressler's Death Bed Will Receives Probate

Los Angeles, Aug. 14 (AP).—Marie Dressler's last will and testament, disposing of her $310,000 estate, was admitted to probate today as witnesses to it described her signing of the document while on her death bed.

"She sat up in bed, took the pen in her fingers, and scratched her sprawling signature," testified Alan Breed Walker, the actress' lifelong friend, whom she named executor of her estate, and said: 'Well, that's that.'

"She seemed so cheerful and full of energy, we asked her to autograph some pictures for us. This she did, with the same expression, and the same remark, 'That's that.'"

The estate was described as $50,000 in public utility bonds; $50,000 in stocks; $110,000 in cash; a Beverly Hills home worth $50,000, and $50,000 in miscellaneous properties. There were numerous bequests to old friends and $50,000 to Jerry Cox and his wife, her faithful colored servants. The residue will go to her sister, Mrs. Bonita Ganthony, residing in England.

Pretzels Go Under NRA Regulations With 40-Hour Week

A new twist will be given to pretzel manufacturing August 27, when the industry begins functioning under an NRA code.

Workers in the trade will receive a 40-hour maximum week. The limit will be extended to 48 hours during peak periods. Delivery salesmen will be exempt from maximum hours when paid $22 a week.

Minimum wages were set at 40 cents an hour for machine operators and oven men, 32½ cents an hour for other male employes and 30 cents an hour for female employes.

New Forest Blazes Add to Idaho Menace

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 14 (AP).—While 4,000 seasoned foresters and CCC workers fought 8,000 acres of fire in the Selway and Clearwater forests of Central Idaho today new fires were popping out in Northern Idaho.

About 400 firefighters were on three burns in Bonner county. The fires were near Tweedy, Blanchard and Colburn. The Selway blaze had claimed two of the three lives lost yesterday in forest fires, LeRoy McGinnis, of Kewanee, Ill., and Lester Johnson, of Galesburg, Ill. The third victim was William Mattison, 21, killed near Nevada City, Calif. All were CCC workers.

Seavey Takes Power Duties

Commission Membership Complete for First Time in 2 Years.

Clyde L. Seavey, of California, yesterday assumed his duties as a member of the Federal Power Commission, completing its full membership for the first time in two years, the Associated Press reported.

Seavey, appointed as a Progressive Republican member on the commission by President Roosevelt in June and confirmed by the Senate at the last session of Congress, said he was in thorough sympathy and accord with the announced policies of the commission developed and maintained during the time Frank R. McNinch, of North Carolina, had been chairman.

McNinch, who was originally appointed to the commission by former President Herbert Hoover, was elevated to the chairmanship by President Roosevelt and since that time has been given another recess appointment.

400 Truckmen Agree To Arbitrate Strike

Portland, Ore., Aug. 14 (AP).—Four hundred truck drivers who deserted their vehicles yesterday morning to strike for higher wages, returned to work this afternoon after agreeing to submit their case to arbitration.

The drivers, operators of drayage trucks, had quit work because their employers would not increase their wages from an average of $4.50 an 8-hour day, to $5.50.

Hay Fever? Don't Blame Goldenrod, Says Doctor

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—Hay fever sufferers might as well quit blaming goldenrod. Commonly considered the main source of hay fever, this plant was exonerated today by Dr. Leon Unger, director of the hay fever clinic at Northwestern University.

Research has established that only those plants whose pollen is spread by the wind cause hay fever, said Dr. Unger. Goldenrod is pollinated by insects.

Lovers Confess Killing Husband

Centerville, Tex., Aug. 14 (AP).—A ghastly death plot inspired by an illicit love affair was confessed by Mrs. Charles Salsberry and Ibb Bass, young farmer, in pleading guilty today to murder and arson charges for slaying the woman's husband.

Apparently abandoning hope of saving themselves from the fate they risked when they schemed to get rid of Charles Salsberry, 28, the stolid, frail woman and Bass did not seek legal counsel. District Judge John N. Adkisson ordered them held for grand jury action in October.

The confessions by Mrs. Salsberry, 23, and her 22-year-old lover, detailing how Salsberry was poisoned and burned to death were introduced in evidence.

Killer Removed To Death House

Guard Says Palmer Told of Part in Robbery.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 14 (AP).—Joe Palmer, a convicted killer from the Southwest, was headed back to the death house of the Huntsville, Tex., prison tonight to "die in 30 days," as he declared. He is under death sentence.

Immediately after his departure in custody of two Texas prison officials, Palmer James, city prosecuting attorney, announced that Palmer told Fred Swenter, a guard who watched the outlaw's cell, that he planned the $23,000 robbery two weeks ago of the Henderson (Ky.) Farmers Bank & Trust Co.

Swenter told his superiors that the desperado admitted his part, and added that he "got his slice out of the loot." Palmer claimed he had $800 in cash and a $250 Government bond on him when he went to sleep just before his arrest early Saturday morning. Police said there was no money on the man when he was arrested.

Doctors Speed to Sea To Aid Stricken Sailor

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 14 ((AP)).—Carrying two physicians of the public health service from the U. S. Marine hospital here, the Coast Guard Cutter Saranac sped out into the Gulf late today in an attempt to save the life of a ship's officer stricken with acute appendicitis aboard the oil tanker J. Fletcher Farrell.

Radio messages reported second mate Peterson "violently ill and in a coma" and urged a surgeon and physician be rushed to meet the tanker, about 400 miles out from Galveston.

THEY'RE OUT-DATED because only the world's newest, biggest, most modern refining unit could produce "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS. We had to build a new refinery to bring "New-Action" to you—no existing refinery equipment could do it.

This new refinery and our new and radically different refining principle, make it possible to convert more of the undeveloped energy in the raw crude oil into finished gasoline. It also gives "New-Action" Orange AMERICAN GAS greater SUSTAINING* POWER and means a better gasoline in every way a gasoline can be better—in anti-knock—surer power—easier riding—readier acceleration and lower cost per mile.

Get tomorrow's gas today! Say "New-Action" American and get action at any of our dealers and stations from Maine to Florida!

SUSTAINING POWER--the retaining of efficiency between refinery and road performance.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

about the world's biggest, best, newest refining unit at Texas City, Texas

The refinery covers 450 acres of land.

It required an average of 2,600 men per day—a period of nine months to actually construct the refinery (aside from time consumed in planning).

The refining unit is the most modern in the world—adopting the latest discoveries and innovations in the art of refining.

An idea of the mammoth size of the refining unit can be obtained from the following:

1. In a single operating day, this unit will produce enough gasoline to run an average automobile 9,000,000 miles, or about 360 times around the earth at the equator.
2. Six 8-room houses could be set inside a single one of its furnaces.
3. One of its fractionating towers—most massive ever built—is as high as a seven-story building.
4. 40¾ miles of piping were used just in two furnaces to provide the required heat exchange surface.
5. This unit will turn out enough heavy bunker oil in a single day to produce, if used in making electric power, current sufficient to provide the home lighting requirements of a city of 2,000,000 people.
6. In addition, large quantities of kerosene, furnace oil for home heating, and gas are made.

Brown Wins Over Petrin On Points

1,800 Watch District Heavyweight Pound Out Decision.

Visitor Winner Only of One Round on Post's Sheet.

By Bill McCormick.

NATIE BROWN, the boll weevil of boxing, bored into the midsection of Don Petrin for 10 rounds at Griffith Stadium last night to take a unanimous decision in an enervating heavyweight grind that headed an excellent program of punch witnessed by 1,800.

Interspersed with Brown's boring-in-to-the-cotton belt tactics was a fancy assortment of long range left hooks to the head and right crossed in the same general direction which shook Petrin considerably, but it was the midsection "putsch" which won for Brown without equivocation—even though some of the gallery gods greeted the just decision with a salvo of Brooklyn burps.

Takes One Round.

On The Post score sheet Petrin won only one round—the second—and drew one—the seventh—bowing to Brown's superior ringmanship and caginess in the other eight. Brown won as he pleased in his eight rounds, outsmarting Petrin in close, whipping over a snaky left hook to the head frequently and zipping home a punishing right to the jaw infrequently, to settle the question of supremacy beyond the shadow of a doubt to all but the boys in the back seats, who were just waiting for an opportunity to exercise their vocal chords, anyway.

In his only losing round, Brown was way out front until Don landed a nice, substantial right to the jaw, followed by an even better right to the jaw that shook the ultimate winner to the heels. Brown bounced back with a determined, two-fisted body attack that almost, but not quite, evened the period.

Eddy Burt, of Jacksonville, whanged out a split decision over Billy Landers in a fast eight-round semifinal which followed the main fracas. Landers opened a deep gash over Burt's left eye in the third and broke the thumb of his own right hand in the fourth. Burt's cut was closed, but the corner couldn't do a thing for Lander's thumb—and therein lay the sotry. Many thought the decision was just, many thought Burt was on the righ end of a wrong decision nad many thought it was a draw——so a draw probably would have ben a better decision.

Reed, Scipio Draw.

Jimmy Reed, of Jacksonville, and Mike Scipio, a Baltimore welterweight, staged an amusing six-rounder. According to custom, Reed went down twice in the first round, for six and nine counts, then battled his way back to a clean-cut decision, but the best he could get from the judges and referee was a draw. Judge Denny Hughes voted Reed the winner, Judge Henri Di Sibour decided Scipio had won and Referee Muggsy Morris rode the fence by casting his vote for a draw.

Billy Bullock outpunched, outsmarted and outspeeded Sammy Lucas of Florida in a fast six-round preliminary. The Washington lad started very cautiously, but gradually gathered momentum, hammering Lucas into a state closely resembling non compos mentis in the fourth round and carrying on from there with great dexterity and skill to take a unanimous decision.

Jackie Donnelly took a unanimous decision from a badly out-of-condition Harry Kershey in an interesting four, which opened the proceedings. Kershey's timing and judgment of distance was woefully amiss during the early stages of the bout, but he fought himself back into a semblance of shape to almost knock out Donnelly in the final and to earn no less than a draw in the opinion of the majority of the spectators.

Dodgers Buy Two.

Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 14 (AP).—Frank Lamanski, left-handed pitcher, and Russ Olsen, rookie shortstop, today were sold by the Davenport club of the Western League, to the Brooklyn Dodgers. "The price was so low that I'm ashamed to state how much we got for them," President Paul Lagomarcino declared.

Pirates Rally Off Hubbell; Win, 3-2

Are Held to One Hit Until 7th; Grimes Makes His First Start of Year.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 14 (AP).—A pair of pitching veterans, Burleigh Grimes and Waite Hoyt, got the better of the brilliant Carl Hubbell today as the Pirates turned back the Giants, 3 to 2, in the first game of the league leaders' final invasion of the West. The defeat didn't do any harm to New York's four-game lead as the second-place cubs took a beating from Boston.

For seven innings it looked like Hubbell's game as the southpaw ace limited the Pirates to one hit, a single by Lloyd Waner in the fifth. But the tide turned suddenly in the last two frames. Trailing 2 to 0 going into the eighth, the Bucs tied the score on the second and third hits off Hubbell, plus an error by Hughey Critz, and won with two more hits in the ninth.

First Start of Year.

Grimes, making his first start of the season, pitched six-hit ball until he was removed for a pinch-batsman in the eighth.

The Giants touched Grimes for a run in the second when Travis Jackson walked, Harry Danning doubled, and after two had been retired and the bases loaded by an intentional pass to Joe Moore, Critz beat out a slow bounder for a hit. In the next inning Phil Weintraub singled and Jackson brought him home with a triple, but was left stranded.

Gus Suhr was the leader of the Pirate rallies which won the game. After Arky Vaughan singled to start the eighth, Suhr sent a hard liner over Bill Terry's head and it bounced off the right-field wall past Mel Ott for a triple. Critz's fumble of Manager Pie Traynor's grounder let Suhr score.

Score After Two Outs.

The winning run came from Freddie Lindstrom's double and Suhr's single after two were out in the ninth.

Betty Nuthall Is Upset in Title Play

Miss Jacobs, Shaky at Start, Wins; Other Choices Score.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—The foreign threat to Helen Jacobs' reign as women's tennis champion of America lost most of its power today when Betty Nuthall, the bounding Briton and top-seeded foreign star, was toppled in a second-round upset by Baroness Maude Levi, of Minden, Nev.

While all the seeded Americans and other visiting players gained the third round of the forty-seventh National tournament, Miss Nuthall bowed to the baroness in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4.

Twenty pounds heavier than when she appeared in this country last year with the British Wightman Cup team and in the National championship, Miss Nuthall was far below the form that carried her to the American title in 1930 and made her one of the top-heavy favorites this year.

Dazzling Chop Strokes.

Steady from the start, the baroness employed dazzling chop strokes almost exclusively, aiming them at the English girl's vulnerable backhand. When Betty's famous pulverizing forehand drives failed to shake the American, she resorted to lobs, but this tactical maneuver only resulted in the baroness scoring heavily with stinging overhead smashes.

After a somewhat shaky start in the first set, Miss Jacobs lifted her game to championship heights to eliminate Jane Sharp of Pasadena, Calif., 6—4, 6—1. Miss Sharp got away to a 3—1 lead in games in the first set.

Annoyed by Fans.

Miss Jacobs was visibly annoyed by the conduct of the spectators, who cheered the Pasadena player's winning shots and the champion's errors as well. Miss Jacobs complained to the umpire, who requested silence while the ball was in play. After that Miss Jacobs steadied down and made short work of the remainder of the set and ran through the second chapter in little more than ten minutes.

Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass.; Carolyn Babcock, of Los Angeles, and Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn.—the other seeded Americans in that order—disposed of their opponents more easily than did Miss Jacobs. Miss Palfrey conquered Mae Ceurvorst, of Wichita, Kans., 6—0, 6—2; Miss Babcock took over Anne Page, of Philadelphia, 6—1, 6—0, in a match that required less than 20 minutes, and Miss Andrus defeated Charlotte Darling, of Philadelphia, 6—0, 6—1.

Miss Nuthall's compatriots, Katherine Stammers and Freda James, and Elizabeth Ryan, a California seeded with the visitors because she had lived for many years in London, were extended to three sets each to win.

Miss Stammers Victor.

Miss Stammers, a good-looking southpaw, outlasted and outsteadied Mrs. Marjorie Morrill Painter, of Dedham, Mass., who was ranked nationally at No. 2 in 1930, 1—6, 6—4, 11—9. The final set was a thrill-packed affair, with Miss Stammers passing up a chance to end the contest in the 10th game when she was at match point and sprawled on the turf trying to reach for one of her opponent's corner baseline returns.

Miss Ryan, famous as the best doubles player of her sex, had many anxious moments in her match against Norma Taubele, of New York, but her experience finally prevailed over the ambitious youngster, who lost, 6—4, 6—8, 6—1. Miss James eliminated Mrs. John Van Ryan, of East Orange, N. J., 6—2, 6—8, 6—1, after the New Jersey player tired fast following the second set.

The remaining seven seeded players appear certain to reach the quarter-finals tomorrow on the strength of the opposition they will meet. Miss Stammers alone appears to be in for a tough brush, having Katharine Winthrop, of Boston, on the other side of the net.

The other seeded pairings are: Miss Jacobs vs. Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, of Kansas City; Miss Ryan vs. Helen Fulton, of Chicago; Miss Babcock vs. Mrs. Penelope McBridge, of Short Hills, N. J.; Miss Palfrey vs. Dr. Esther Bartosh, of Los Angeles; Miss James vs. Marianne Hunt, of Los Angeles, and Miss Andrus vs. Theodosia Smith, of Los Angeles.

Doubles.

Priscilla Merwin, Los Angeles, and Mar Hope Does, Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Mrs. Robert H. Morris, Cohassett, Mass., and Virginia Cross, Providence, R. I., 7—5, 7—5; Katherine Stammers, England, and Katharine Winthrop, Boston, defeated Theodosia Smith, Los Angeles, and Helen Jones, Beach Bluff, Mass., 6—3, 6—2; Bonnie Miller, Los Angeles, and Mrs. Dellloyd Thompson, Washington, Pa., defeated Mrs. D. P. Caulkins, Detroit, and Elizabeth Blackman, Detroit, 3, 7—5, 6—1; Betty Nuthall and Freda James, England, defeated Jean Hoxie and Ruth McCabe, Detroit, 6—0, 6—2; Margaret Blake, Brookline, Mass., and Mrs. Henry C. Brunie, White Plains, N. Y., defeated Marjorie Sachs, Cambridge, Mass., and Virginia Ellis, Harvard, Mass., 6—3, 4—6, 6—4; Baroness Maude Levi, Minden, Nev., and Mrs. Penelope McBridge, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Elisa Coxe, Asheville, N. C., and Effie Billings, Canada, 6—3, 6—2; Dr. Esther Bartosh, Los Angeles, and Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, Kansas City, defeated Eunice Dean, San Antonio, Tex., and Charlotte Darling, Philadelphia, 6—2, 9—7; Catharine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind., and Helen Fulton, Chicago, defeated Mrs. M. M. Painter, Dedham, Mass., and Virginia Rice, Boston, 8—6, 2—6, 9—7.

Deans Balk at Fines; Suspended, Will Fish

Dizzy, Irked, Tears Up Own Uniform and Another Player's; Players Vote Confidence in Frisch After He Asserts He Must Have Discipline.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 14 (AP).—Dizzy and Paul Dean, star pitchers of the St. Louis Cardinals, were indefinitely suspended late today by Manager Frankie Frisch as an outgrowth of their failure to accompany the Cardinals to Detroit for an exhibition game yesterday.

The suspensions were announced by Frisch after the brothers approached the manager and demanded, "Are we suspended?"

Frisch told Dizzy he had been fined $100 and Paul $50, but said they had not been suspended, and ordered them on the field. The Deans said they would go "in a few minutes," but Frisch interpreted their actions as meaning they were not going to accept the fines gracefully and told them they were suspended indefinitely.

Tears Up Uniforms.

Dizzy tore up his uniform, and the uniform of another player, and said he and Paul would go to Bradenton, Fla., where Dizzy has a home.

Asked if he "really meant" he and Paul were going away, Dizzy snorted: "Yes, if we have enough money coming, after they take those fines out of our pay, we're going on a fishing trip in Florida.

"Of course, it's posible they'll remit the fines quickly when they find out how badly they need us. It may be in the seventh inning this afternoon. You can't tell."

Dizzy has won 21 games this season, while losing five. Paul has won 12 and lost 6.

Sit In Grandstand

During today's game with Philadelphia, Dizzy and Paul sat in the grandstand, in street clothing, near the Phillies' dugout. Before the game, visiting players talked with them, presumably getting details of the trouble.

"Something had to be done," Frisch asserted. "Other players on the club have been fined for doing things they should not have done, and they have taken their fines.

"No player or two players can be bigger than the game, or bigger than their club. I've been playing ball for 16 years in the National League. I've done things I shouldn't have done, and I've been fined and I've been suspended. I had to take it. That goes for everybody on this club, everybody in the game.

Will Have Discipline

"There will be discipline on this club, even if we finish last—which, of course, we won't."

After the row with the Deans, the remainder of the Cardinals gave Frisch a unanimous vote of confidence.

In addition to winning more than half of the club's victories this year, the Deans have been the Cardinals' greatest gate attraction. More than 36,000 fans, the largest baseball crowd here since the 1931 world series, turned out for Sunday's double-header with the Chicago Cubs, after it had been announced far in advance that the Deans would pitch.

In Numerous Rows.

Dizzy has been in numerous rows with the Cardinal management, the most notable episode this year being over Paul's $3,000 salary, which Dizzy sought to increase by a "strike." Dizzy's "walkout" was short-lived, and Paul's salary presumably remained unchanged.

Last year Gabby Street, then manager of the Cardinals, fined Dizzy $100 for missing a train, but a shut-out victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers softened Gabby's heart and Dizzy never paid.

Dizzy, who is leading the National League in strike-outs as well as games won, has said his 1934 salary is $6,500, but that he will demand $18,500 before signing for next year.

Braves' 23 Bingles Swamp Cubs, 15-2

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—With every man in the line-up getting at least two hits, the Boston Braves pounded out a 15-to-2 victory over the Cubs in the opening game of the series today. The Chicagoans lost a chance to gain on the Giants who also lost to Pittsburgh.

Four Cub pitchers were raked for 23 hits, 21 of them singles. Ed Brandt checked the Cubs, and his mates blasted Guy Bush for 7 singles and 6 runs after two were out in the third inning.

Tribe Chases Stewart to Win, 5-1

Nats Are Held Safe as Harder Gets Credit in Series Opener.

Russell Is Effective in Relief Role After Verdict Is Sealed.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE Indians swooped down on Griffith's stockade yesterday afternoon and with a few whoops and a hearty yank, concentrated in the first inning, stretched the Nats' current losing streak to four games and almost dropped them a peg in the league standings. The final tally was 5-1. There were no Washington casualties, incidentally.

Taking their cue from the A's, the Redskins ambushed Walter Stewart in that fatal first and tommyhawked him for five hits and three runs before Jack Russell was summoned from the bull-pen. Jack pitched a single to Farmer Seeds which scored a fourth run, then settled down and held the visitors scoreless until the sixth, when they carved a singleton with their little hatchets.

Harder No Softie.

With Mel Harder doing Cleveland's shot-putting, you can imagine how unnecesary three of those runs were. Mel gave up two hits and a run in the first, and thereafter the scoreboard custodians hung up nothing but ciphers. Between the first and eighth innings Washington's hits added up to absolutely nothing and only two runners made happy landings at third base.

I might add that Russell wasn't so bad, either. The Adonis of the pitching staff handed out only three hits after the first and twirled no-hit, no-run ball in six of the eight innings he worked.

Mickey Galatzer, recently returned from the minors and now installed at third for the Tribe, started the ball rolling in the first with a single to left and Knickerbocker followed wih a bunt down the third base line that was expected to fall foul, but didn't, and both runners were safe. Averill singled to center, scoring Galatzer and sending Knickerbocker to third. He was followed by Trosky, who drilled a single to right, scoring Knickerbocker and putting Averill on third. Hale then doubled down the left field line, sending Averill home and Trosky to third.

This singling to left and right, scoring somebody and putting somebody else on third would have gone on indefinitely had not Russell hove into view. Kamm looped one to Harris in right, and Trosky, trying to get home after the catch was out on Harris' peg to Bolton, but Hale, meanwhile, scampered around to third and Seeds' single brought him over.

Washington got back one of these runs as Schulte opened with a single to center and moved up to second on Susko's grounder to Trosky. Manush was thrown out by Harder, Schulte going to third, and Cronin busted one to right for the run.

The Nats never seriously threatened again until the eighth, when Johnny Stone bounced one off the center-field barrier and hobbled to second. Ed Linke went in to run for him and was caught going into third on Susko's rap to Knickerbocker.

In the ninth, Travis singled off Harder's bare hand with one down and was safe at second on Myer's grounder to Hale as Knickerbocker failed to touch the bag. But again the attack clogged and Bolton and Harris flied out.

Pytlak, the half-pint catcher who should have been a jockey, tripled down the left-field line in the sixth and Galatzer brought him across with a single to left for the Indians' fifth run.

Has Only Two Rules.

Philadelphia (U.P.).—Two rules which Jimmy Wilson enforces while managing the Philadelphia Phillies are "midnight" and "hustle."

All a player has to do according to Jimmy, is use common sense in his way of living and give the club a full day's work on the ball field.

Blanks St. Louis Except in Second; Red Sox Coast to Win.

BOSTON, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox, behind a six-hit hurling of Robert Moses Grove, today won the first game of the current series with the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 3. The game marked the first start of the colorful Grove since the removal of his tonsils several weeks ago.

The visitors scored all their runs in the second, when Lefty issued four of the six safeties recorded against him. A single by Campbell and doubles by Melillo and Memsley accounted for two of the runs while a walk to Strange, a single by Coffman and Billy Werber's wild throw to first base accounted for the third.

Tiger Streak Advances to 14 Mark

Gomez, Given Five-Run Advantage, Bows to Rallies in Opener.

Crowder, Rowe Victors; 25,000 Turned Away; 37th for Gehrig.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP).—The furious rush of the rampant Detroit Tigers carried them to two sensational victories over the New York Yankees today, extended their winning streak to 14 consecutive games and propelled them toward their first American League pennant in a quarter of a century.

Rising to extraordinary heights before one of the greatest crowds in the history of basebal, Mickey Cochrane's spectacular crew routed the great Lefty Gomez to score a 9-5 triumph in the first game and then pounded the Yankee right-hander, Red Ruffing, to capture the second game, 7 to 3, as Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, youthful Tiger pitching giant, registered his thirteenth consecutive victory.

Lead by 6½ Games.

Close to 80,000 spectators jammed the Yankee Stadium to see the Tigers stretch their lead in the American League pennant race to 6½ games.

It was the biggest baseball crowd of the year and the biggest that has been counted in the stadium since the Athletics played the Yankees before 85,265 fans on September 9, 1928. Today's official paid attendance, 77,000, was nevertheless in excess of that registered during the record turnout of six years ago and is the greatest in New York's baseball history.

Not only was the stadium jammed, but it was estimated more than 25,000 were turned away.

Three More in Series.

The Tigers won so impressively that they are now prohibitive favorites to continue their dash pennantward, riding the crest of the greatest league winning streak since 1916. They have three more games to play with the Yankees here.

The Yankees were overpowered by a Tiger attack that simply refused to be subdued by the best pitching the New Yorkers could produce. Gomez was given a 5-run lead in the first three innings of the opening game, but he blew up after holding Detroit to one hit in five innings and was knocked out of the box by a 5-run assault in the sixth.

Gehringer Hits Homer.

Charley Gehringer, second sacker of the Tigers whose bat was conspicuous in both games, started Gomez's downfall with a home run into the right-field stands. Combined with hits by Fox, Goslin, Rogell, Owen and Hayworth, it ended the southpaw's stay. He yielded to Jimmy Deshong, a right-hander, who was the victim of a 4-run attack in the seventh, due to his own wildness as well as hits by Goslin, Greenberg and Hayworth.

The Tigers batted completely around in both the sixth and seventh innings. Two more Yankee pitchers, Allen and Van Atta, were called before the outburst was controlled.

"General" Alvin Crowder, veteran right-hander obtained from Washington recently, got better as the game progressed and was credited with the victory. Saltzgaver's home run in the first inning and a four-hit attack in the third, accounting for 3 runs, represented the Yankees' only productive efforts.

Gehrig Slams One.

Rowe held the Yankees to four hits in the nightcap, but one of these was Lou Gehrig's thirty-seventh home run, high into the right-field stands, with Saltzgaver on base in the sixth inning. It tied the

Fort Springs 2½ Lengths In Rear

Blackbirder Runs 3d; Winner Is Favorite, Paying $3.40.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 14 (AP).—Currants, a 2-year-old which began his racing for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable last winter, won his second successive race at Narragansett today in accounting for the 6-furlong top event.

Taking the track at the rise of the barrier under the guidance of Joe Jacobs, the gelded son of Dominant ran in front all the way, finishing with 2½ lengths advantage over H. P. Headley's Fort Springs, also winner of his previous start. A. E. Silver's Blackbirder lost the place by a half-length.

With the faint-hearted Sailor Beware as a running mate, Currants ruled the favorite in the mutuels, paying $3.40 straight. His time was 1:13 flat.

Discovery Is Winner.

Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 14 (AP).—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, the colt that runs like a champion when the Brookmeade Stable's silks are absent, scored an easy victory here today in the forty-fifth running of the Kenner Stakes of a mile and three-sixteenths. Only three horses were named overnight for the fixture. Discovery, held at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 10, beat the Maemere Farm's Somebody by two lengths, while H. C. Phipps' Cleves was eight lengths farther back.

Discovery, without being asked to make any track records, ran the distance in 1:51 1-5, under 113 pounds. His victory was worth $1,820 to his young owner.

Discovery's odds of 1 to 10 were the shortest of any New York winner this season.

Detroit, Aug. 14 (AP).—Forth players fared poorly again today at the Michigan State Fair Grounds. Dekas, a 2-year-old gelding, captured the feature event, a six-furlong affair for juveniles, winning by three lenghts over Glint, with St. Moritz third. The winner paid $11.60 for a $2 ticket, while Glint paid its backers $14 for second place.

In the second race the supporters of Lanier were rewarded with odds of $78.80 to $2 for the victory of the 6-year-old son of Politian.

The daily double paid $451.60.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Narragansett, Aug. 14.

Dear Al:

Clocker Mike returned to the fold this afternoon in time to throw some poison on three of my selections. However, I'd trade three winners for old Mike any day, so you can rest assured that Mike got a royal welcome when he climbed the press-box steps. I had been having a whale of a day up to this point. Home Loan and Knight of Old stepped down in succession, and Wilrob, my come-back special, barely missed in the third, running second to Gay Banner, my second choice. In the fourth, Prince Tokalon registered for me. And along came Mike. Everything considered, it wasn't a bad day for a fellow who has forgotten horses for more than two weeks. Mike stood behind me tonight as I went over the speed books and was disappointed because I didn't ask his advice. I sent him to bed early with instructions to be on the rail at sunrise. I'm expecting big things from Mike, and I don't mean water melons. BILL.

First race—War Profits is a fair sort of juvenile maiden and may use this field for graduation purposes. Must break from the outside of the pack, but has the speed to overcome that handicap, I do believe. Cooney comes to this well recommended. Sweet Mollie for the show.

Second race—I'm inclined to lean toward Old Baldy in this sprint. Gets in here with only a steadying impost and will have the courageous little Lynch to do the riding. Fred Almy and Ayston have an edge on the others.

Third race—Blue Foam (I'll never forgive this one for tossing off a big bet at Charles Town) appears to have found the right spot in this. Has good speed these days. Lawless Lady carries 98 pounds, and at 10-1 will be dangerous. Luck In to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Gay Blade has been whispered to me as a good thing for tomorrow. I'll admit that the books don't put this one closer than third, but I'm going to string along with the information at hand. Westys Duke and Wild Pigeon for the other cash awards.

Fifth race—High Glee goes to the post here a probable and deserving favorite. May fail, but I can't put anything else on top. Teralice and Gold Step will be in the thick of the finish battle.

Sixth race—Big Beau is a threat in any field in present shape. Needs all his speed to get home, however. Vicar will be hard to keep out of some portion of the pay-off. The bad-legged Ballos for the show.

Seventh race—Fair Billy hardly runs two alike, but he may run just one for the public. Got his price last time. Ervast and High Socks will be ready if the top fellow is only dogging it.

Eighth race—Mint De Mie draws Maschek for the saddle work and I'm putting the Bennings dough on the line. Scotch Soldier and Brass Monkey for the rest.

Corbett Outweighed By Walker by 3 Pounds

San Francisco, Aug. 14 (AP).—Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion, held a three-pound advantage over Young Corbett 3d, of Fresno, when they weighed in officially today for their ten-round fight at the San Francisco Ball Park tonight.

Walker weighed 157½ pounds and Corbett 154½.

Emily Stokes Holds Edge; Crowd of 35,000 to Watch Event.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The Hambletonian Stake, known to some as the "Kentucky Derby of the Trotters," to others as the "Corntassel Derby," but recognized by all as one of the most bizarre events of the American sports calendar, will be run here tomorrow over a picturesque good-time half-mile track.

It will be contested by eight of the world's finest trotters, and their efforts to win the blue ribbon of the harness world and something like $30,000 for their owners will be watched by some 35,000 spectators. The vanguard of this crowd already was in Goshen tonight, and the sleepy little village was hard put for accommodations. Hotels (or rather the hotel) was overrun, and the good citizens were helping out by taking boarders.

Close Contest Seen.

Tomorrow's race will be the ninth Hambletonian and, to listen to the veterans of the game, will be the most closely contested of them all. Three trotters stand out, C. B. Shaffer's bay colt, Muscletone; Henry H. Knight's strapping gelding, Reynolda, and C. W. Phelps' bay filly, Emily Stokes.

On paper Emily Stokes holds an edge over her rivals, for she whipped both of them in a recent skirmish at Salem. Over the entire season Emily has finished in front of Muscletone in 8 out of 14 heats in which they have met and in 10 out of 14 as to Reynolda. But Emily, despite her paper edge, probably will share the favorite's position with the two bays at post time, due to the old prejudice against fillies, especially in long races.

Furr Gives In; Will Oppose Wilson

Must Submit, However, to Commission Physical Test Today.

PHILBERT FURR, District welterweight champion, who disappeared suddenly after signing a contract to box Bob Wilson, of Florida, at the Riding and Hunt Club next Monday, finally has agreed to go through with the bout as scheduled. His decision will not remove the necessity of his appearing before the Boxing Commission for a physical examination today.

The Disappearing Dutchman vanished into thin air last Thursday, after notifying Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn that he did not wish to engage in vulgar fisticuffing with Wilson. He was located at Chesapeake Beach Monday, pleading a heavy cold. After much pleading and cajoling, he agreed to fight as scheduled, but the commission already had ordered him to report for an examination to determine whether he really was suffering from a cold, as claimed.

Attacks "De Papers."

It seems that Philbert became irked at the printed reports of his disappearing act, and yesterday again notified his manager, Harry Groves, that he would not fight Wilson.

"These people don't appreciate me," growled the Flying Dutchman, flying into a rage. "I won't fight Wilson after what de papers said about me."

After a heated session with Manager Groves, Philbert finally agreed to box Wilson. But he will still have to go before the Boxing Commission at 3:30 this afternoon so a commission doctor can determine whether he is suffering from a cold in the head—or the feet.

Cupid, in Guise of Fan Dancer, K. O.'s Levinsky for an 'I Do'

CHICAGO, Aug. 14 (AP).—"The King is dead! Long live the Queen!"

King Levinsky, the personality kid of the ring, is a married man—kayoed on the altar of matrimony by a fan dancer.

It all happened so quickly early today that the King's frends up and down Maxwell street—and even the "Ole Kingfish" himself—were still a trifle dazed from Dan Cupid's big punch tonight. Yet it was just the way everyone said the Kingfish would get married—if ever.

Last night, "Leaping" Lena Levy, sister-manager of boxing's personality kid, made a triumphant tour of the newspaper offices with a pretty, smiling girl in tow. With great enthusiasm, she announced that the Kingfish was going to get married and "meet his bride-to-be, the best fan dancer in the land!" It looked like a publicity story, so the scribes telephoned the Kingfish.

"Aw, Lena's nuts," shot back the Kingfish. "There ain't going to be any marryin' for the Ole Kingfish. Say, I'm not the marrying kind. After two weeks of married life, the Ole Kingfish wouldn't have a dime. Nothing doing."

Three hours later, he and Rosie Glickman, who does a mean fan dance at the world's fair under the stage name of Roxanne Carmine, were married by Justice of the Peace Howard Kemp. "Leaping" Lena was the most prominent guest of the small wedding party.

So the rumor flew about Maxwell street, the King's habitat, that the Kingfish had been hooked unwillingly and that "Leaping" Lena had done her neatest bit of matchmaking. But a few hours later, the Kingfish was aroused from his love nest in a Loop hotel.

"Hooked nothing!" the Kingfish snorted. "Say, this marriage stuff is stupendous!"

The Kingfish, noted for his antics in and out of the ring, was at his best during the interview. He told the newspaper boys just how hard he fell.

"Ain't she swell, swell," chortled Mr. Levinsky. "I tell you, she's the only one that ever hung a kayo on the ole Kingfish. Yes sir, she laid me out cold the first time I ever saw her. That was just a week ago yesterday.

With his bride chuckling sweetly, the Kingfish vowed that he would win the heavyweight championship as a present for his bride if Max Baer gave him a chance.

"And we'll have a swell honeymoon, too," promised the King. "Our honeymoon last night was a ride up and down the United States highway."

Frey in Form as Reds Trounce Dodgers, 5-0

Cincinnati, Aug. 14 (AP).—Bennie Frey shut out the Dodgers with seven hits and gave no walks today as the Reds opened their final home stand against the Eastern clubs of the National League with a 5-to-0 victory over Brooklyn. Only two visitors got as far as third base.

Valley League Plans 1935 Expansion

Winchester, Front Royal, Waynesboro, Staunton May Be Added.

HARRISONBURG, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—An eight-club circuit with Winchester, Front Royal, Staunton and Waynesboro added to the present Valley League of Harrisonburg, Charlottesville, Woodstock and Culpeper is the plan for next season of President George Holtzman and he is leaving nothing undone to work up interest in the loop.

President Holtzman has talked the matter over in the other towns and he has received an enthusiastic reception. Such a circuit would provide a fast class of ball, because all of the towns are natural rivals. It possibly would revive the glorious days of the original Valley League in 1922 and 1923.

Winchester and Front Royal were members of the original Valley League, which produced the fastest baseball this section has ever seen, while Staunton and Waynesboro are the main cogs in the Augusta League wheel at present. If the enlarged Valley League comes into being, the Augusta League would pass into the discard unless made up of rural clubs entirely.

With the enlarged league, President Holtzman hopes that the schedule will include a sufficient number of games each week to justify a club maintaining a regular line-up. He hopes for games each Saturday and Sunday and one or two contests during the week. At present, each club averages only two games a week. These may come in a row or they may jump a week, leaving a club idle.

President Holtzman also hopes to have an iron-clad closed list for players. This would eliminate the present policy of importing players, especially pitchers, for a big game. Culpeper and Harrisonburg have been the only clubs to stick to their original line-ups this season. Charlottesville and Woodstock have made a dozen or more changes.

Hitchcock May Play.

Westbury, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—Tommy Hitchcock is making a rapid recovery from the head injuries he suffered a week ago and may yet be available for the East-West polo series in September. The 10-goal star was able to get out of bed yesterday but will not be permitted to walk for a day or two.

Warrenton Nine Bows.

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The Springs local ball club traveled to Flint Hill and was trailing its opponents by three runs when rain stopped the game in the sixth inning with the score, 4 to 1.

HOME LOAN, away slowly, moved up fast on the outside, took command with a rush in the stretch and was going away at the end. TUTTICURIO had good speed, raced HAPPY TOM into submission, but was unable to keep pace when the winner challenged. COURT GOSSIP, restrained early, closed with good energy through the stretch run. RADIATOR, rushed into contention after going the first furlong, weakened slightly in the drive. DOZANA made up some ground. TIGER JOHN was unable to reach the leaders. HAPPY TOM displayed good early speed, but weakened badly. SWEETBROOM never entered into contention and weakened badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800. For 3-year-olds and upward; maidens. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:02. Winner, C. T. Grayson's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KNIGHT OF OLD, $5.00, $2.60, $2.70; ELDEE, $2.50, $2.40; FLYING MERCURY, $8.00.

KNIGHT OF OLD, slow to begin, was rushed up fast on the outside in the opening quarter-mile, responded gamely to punishment when brought to the outside of the leader in the last sixteenth and was drawing away at the end. ELDEE, prominently placed from the outset, held on with good courage to the finish. FLYING MERCURY, under slight restraint for the first half-mile, closed willingly under intermittent punishment. SILVER WRACK dropped back in the first quarter-mile and held on gamely through the stretch. SUN COLOSTRUM, in the outside the entire trip, was never quite able to muster serious contention. DARK TYRANT faltered badly after a brief display of early speed. TIMBER TRUMP was pinched back approaching the half-mile pole and was unable to recover.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:37. Winner, E. A. Fiske's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAY BANNER, $5.40, $3.50, $2.60; WILROB, $5.20, $3.40; KOTERITO, $3.00.

GAY BANNER went to the front in the opening furlong, drew into good lead, was rated along in front and was never threatened. WILROB, in closest attendance of the pace throughout, held on willingly to the end and just lasted to save the place from KOTERITO. The latter, far out in the track throughout, lost considerable ground and, closing stoutly in the stretch, would have been second in another stride. CURLING moved through on the inside passing the three-furlong pole, but was unable to improve his position under punishment. CASH SURRENDER was unable to reach the leaders, despite being placed to severe urging. STRETCH CALL faltered when called upon after being restrained early.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:01½. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE TOKALON, $7.30, $3.40, $2.60; FAST MOVE, $3.60, $2.60; FOREWARNED, $2.60.

PRINCE TOKALON outbroke his field, but dropped back immediately and trailed his field for first half-mile, moved up steadily thereafter, came to the outside in the stretch, closed with a rush, and was going away at the end. FAST MOVE forced the pace, assumed the lead after rounding the far turn and, despite hard urging, was unable to cope with the closing challenge of the winner. FOREWARNED had speed from the outset, responded gamely to punishment, but was unable to keep pace through the closing three furlongs. EREBUS moved up threateningly at the stretch turn, but was forced to ease back and never could recover. NEWTON BELLE went evenly. The others were never prominent.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Terryddle. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:31½. Off at 4:33. Winner, Greentree Stable's lt. b. g. CURRANTS took command at once, drew clear in the opening furlong and, rated along in front, held FORT SPRINGS safe at the end. The latter moved through on the inside after rounding the far turn, was placed under punishment in an effort to reach the leader, but was not good enough. BLACKBIRDER dropped back soon after the start and closed with a belated rush under intermittent punishment. SAILOR BEWARE, well placed for the first three furlongs, was unable to keep up thereafter. LEGUME was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:07½. Winner, L. Haymaker's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIFF, $20.30, $7.30, $3.70; CURACAO, $3.50, $2.70; BITTYBIT, $3.30.

BIFF, restrained while within striking distance of the pace, came to the outside when reaching the stretch and, closing gamely, outlasted CURACAO at the end. The latter, unruly at the post, was taken to the outside, assumed the lead straightening out on the back stretch, repulsed several determined efforts from BITTYBIT, but was unable to withstand the winner. BITTYBIT, prominently placed from the beginning and saving ground throughout, made several efforts to get to the front, but weakened slightly right at the finish. ADOBE POST was never able to reach the leaders. WAR PLANE trailed throughout.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:37. Off at 5:38. Winner, J. D. Mikel's blk. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PENNYWISE, $9.90, $5.90, $4.20; FLOWERY, $16.30, $8.20; BYLONA, $4.80.

PENNYWISE, showing vastly improved form over his previous outing, was prominently placed from the outset, took command midway of the turn and, saving ground in the stretch, drew out as if much the best. FLOWERY, restrained early, moved up stoutly approaching the stretch and closed gamely under hard urging. BYLONA, well placed from the start, held on gamely in the closing drive, though unable to reach the first two. BLACK FALCON had good speed throughout, but weakened in the last half-mile. PRINCE ABBOT, a trailer early, never could enter into serious contention. PERIODICAL lost ground at the first turn, but weakened steadily during the three furlongs. SAINT KITTS was never prominent, racing far back all the way.

THIRD RACE—One mile

Dutra and Hagen to Play in Exhibition 18-Hole Match at Kenwood Next Month

Al Houghton Will Be One Of Rivals

Will Team With Either Runyan or Sarazen in a Sunday Test.

SWARTHY OLIN DUTRA, National Ouen Golf champion, and swashbuckling Walter Hagelfdom's greatest showman, will appear in an exhibition match at Kenwood Golf and Country Club's course next month against two other nationally known stars.

The match will be sponsored by the Kenwood Club, and will touch off the fuse of pubicity in connection with the forthcoming National Capital Open.

Arrangements for the appearance of Dutra and Hagen, who have been touring the country together ever since Dutra made his garrison finish in the Open at Merion last June, have been completed, and the third member of the touring foursome virtually selected.

Houghton Due to Play.

Al Houghton, Kenwood professional, who reached the quarterfinals of the National P. G. A. at Buffalo, is expected to be one of the opposing players, teaming up possibly with Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion, or Gene Sarazen, the Mussolini of the fairways.

A sunday date will be set for the 18-hole joust. Indications are that it will be staged either on September 9, 23 or 30. The Curtis Cup matches between the women's teams of Great Britain and America will be played on September 27-28, and it is doubtful if the matchmakers will see fit to stage the Kenwood battle the Sunday following the international event.

Anxious to Come Here.

Houghton contacted Dutra, Hagen, Sarazen and Runyan in the P. G. A. at Buffalo and the Canadian open in Toronto. Runyan, pro at the Metropolis Club, White Plains, N. Y., is anxious to come here, since he will defend his title in the National Capital at Kenwood early in November. The little shotmaker is an established favorite in the District, as is Hagen, holder of every important championship. Dutra, also a former P. G. A. champion, has never appeared here, while Sarazen showed at Kenwood last April a year ago with Joe Kirkwood in a match against Houghton and A. B. Thorn.

There is a strong possibility that in the event Sarazen or Runyan will be unable to play, Ky Laffoon, sensational Denver player, will be invited to team with Houghton.

Nippon Slugger Really Hits 'Em

SIOUX FALLS, S. Dak. (AP).—Although Japanese, despite their general aptitude at their adopted national game of baseball, customarily are considered comparatively weak hitters, one son of Nippon has shown Nebraska State League fans there can be exceptions.

Jimmy Horio, 21, has been playing the outfield with the Sioux Falls club this season, gaining experience with the hope, he says, of becoming "the first Japanese in professional baseball as a regular."

Horio stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 165 pounds, and while his batting average has been only around .250, he smacks the ball for long rides when he does connect and is especially dangerous in the pinches.

In an exhibition game here he authored the longest hit ever seen in the local park, 425 feet on a line against a brisk wind.

During his high school days Horio was an all-around athlete, participating in football, basket ball and track as well as baseball.

Turtle Blocked Drain For Cleveland Company

Cleveland, (U.P.).—Heavy rains filled Cleveland sewers and storm water drains and some of the water backed up and flooded the basement of the Pressman-Strauss Bag Co. But when the rain stopped and the sun dried up everything, the water wouldn't drain out. The company believed the drain clogged and called workmen.

1,000 Defendants in Suit.

Mays Landing, N. J. (U.P.).—Chancery Court here is faced with the most unique land title suit in its history. The suit, brought by the Atlantic Realty Co., of Atlantic City, is an effort to settle title on a plot of five acres of resort land. It is directed against more than 1,000 defendants, said to claim interest in the realty or its encumbrances.

Muncaster Cup Golf to Start Tomorrow

Wash. G. & C. C. Women in 36-Hole Handicap; 69's For Two D. C. Pros.

THE Muncaster Trophy Tournament, one of the most important events of the season for women golfers at Washington Golf and Country Club, will be played tomorrow and Friday, with a field of 26 competing. It is a 36-hole handicap tournament. Mrs. Peggy Wootton, winner last year, will not be on hand to defend her title, since she is no longer connected with the club.

The handicap allowance is 35, and the cup and replica are donated by Dr. S. B. Muncaster. Professional Davey Thomson is awarding three low-gross prizes. There will be three prizes for low net.

Pairings and starting times for tomorrow follow.

7:00, Miss I. M. Havey, Miss A. Hinderliter and Mrs. B. Goodrich; 9:00, Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, Mrs. R. N. Sutton and Mrs. C. B. Stewart; 9:10, Mrs. W. F. Draper, Mrs. G. C. Roney and Mrs. E. L. Duffies; 9:20, Mrs. P. A. McLendon, Mrs. R. N. Olin and Mrs. J. S. Payne; 9:30, Miss K. Thacker, Mrs. Byron Price and Mrs. H. Sherman; 9:40, Mrs. R. P. Brandt, Mrs. W. R. Hill, jr., and Mrs. A. K. Gray; 9:50, Mrs. L. Worrell, Mrs. E. S. Kochersperger and Mrs. L. W. Busbey; 10:00, Mrs. C. Merrillat and Mrs. O. Thacker; 10:10, Mrs. T. N. De Lashmutt, Mrs. T. C. Purr and Mrs. J. W. Blazek.

Al Houghton played at Kenwood and Roland Mackenzie at Congressional yesterday and both scored 69's. Each went out in 34 and came home in 35. Houghton laid a "gimmie" brassie second so close to the 488-yard twelfth pin that he almost got a deuce, but he was satisfied with his eagle. Mackenzie knocked in a 15-footer for an eagle on the 466-yard eighth, and picked up birdies on the second, fifth, thirteenth and eighteenth.

Nope, the young men aren't cousins!

Today at Washington Golf and Country Club, where Houghton made his memorable 61 a few months ago, the Kenwood pro and Walter McCallum will oppose Mackenzie and V. Calvert Dickey in a special 18-hole match.

With the eyes of 25 District golfers riveted on Five Farms, scene of the National Amateur sectional trials next Tuesday, many foursomes have been planned as tune-up rounds for Friday. Maury Nee, of Columbia; Harry Pitt, of Manor, and Luther Steward, of Congressional, will play with Fred McLeod. Roger Peacock, Levi Yoder, Louis Fuchs and Dr. Larry Otell, all of Indian Spring, will play the course together.

George Diffenbaugh and Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley won a hot match from Gene Larkin and Leopold V. Freudberg, of Woodmont, yesterday at Indian Spring, 3 and 2. Diffenbaugh leveled par with a 71. Larkin scored a 75, and Mrs. Meckley an 85.

The deadline for entering the "Uptown" Golf Tournament at Rock Creek's course is Saturday, August 25. The tournament will open with an 18-hole qualifying round on August 27. An entry fee of 50 cents is being charged. Claude Rippy is the defending champion.

Sam Zoltrow led a group that included L. S. Weingarten, Mitch Eagen, Arthur Pope and Henry Abrams to one of his spots off Herring Bay and they caught more than 100 fish. Hardheads dominated the catch, but there were two trout, two King William perch and one large Norfolk spot in the bag. Capt. Milton furnished the transportation in one of Noah Hazzard's boats out of North Beach.

Upsets Involve D. C. Netmen At Oakland

Baker Wins, Willis Loses; Washington Women Score Easily.

OAKLAND, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Washington tennis players figured in two major upsets in the Western Maryland Tennis Tournament here today. Joel P. Baker, Washington, defeated Edgar T. Hamler, Greensburg, Pa., seeded No. 4 player, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3, and Richard T. Willis, Washington, seeded No. 7 man, lost to James E. Allen, 7—9, 6—0, 6—3.

In the women's singles, Sara Moore, Bobsy Turney and Dorette Miller, all of Washington, advanced on straight sets.

All other seeded players in the men's singles moved to the quarterfinals without difficulty with the exception of John R. Brown, Pittsburgh, who was extended to the limit to win from Wiley Glassmire, Washington, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5.

Doubles Play to Start.

Competition in men's and women's doubles, and mixed doubles is scheduled to begin tomorrow morning, with the possibility that finals in those events will be run off on Friday. The singles final matches will be held on Saturday.

Frank Broida, Pittsburgh, defending champion in the men's singles, advanced to the quarter-finals on straight sets, as did W. J. Clardy, Pittsburg; Bobby Madden, Pittsburgh, and Alex Keiles, Baltimore.

Lasky Off Today For Hamas Fight

Says He Is in Good Trim for September Bout.

Los Angeles, Aug. 14 (AP).—Art Lasky, Minneapolis heavyweight, turned today from Murietta Hot Springs, where he held preliminary training for his bout with Steve Hamas in New York next month and announced he and his brother manager, Maurice, would leave tomorrow by automobile for the East.

The Minneapolis Jewish fighter said he was in good condition and ready to swing into his final training schedule. To satisfy rumors Lasky had no contract with Madison Square Garden for a Hamas bout, Maurice displayed not only a copy of the contract but a telegraph money order to defray trip expenses East.

They leave behind a suit for $55,000 by Promoter Lou Daro, who charges the Laskys are breaking a contract to fight here under his direction.

Seeded Stars Advance at Newport

Allison, Mangin, Grant in Semifinals; Shields Defeats Jacobs.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 14 (AP).—Five of the eight quarterfinals brackets were filled today, while the brilliant cast in the Newport Casino tournament was putting on a tame tennis show.

The second-day gallery saw nothing exciting until the sixth-seeded Frankie Parker, playing poor tennis, was carried to five sets by Eugene McCauliff, of New York.

Parker had more than he could handle with McCauliff's steaming service in the first two sets, but the New Yorker wilted and Parker swept through, 2—6, 3—6, 6—0, 6—2, 6—2.

Grant Wins By Default.

All of the other quarter-finalist qualifiers with the exception of Bryan Grant, the National clay court champion from Atlanta, gained straight set victories. Grant opposed Henry Prusoff, promising Seattle player suffering from an ailing stomach, who had to default after Grant won the first set at 6—1, and led three games to love in the second.

The third-seeded Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., entered the round of eight by defeating Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., 7—5, 6—0, 6—3.

Mangin Advances.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, won in easy fashion from John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., 6—4, 6—2, 7—5, and Bell defeated the veteran E. W. Fiebleman, of New York, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

Nightfall found Shields and Sidney Wood, the pair who shared the United States Davis Cup singles assignments, still in the fourth round along with the eighth-seeded Jack Tidball, of Hollywood, Calif.; Gene Mako, the new junior champion, and Johnny Van Ryn, of Philadelphia.

Doubles.

First round—Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, defeated W. F. Crocker and J. L. Bidwell, New York, 6—2, 6—1; Casper Nannes, New York, and Don Haley, East Orange, N. J., defeated Henry Prusoff, Seattle, Wash., and Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., 6—0, 6—1; Herbert L. Bowman and Armond Bruneau, New York, defeated J. B. Wilkinson, New York, and John Tilney, Orange, N. J., 10—8, 4—6, 6—4.

Second round—Martin Buxby, Miami, and C. J. Challis, jr., Dallas, Tex., defeated Thomas Ridgway and Elliot Hobbs, Newport, 6—2, 8—6; E. W. Feibleman and Frank Bowden, New York, defeated Don Morrison, Newport, and John Ray, Boston, 6—1, 6—4; Allison and Van Ryn defeated Tiers and Eno, 6—1, 6—1; J. Gilbert Hall and Watson Washburn, New York, defeated Thomas Flynn, Bayside, L. I., and S. E. Davenport 3d, New York, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2; Gene Mako, Los Angeles, and Donald Budge, San Francisco, defeated Edwin Burke, New York, and Reginald Kazanjian, Newport, 6—2, 6—3; John Barr and Wilbur Hess, Dallas, Tex., won by default from Fred Perry and Frank Wilde, England.

McMenniman Hurls Two-Hit Ball; Langford's Bat Streak Ends at 12.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The two-hit pitching of Reds McMenniman today gave The Washington Post team a 12-to-0 win over the Tide Water Oil nine and a chance for second-half honors in the Commercial League here. The result of the final standings in the Commerical Loop hinges on the outcome of the Police-Columbia Firemen game next week. Should the Police win, a three-way tie will result.

After hitting 12 successive times in league play, Bill Langford lined out to right field to end the most sensational batting streak ever staged here.

Dundee Posts $25,000 Fo Bout With Yarosz

Pittsburgh, Aug. 14 (AP).—A bond of $25,000 was posted in the offices of Dr. W. D. McClelland, State boxing commissioner, late today, thereby removing the last obstacle from the path of the Vince Dundee vs. Ted Yarosz middleweight championship scrap.

The 15-round battle is set for Forbes Field on September 11, with Jack Dempsey, former ace of the heavyweights, on hand to referee some of the preliminaries.

The guarantee for Dundee was put up by Bus Vogel, local promoter, and Ray Babcock, Pittsburgh sportsman and Vogel's financial backer.

Four Contests In Week for Woodstock

Team Ends Loop Season on Saturday Against Harrisonburg.

WOODSTOCK, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The Woodstock A. C. will face three Valley League teams in four games in the final week of the league season. The team meets Culpeper at Culpeper tomorrow, Charlottesville at Charlottesville, Thursday; Culpeper at Woodstok, Friday, and Harrisonburg at Harrisonburg, Saturday, in its final games.

According to J. Grove Kniesley, president of the local nine, "Lefty" Childs, ace southpaw, will face Culpeper nine Friday.

Woodstock has scheduled several independent games for this season, the first to be played here Sunday with the Martinsburg Blue Sox.

Allegheny Tennis Crown to R. Brown

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Robert N. (Red) Brown, of Elkins, W. Va., won the men's singles championship in the Allegheny Mountain tennis tournament at the Cumberland Country Club Courts by defeating his brother, Mose, in the finals, 11—9, 4—6, 7—5.

The newly-crowned champion obtains possession of the S. T. Little trophy, which must be won three times, not necessarily in succession, to become the permanent prize of the winner.

The doubles finals between the Brown brothers and William H. Weber and Colonel Dilmore, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was called on account of darkness, with the count standing 9—9 in the first set. This championship match will be played here on a later date.

The new singles champion, who succeeds Lease Bussard, of Frederick, 1933 winner, reached the finals by winning by default from Robert Bane, of this city, who was called out of town. Prior to that match, he eliminated Rickey Willis, captain of the University of North Carolina tennis team, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4. Mose Brown gained the right to play his brother in the finals by disposing of Curtis Merkel, of Roanoke, Va., in the semifinals, 6—0, 6—3. Before conquering Merkel, he won over Lawrence Shaffer, of this city, 6—1, 7—5.

Pug Lund Loses Finger—Gopher Grid Hopes Rise

Minneapolis (AP).—Recovering from the shock of the first news that Francis "Pug" Lund, all-American halfback, had lost a finger by amputation, Minnesota football fans glow in the assurance that loss of the digit actually may help Lund's playing.

Gopher followers have been jittery in the assumption that prospects for the Maroon and Gold's greatest season were "too good to be true." It has become an axiom at Minnesota that "something always happens" to blast rosy prospects.

But the home folks have the statement of Dr. Myron Henry, bone specialist, that Lund will be a better football player than ever. The durable Pug, he revealed, had been handicapped throughout his collegiate career by stiffness in the small finger of his left hand.

The digit was broken when Lund was in high school. It became stiff, and several times each season was injured or dislocated. So by recommendation of Dr. Henry, Lund readily agreed to having the tip amputated.

His Ear Ruined, Szabo Awaits Garibaldi

Has 6-Year-Old Issue to Settle Tomorrow in Stadium Bout.

NO TITLE is involved in tomorrow night's feature mat brawl at Griffith stadium, but that does not mean that the participants—Sandor Szabo, the Hungarian Rassling Rhapsody, and Gino Garibaldi, the Walloping Wop—will not be staging a blood battle, according to Promoter Joe Turner's enterprising publicity agent. Revenge, with a capital R, will be the keynote, the P. A. advises, for Szabo plans to punish the Italian for ruining his classical features by giving him a cauliflower ear—the badge of the rassling fraternity — several years ago.

The P. A., it seems, has delved deep in rassling history and his discovered that when Szabo came to this country six years ago as a handsome, curley-haired lad, Garibaldi became jealous of the attention he was attracting among the fair fans and ruined his left ear.

And, just to show the frailities of human nature, the P. A. points out that, although the craving for revenge started as a small spark in Szabo's heart six years ago and finally has reached full growth, it was only in connection with tomorrow's bout that the Hungarian remembered that it was Garibaldi he was after. So naturally, according to the P. A.'s reasoning, Garibaldi likely will be the victim of a murder when he steps through the ropes to meet Szabo.

Szabo Smooth Worker.

Szabo is the smoother worker, but Garibaldi's rough and aggressive tactics make him most popular with the blood-craving addicts.

Yankee Again Wins in Cup Tryouts

Rainbow Is 14 Minutes Behind; Weetamoe Runs Aground.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP).—After a long stern chase, Yankee, Boston's candidate for the defense of the America's Cup, today won another engagement over her rivals for the honor.

She beat Rainbow, Harold S. Vanderbilt's entry, in a 40-mile sailing contest from Mattapoisett to this port by more than 14 minutes.

Vanitie, Gerard Lambert's old and now ineligible cup candidate, took second place, trailing the Boston boat to the finish line by more than five minutes.

Frederick Prince's Weetamoe, after occupying third position over more than half the course, ran aground on the middle grounds, about 2 miles from the finish line. As she struck, her parachute spinnaker burst and went into the sea in ribbons.

She was hard aground and with a falling tide there was faint prospect of her getting off before tomorrow morning. Unless she escaped damage, which seemed improbable, there was little likelihood she would be able to resume the New York Yacht Club cruise to Newport, R. I.

Hoyt Again Tastes Glory Once His as "Schoolboy"

PITTSBURGH (AP).—It has been three years since Waite Hoyt could be called, even technically, a "winning pitcher," yet this season the 35-year-old one-time "schoolboy wonder" is coming through heroically to plug unexpected gaps in the Pirates' pitching array.

Since he ended, early in the 1930 season, the nine-year stretch which gave him so many victories and so much world series glory with the Yankees, Hoyt has bounced around the big leagues much after the manner of an athlete rapidly nearing the end of his big league days.

He finished the 1930 campaign with Detroit, but midway of the next season moved to the Philadelphia Athletics, and in 1932 divided his time between Brooklyn and the Giants in the National League. The Pirates picked him up in 1933, and until the middle of the current campaign he was used almost exclusively for rescue work.

Regains Old-Time Heights.

But with the collapse of young Lefty Birkofer and the inability of Heinie Meine to win, Hoyt has once again become a starting flinger and his recent one-hit classic blanking of the Bosfon Braves hoisted him to heights he had not known since his halcyon days with the all-conquering Yankees of the Miller Huggins era.

For the personable Hoyt has known supreme pitching heights before. There was, for instance, the 1921 world series when, a mere stripling of 22 years, he hurled three games for the Yanks against the Giants, without allowing an earned run—though he lost one of the games to Art Nehf, 1-0.

In fact, Hoyt still holds, jointly with Chief Bender of the 1911-14 Athletics, the record for world series victories. Each won six times in the space of four of the annual fall classics.

Once Hurled 11 Perfect Frames!

The seasons of 1927 and 1928 were Hoyt's best, from the statistical standpoint. He led the league with 22 wins and 7 losses in 1927 and the next year won 28 against the same number of defeats.

Since then, until the present season, he has had difficulty keeping above the .500 mark. In 1929 it was 10 and 9 with the Yanks. The next summer he edged in with an 11-10 record. With Detroit and the A's in 1931 he split even, 13-13.

In 1932, for Brooklyn and the Giants, he won six and lost ten, and last year for the Pirates got credit for five wins, seven trimmings.

Probably the nearest previous approach to his recent one-hitter, though, was his feat with the Boston Red Sox in 1919, when he kept the Yankees from getting a single man on first from the second inning through the twelfth—11 perfect frames!

The Post Sandlotter

HARRY KRAMER, who divides his time between the shortstop and pitching duties while playing for Weather Bureau in the Federal League, won the batting crown with a lusty average of .500, which is no mean feat even in these days of the lively ball and mediocre hurling.

In the 21 league games in which he participated Kramer went to bat 76 official times and cracked out 38 hits, a bingle for every other appearance. These clouts included 12 doubles, 8 singles and 2 home runs. And Kramer's a good pitcher, too. No wonder every thing was always "fair and warmer" when Weather Bureau played.

Plans for the Week-day Interleague series under auspices of The Washington Post Association will be discussed tomorrow night at 8 in The Post Sports Department at a meeting of the presidents of the week-day leagues. The following leagues are asked o have representatives at the meeting: National Capital, Industrial, Departmental, Department Store, Federal, Georgetown Church League, Army-Navy-Marine and Maryland Suburban League.

Majestic Radio nine, the only team to beat the Chesapeake Paper Mill nine, of West Point, a., this season, will face the fast Heurich Brewers Saturday at 3:30 on the Heurich Field, at Wisconsin avenue and Upshur street. Manager Bill Flester will send either Lefty Lyons or Everett Russsell to the mound against the Radio aggregation. Wild Bill Payne, who won from the Chesapeake team, will endeavor to add the Brewers to his list of victims. Sunday the Majestics travel to Culpeper, a., to meet the Culpeper Athletic Club, leader in The Washington Post Association. Majestic defeated the Paper Mill team, 2 to 1, last Sunday, to snap a 37-game winning streak.

Manager Bob Newell, of Mount Rainier Grays, is seeking Saturday andSunda y games. He can be reached at Greenwood 1485. Kenneth Murello, Grays outfielder, involved in an automobile accident recently, will be lost to the team for two weeks. Murello has ben one of the chief factors in the Mount Rainier team's drive for The Post Association honors in the District Independent League. A game with the Coast Guard nine has been scheduled for Saturday on the Mount Rainier High School field.

Drewes, 4-Time Champ, Also Is Among 8 Remaining in Play.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 14 (AP).—Players from Washington, D. C., continued to figure prominently in the progress of the National Public Parks Tennis championships as the tournament entered the quarter-finals here today.

With Dooley Mitchell, runner-up for the Washington title and finalist in the National event three years ago, already in the round of eight, Barney Welsh, powerful-driving champion of the Capital, seeded No. 4, eliminated Harry Hite of Glenwood, Minn., in one of the most impressive displays of power the tourney has yet seen.

Keeping pace with his teammates with a brilliant performance featured by effective net play, Ralph McElvenny, husky Government lawyer, swept through Milton Bielfield, of Detroit, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3.

Champ in Quarter-Finals.

Also in the quarter-finals are Arnold Simons, of Louisville, defending champion, and Ted Drewes, of St. Louis, four-time champion, who eliminated Kaseal Peckoff, of Buffalo, N. Late Turfman's Will Excludes Divorced Wife.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Gifford A. Cochran, former president of Alexander Smith & Sons and one of the country's most prominent turfmen, who died last December 5, left an estate valued at $4,705,658 gross and $3,497,917 net, according to the transfer tax appraisal filed today.

Cochran and the Shandon Stud, Inc., his breeding corporation, owned among other famous horses, Epithet, a son of Epinard, valued at $20,000; Flying Heels, son of Flying Ebony, valued at $12,000, and Aldershot, son of Man o' War, valued at $2,500.

The major portion of the estate was left to his three children. The will stated that his former wife, who divorced him in 1927 and married Prince Hohenlohe-Schillingfurst, was provided for previously and directed that she not share in the estate.

Culpeper Beaten By Harrisonburg

Errors Costly as Valley League Leaders Bow, 2-1.

Culpeper, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Culpeper Athletic Club, Valley League leaders, lost to Harrisonburg, the runners up, here this afternoon, 2-1, thus reducing their lead to one and one-half games. Harrisonburg's runs were handed them through errors in the first and third innings. McIntyre allowed only three singles, two of the scratch variety, while Culpeper touched Johnny Keister, Harrisonburg's ace, for seven, one being a home run by Campbell.

A slight drizzle had been falling for two innings preceding the ninth, and with Culpeper at bat in this inning, after one was retired, Humphries singled and went to second on an error and proceeded to third when Ball was also given a life on error. At this stage Keister walked from the mound and Umpire Ramey called play on account of rain. After a 30-minute wait, the game was called on account of wet grounds. Woodstock plays here Thursday.

Quantico Indian Nine Plays Celtics Sunday

Quantico, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—With the season well under way the Quantico Indians find their quest for supremacy in their section unchallenged. The only formidable club in the Quantico vicinity that the Indians have not met is the Fredericksburg Elks. The Elks, apparently aware of the impressive record of the Indians, have evidently decided to steer clear of the Tribe this season. This coming Saturday the Alexandria Eagles will attempt to throw a cog in the well-oiled machinations of the Indians' machine.

The Indians have an open date Sunday, August 19, and Manager Phil Haensler will accept a game for this date at Quantico with a strong club. He may be reached by telephoning Quantico 241.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Napoleon Bonaparte tried the best he knew how to make his birthday an important day in the history of France. August 15, his birthday, he selected as the date for many of his imperial decrees and announcements. It was his aim to have the day observed for all time as an important French holiday—in fact he ordered that it be a national festival forever.

He made his brother Joseph king of the Two Sicilies, and his brother Louis king of Holland. He named Murat, his brother-in-law, grand duke of Cleves and Berg. He gave titles to his important ministers and statesmen. He gave his stepson, Beauharnais, in marriage.

He united 14 princes of the south and west of Germany into the Confederation of the Rhine. He converted the Pantheon into the church of St. Genevieve. He repealed the Republican calender. He surnamed himself "The Great." He appointed the Cathedral of St. Denis as the place of sepulcher for French emperors.

Strange as it seems, most of his orders were futile—the Confederation of the Rhine disappeared, Louis and Joseph lost their kingdoms, Murat was condemned by court-martial and shot, the titles he gave his ministers have largely been forgotten, and the Cathedral of St. Denis never served the purpose he named for it.

Tomorrow: Death Valley Scotty.

Adair Craves Career on Diamond

Pig 'n' Whistle Box Ace Has Good Chance to Win Trip Offered by Post.

HE DOESN'T say much about anything but it is no secret that Adger "Giggles" Adair, the ever-smiling Pig 'n' Whistle pitcher, harbors a burning ambition to break into professional baseball and earn his living with the speed and outcurves he can exercise on a baseball.

ADAIR.

Adair rates high among the better class of the hurlers in The Post Association, which is continuing its search for the outstanding sandlot player in the association's organized baseball ranks throughout the District, Maryland and nearby Virginia. The Post Association will place the fortunate player chosen on the threshold of a professional baseball career with a six-week trip down South with the Washington team, training under the eye of Manager Joe Cronin.

Adger is 19 years old, stands 6 feet and a half inch in his stocking feet and carries about 175 pounds of solid weight. He has been graduated from Mountsville High School in South Carolina but does not intend to go to college. At the present time he is employed as an electrical mechanic, but this is only temporary.

Baseball Career Ambition.

A baseball career is his real ambition. He has played baseball from the time he was able to tote a bat, and basket ball and tennis, his other favorite pastimes, run a poor second. His promising ability was first recognized a few years ago, when he won 15 games without a defeat for the Dixie Pigs, the only sandlot team he has ever played with. An attack of appendicitis and the ensuing operation cut down his record to eight games in 1933, but he still had plenty to smile about.

During the current season he has been the chief hope of the Pig 'n' Whistles in their quest of Post Association titles in the Industrial and National City Leagues and has won ten and lost two (both to Heurich Brewers). Masterly control and a fast-breaking curve are his forte. Adger is very shy. The photographer almost was forced to buy him candy to get him to have his picture taken.

Small Catfish Catches 10-Pounder—Unassisted

Vinita, Okla. (AP).—Jack Martin and Lloyd Armstrong, catching only one catfish about a foot long in an afternoon's angling, tired of the monotony and trekked into the woods to hunt squirrels. They left their catch tied at the bank.

When they returned an hour later it had disappeared, but there was a 10-pound catfish on the line. It had swallowed the little one.

score at 3-all, but Ruffing was pounded hard in each of the last two innings as the Tigers rolled up their winning margin.

Gehringer's second home run of the day, with White on base, sent the Tigers off in front in the first inning, and the second baseman drove in 4 runs altogether as he collected 3 of the 12 hits off Ruffing. Gehringer's single in the eighth, after White and Cochrane had hit safely, brought home the winning run. Cochrane scored on an infield out, and the Tigers tallied twice more in the ninth on a pass to Rowe, with hits by White, Gehringer and Goslin.

C. U. Gridmen Report Next Month

37 to Start Drills on or Before September 4, Coach's Plan.

INTENT on losing no time in getting his Catholic University football machine into working order, Coach Dutch Bergman flashes out his annual call for early-season training to last year's squad immediately upon returning to Washington this week.

The Cardinal coach has been spending his vacation in Indiana and is expected to arrive in the Capital in two or three days. He has already ordered preparations made for sending out letters to 37 members of the 1933 varsity and freshman squads.

The training period is slated to commence on or before September 4, insuring more than a month of practice sessions before C. U. opens its season against La Salle College, of Philadelphia, in Brookland Bowl, October 6.

Strong Squad in Prospect.

The list of players to whom Coach Bergman is sending orders constitutes one of the strongest squads the Cardinals have had in years. Nine of the lettermen of last season are returning.

Captain-elect Bill Conter, of St. Paul, Minn., heads an impressive array of veterans, including Eugene Augusterfer, of Washington; Francis Fleming, of Waterbury, Conn.; Tom and Gerald Gearty, of Minneapolis; Tom Oliver, of Pensacola, Fla.; Danny Pyne, of Washington; Abe Rosenfield, of St. Paul, and Ed Thibodeau, of Newport, N. H. All are seniors.

Car Fells Dempsey But It's All in Fun

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Jack Dempsey was knocked down by an automobile today at 131st street and Convent avenue.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia standing nearby, smiled—making no effort to assist the husky former heavyweight champion.

Several hundred persons, attracted to the scene, cheered.

Dempsey jumped out. More people cheered.

It was just a demonstration. The city had bought some new ambulances and Dempsey was the master of ceremonies at their inauguration.

Dettweiler's 72 Wins Junior Honors

Leads Nee, Keele by Four Shots in Field Day; Shea Has 77.

WHEN it comes to medal play in junior golf competition, Billy Dettweiler, Congressional's 16-year-old star, appears to have an option on first prize.

The task of attempting to halt the triumphant march of the tall District junior champion was too much for 30 youngsters yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club in the third of a series of junior "field days," and Dettweiler spreadeagled the field with an 18-hole score of 72, two over par.

Playing in top form, despite a few occasional lapses on the back nine, Dettweiler led Maury Nee, of Columbia, and Jack Keele, of Indian Spring, by four shots. Dettweiler scored a 34 on the first nine. But for a few bad breaks on the two short holes, where he took 4's, the youngster would have rounded the turn in 32. So well did he execute his approaches on this side that on the third hole Billy missed by inches of holing out for an eagle deuce, but he got his birdie. On the sixth, a trick 374-yarder, his mashie niblick second finished 6 inches from the pin. He had another birdie 3 on the fifth, where he plunked in a 5-footer.

Three 5s on Last Nine.

Dettweiler's incoming nine included three 5s, one of which was made on the short fourteenth. Billy managed to par only one short hole, the eleventh. He scored four birdies in all. He played the course for the third time.

After a first-nine 35, Nee collapsed on the incoming side, where he took a 41. Young Keele, who shows great promise, also did a 35 on the first nine, but duplicated Nee's score coming home. Starting off 3, 3, 3, Keele was 2 under par until he struck the seventh, where he took a 5.

Billy Shea, with 77, was the only other golfer to break 80. Following a lecture and exhibition on chip shots by Wee Davey Thomson, the juniors participated in four-ball matches.

Dettweiler's card:

Billy Dettweiler (Congressional), 34, 38—72, and Eric King (Army-Navy), 47, 47—94, defeated Maury Nee (Columbia), 35, 41—76, and Ralph Bogart (Army-Navy), 47, 50—97, by 4 and 3; Billy Shea (Congressional), 38, 39—77, and Jim Thompson (Columbia), no card, defeated Gail Geddes (Columbia), 47, 48—95, and Sam Wolfe (Indian Spring), 50, 47—97, by 5 and 4; Harvey Johnson (Columbia), 39, 42—81, and Dave Parkman (Argyle), 48, 45—93, defeated H. N. Graves, Jr. (Indian Spring), 44, 39—83, and Frank Loftus (Columbia), 49, 53—102, by 1 up; Jack Higgins (Bannockburn), 39, 43—82, and Dick Meyer (Manor), no card, defeated Merrell Whitelsey (Argyle) and J. A. Jones (Army-Navy), no card, by 3 and 2.

Jack Keele (Indian Spring), 35, 41—76, and Bart Yount (Army-Navy), 42, 43—85, defeated Bobby Brownell (Manor), 41, 41—82, and Willard Leizear (Indian Spring), no card, by 4 and 3; Bill Kimball (Columbia), 43, 44—87, and George Flathers (Columbia), no card, defeated Buddy Pope (Columbia) and C. C. Culper (Congressional); Sam Watkins (Columbia), no card, and Buddy Schuman (Army-Navy), no card, defeated Bill Leizear (Indian Spring), no card, and Pete Wilson (Columbia), no card, 2 and 1.

Make-or-Break Ring Feature Friday

WHEN Kid Chocolate, the former featherweight champion, tangles with Andre Sarilla, of Panama, for ten rounds at Griffith Stadium Friday night, it will be make or break for one or the other. Chocolate must win decisively if he is to continue as one of the game's greatest drawing cards. Defeat for him means he will toboggan into the limberlost of "has-beendom."

For Sarillo a close decision or win means he will zoom into the big money class, at least in the smaller clubs. With only eight defeats chalked up against Chocolate in this country, those who have beaten him are still a very small and select circle.

Comeback Against Brown.

Many ring critics say that the Keed's legs have turned to rubber. Their opinion was verified when the Bon Bon lost to Fetey Hayes, a boy who doesn't belong in the same ring with the Chocolate of old. But Chocolate returned to a semblance of his old-time form in winning from Buster Brown, of Baltimore, in New York in his last public appearance and now many are convinced that he is rapidly regaining the strength of underpinning necessary to maneuver and punch as of yore.

Chocolate will arrive at the Union Station at 5 p. m. today and will be met by a delegation of fight fans and escorted to the offices of the Lincoln Athletic Club. A box has been reserved for the Cuban Ambassador and members of the embassy staff. It has been announced that Dr. Manuel Marquez Sterling, the Ambassador, and 21 members of the embassy, will watch their countryman in action.

Jordan Returns; Says He Was Ill

Is Well Now, He Declares, Rejoining Dodgers.

Cincinnati, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Jimmy Jordan, infielder who mysteriously disappeared from the Brooklyn Dodgers fold two weeks ago, rejoined his teamates today.

Asked to explain his absence, Jordan said, "I have been ill. Now I feel all right again. So here I am."

Manager Casey Stengel said Jordan had been in Brooklyn all the time he was missing, and that he had asked Bob Quinn, business manager of the club, to make Jordan eligible to play as soon as possible.

The player had been suspended a few days after he disappeared.

Mounted Police Ride Herd On Overflow New York Fans

By Paul Gallico.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The greatest baseball crowd of the year anywhere came to the Yankee Stadium this afternoon. Everybody with $1, 10 cents for tax and 10 cents for car fare was there. You've heard the expression, "Tore down the turnstiles to get in . . ." I saw them do it today, literally.

Twenty minutes before game time two turnstiles fell, and ten minutes before the first ball was pitched the iron shutter to the press gate was lowered and clamped down to hold out the fighting, scrambling mob. Those who came late were simply out of luck, and reporters and photographers fought and struggled with the baseball-mad mob outside the great yard. Every seat in the big park was sold. Had there been room, 150,000 would have come out to see the two leading American League teams meet in the games that would decide the pennant race.

Police Ride Herd.

Once inside the stadium it was an amazing sight to look out through the gates and see the crowd fighting to get in. Men climbed up on the backs of those in front of them, struggling to get to the ticket takers while behind them came the mounted police and gendarmes afoot, piling and riding into the crowd. The enormous park was girdled with lines of ticket buyers. It did one's heart good to see such excitement and enthusiasm.

Then you've heard the expression—"inside, they were hanging from the rafters . . ." That was no gag either, today.

From the press box, as you looked right and left down the mezzanine, all you saw was legs dangling from the rear of the top shelf and the runways leading thereto. The standees were packed three and four rows solidly behind every tier. They were standing up behind the center field bleachers as well as in left and right field. The Yankee Stadium will seat 76,000. There must have been well over eighty thousand there today, the largest and most stirring sports crowd since the boom days (with the exception of the amazing Indianapolis Speedway crowds).

Cochrane and Crowder.

Vernon Gomez was warming up for the Yankees. Mickey Cochrane had Alvin Crowder, a Washington cast-off, heating up his catapult before the opening game of the great Yankee-Detroit series. I asked Cochrane the reason for his choice as we stood back of the warm-up plate watching Crowder thump them into Cy Perkins' glove. "Well," said Mickey, grinning—"never play an ace on an ace. If I pitch Rowe against Gomez he is likely to lose a tough 1-0 or 2-1 ball game. If Gomez is right, he ought to win anyway. If he isn't we may steal one from him with that fellow out there."

This is what in baseball is commonly known as "master-minding," but is really no more than sound logic. And at the beginning of the sixth inning you wouldn't have given much for Crowder's chances. Gomez had given one hit and no runs and Crowder eight, hits and five runs.

Such Is Baseball.

But such are the quick whims of the baseball fates that two innings later Gomez was washing behind his ears in the shower-bath, the score was 9 to 5 in favor of Detroit and remained that way to the end of the game, and the fellow who once this season had been waived on by all eight clubs and who had been rescued from the same fate by Detroit recently, defeated the greatest pitcher in the American League and won a precious game for Cochrane.

I guess we were looking at something today. A team that can spot Gomez five runs and then get them all back in one inning must have a ticket for a one-way ride to fame somewhere in its pants. The old Yankees of 1926-27-28 used to stage uprisings like that one in the sixth inning today, where five men hit the first ball pitched to them and four out of the five hit safely. In that inning nine men batted, and four singles, a double and a home run were hit. In the next inning four more runs were scored, this time from an assortment of pitchers. And the rescued castoff, whom nobody wanted, began to bear down and gave no further runs. How Cochrane must have chortled!

On a week Day, Too.

The most surprising feature of the great crowd was that it turned out on a week day. Had it been a Saturday or a Sunday one might have been prepared for the outpouring of humanity that converged on the Bronx yesterday. As it was, the police were caught completely by surprise, as was everybody else.

No world series crowd has ever been as big as this one was, because it is not permitted to sell standing rom for world series games. Something about this particular double-header set the customers afire as they have not been steamed up in years. Maybe the tough spot has really been passed.

Around the Ring . . .

By Bill McCormick.

FERRETING about in the murky by-ways and crevices of the fight game trying to pry loose the innermost secrets of the devious racket for the edification of my reading public (one proof-reader, myself and three slap-happy pugs), has offered little opportunity of forming sincere friendships.

In the good book of Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls, the gentlemen with whom our ignorance so often forces us to differ, friendship is defined as "mutual liking, esteem or regard, cherished by kindred minds . . ." That's what Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls say, but once again we must differ somewhat.

In the bright lexicon of Ye Olde Ringworme and myself, friendship consists not only of "mutual liking" but plenty of respect and admiration as well. During our association with the game of sock and block we have encountered many with whom we enjoyed a mutual liking, but those we could respect and admire have been as scarce as shower baths in the drought area.

McCarney Nominated.

Such a one we do number among our acquaintances in the bruise-bestowing industry, however, and begging the indulgence of Vanity Fair, we wish to nominate for the Hall of Fame one William Aloysius McCarney, the Grand Old Man of Maul. So far as mutual liking is concerned, in all our scurryings about amongst the clout contingent, we have yet to discover a figure as well-liked as McCarney, and he likes most everyone. A raconteur par excellence, an honest, outspoken soul with a wit as nimble as the fists of his heavyweight hope, Natie Brown, it is not in the man to make people dislike him.

So far as respect and admiration are concerned, I am going to tell a little tale out of school which probably will make William Aloysius very, very angry when he reads it.

It seems that way back in the fuzz-on-chin age of William Aloysius, he had occasion to dine out with a highly respectable daughter of a banker in a small Colorado mining town. All this happened in the days when mining towns were mining towns, and about midway of the tete-a-tete two burly, growling huskies who delved beneath the soil for their living entered an adjoining booth—or rather floated into it under the influence of 10-cents-a-shot alcoholic beverage.

Decides to Call a Halt.

Their language was as hard and raw as the liquor they had been drinking, greatly to the annoyance of young William Aloysius and his companion. Young McCarney decided to call a halt and approached the two roughnecks with his hat in his hand, very humbly.

"Gentlemen," he began in a very Caspar Milquetoast tone of voice, "Gentlemen, your unbecoming language is proving irksome no end to my fair companion, who is a lady of great refinement and breeding, unused to the vicissitudes of life among the miners. Please, gentlemen, kindly discontinue the profanity."

"?!&%!!!!!" or words to that effect, replied the miners disdainfully, casting aspersions on the parentage of young William Aloysius and his companion.

"Izzatso?" queried Young William Aloysius, swinging into action with both fists.

Is Out Three Months.

At the end of some three months, Young William Aloysius was released from the hospital—and the first thing he did was to start out looking for those two miners, who, fortunately for all concerned, had left town without bothering to deposit at the village postiffice a forwarding address.

Throughout all the confidences McCarney has exchanged over the gallons and gallons of beer we have consumed together, throughout numerous sessions of being held spellbound by his tall tales of days gone by, McCarney himself has never told me this tale. It remained for a mutual acquaintance of long standing to spill the beans the other night. And William Aloysius probably will give me what for for printing it.

That's one of the reasons I admire and respect him so.

Answers.

C. P.—Barney Ross will be facing a whole flock of "jinxes" when he defends his welterweight title against Jimmy McLarnin, September 6. In the first place, the last nine welter champions have lost their titles in their first defense of the crown. In the second place, no champion ever has successfully defended his title in the Madison Square Garden Long Island Bowl where they will fight. In the third place, no fighter ever has whipped Jimmy McLarnin in a return bout. Personally, however, I think Ross will overcome the jinxes, just as he overcame several in winning the title from McLarnin. I believe he could have beaten McLarnin much more decisively the first time and may knock him out September 6.

B. D.—A Mickey Finn, about which you have been reading in the Joe Palooka comic strip is either a powerful emetic or cathartic—sometimes both, when it is known as a "two-way Mickey Finn." Its use originated in honkey-tonks and speakeasies, where it was slipped in the drinks of noisy customers to get rid of them. Croton oil usually forms the principal ingredient. A firm in Philadelphia has built up quite a business manufacturing these knockout drops.

Cronin Hints Benson Will Be Assigned Relief Job Shortly.

By Frank H. Young.

SCRIBES and fans may laugh at the idea of a diamonder carrying around a mattress on his chin, especially during this hot weather, but Allen Benson, the newest Nat pitcher, who has been the butt of much kidding in this respect, did not cause any loud guffaws yesterday with his flinging when he worked against his mates in pregame practice.

Showing a rhythmic movement, fine control, a lot of speed, a good curve and a deceptive change of pace, Benson had all of his mates praising him as a good prospect after his workout. Manager Cronin joined in the chorus. "He's got a durned good chance of making the grade," was the San Francisco Keed's comment, "and you're likely to see him relieving one of these days soon."

Cronin, however, intimated he is not planning to do any experimenting until he gets a line on what chance to finish fourth and get a little in the money. "We've still got a chance to fish fourth ad get a little slice of that World's Series melon," he opined, "and, until I'm sure that we haven't, I'm going to stand pat with all of

Story of Those Gay Nineties Is Vastly Altered

By Nelson B. Bell.

The expurgated edition of Mae West's new film, which started out as "It Ain't No Sin," and wound up eventually as "Belle of the Nineties," has reached New York for resubmission to the State Board of Censors.

After the original print submitted was sent back to the Coast under fire, several sequences have been altered and a marriage has been added. The clean-up version has now received the official O. K. of Joe Breen, the one-man Hollywood censorship board for the Will H. Hays organization.

It would be interesting to know whether Manny Cohen, in charge of Paramount production, still contends that the principal item that Miss West purveys is comedy, not sex.

As we remarked on a remote previous occasion when Mr. Cohen first made this statement, if Mae doesn't purvey sex, what she reveals on the screen will do until some exponent of sex comes along!

A complete sellout is predicted for the midnight benefit performance to be given tonight in the Howard Theater for the financing of the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Sixty-five of the country's foremost colored artists, including Bill Robinson, the world's greatest tap dancer—who has probably played more benefits than anybody else on the stage of his age—and voluntary contributors from the downtown theaters will take part in the revue which has been given the name of "Harlem Mania." The curtain will rise at 12:15 a. m., and the show will run from then on—probably long enough to make breakfast a welcome suggestion directly the final curtain falls.

Hold Annual Conclave.

John J. Payette, general manager of the Warner Brothers' interests in the Washington territory, called the annual meeting of all managers under his supervision to order yesterday in his offices in the Earle Theater Building. These managers were assembled from the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and, of course, the District of Columbia.

The meeting was addressed by Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner theaters; I. J. Hoffman, Eastern division supervisor, and Robert Smeltzer, Eastern division manager of the Warner Brothers film exchanges.

Plans for the coming season were discussed in open session and Mr. Smeltzer gave a comprehensive outline of the film product that will be available from the Warner Brothers and First National studios in the next two months.

Outing on Severn.

Today, the managers are guests of General Manager Payette at the Anchorage on the Severn River near Annapolis. No business will be discussed on this excursion planned solely for fun. In fact, a penalty will be collected from anyone caught talking shop. Baseball, swimming, boating and the good, old, American sport of eating will be major items on the day's program.

It is keenly regretted that Wednesday's official duties render it impossible for this desk to accept Johnny Payette's invitation to be among those present. Our baseball is a little rusty and in the water we have a tough time trying to keep from drowning, but, boy, can we eat!

That very elegant soiree tossed by Mr. and Mrs. Al Trahan (Lady Yukona Cameron) in Suite 500-G, Wardman Park, Monday night was productive of all the "concord of sweet sound" we had anticipated and no less of the sparkling wit. Al and Lady Yukona presided at the piano, from time to time; Yascha Bunchuk played a group of cello solos, as only he can; Mrs. Trahan sang a group of numbers and confessed to more stage fright than she ever feels on the stage; Al sang twice, displaying a quality of barytone voice that few suspect him of possessing, and the same string quartet that plays on the stage of the Fox—Max Zinder, Henri Sokolov, Ben Sosner and Yascha Bunchuk—played a group of numbers, including that masterpiece of sentiment, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," and concluding with Tschaikowski's "Andante Cantabile," with "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" sandwiched in between somewhere.

John Charles Thomas, eminent barytone, expected as an honored guest, in an endeavor to sail the treacherous Chesapeake up from Oxford, Md., or some such place, fell victim to engine trouble and was forced to limp into the nearest dry-dock for repairs. As this was written Tuesday evening he was expected for a return engagement of the party last night.

To Grab the Graf.

Director Clarence Brown and Mrs. Brown, the former Alice Joyce, screen star, evidently believe in giving their vacation trips a touch of novelty. They are going to Europe on the Graf Zeppelin.

Brown, an airman of note himself, is reported from the West Coast to have completed arrangements to board the Zeppelin at Pernambuco, Brazil, on its next arrival from Friedrichshafen, Germany. To the best of other memories than mine own, no other film notable ever has adopted this means of travel.

The only thing that is occasioning the prospective air travelers some concern is the probable date of completion of "Chained," in which Brown is directing Clark Gable.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the chorus of the all-Washington revue, "Going Native," will be given another respite from the grind of constant rehearsing, when Director Gene Ford will take them out to the Crystal Pool at Glen Echo for a swim. Rehearsals have reached the intensive stage where they are being conducted almost completely around the clock, either on the stage of Loew's Fox early in the morning, or on the stage of the National late into the night. Thursday will be a free day to give the cast and chorus a chance to "air out," but Friday will be brutal. A full-dress rehearsal is called for 6:30 Friday morning, to be followed by the four regular performances on the stage. The 6:30 a. m. idea is not a bad one from the viewpoint of the public. Last year, the final rehearsal ran 'way past the opening hour of the theater and the first complete performance was not over until the middle of the afternoon.

Those Dances Few Can Do.

The helpful Miss Ruth Barnard relays interesting information from Raul Reyes, Cuban dancer, and his sister, Eva, starring in the floor show on the Shoreham Terrace this week, concerning the two dances most popular in America at the moment—the Carioca and the rhumba.

Raul explains that in the rhumba is blended the spirit of war, love and adoration of the gods. It was brought to Cuba by a Negro slave tribe in the eighteenth century and for many years was not allowed in the higher class homes of the island. Even yet, there are two rhumbas in Havana—one for ballroom dancing; the other for the stage. The stage rhumba embodies the violent gyrations and symbolic caricatures of the African slaves.

The Carioca, Raul says, originated in Hollywood. It is adapted from the "Maxixa" dance of Brazil, which was introduced to American ballroom dancers, along with the tango, at about the time the country became "modern dance" conscious, just before the Great War. The movements of the dance are borrowed from the Cariocans, who live in a certain section of Brazil. Thus in South America it is called the "Carioca Maxixa," meaning the maxixa of the Cariocans.

So now you know.

Be-Your-Age Note.

Would anyone care to join me in a nice, snappy Virginia Reel?

Coming to Friday's Screens

Straight From the Studios

Jackie Coogan, Collegiate, Back in Films in Earnest; Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., Plans Chinese Spectacle; Late News Hot From West Coast.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Aug. 14.—Jackie Coogan is back in pictures. And this time there are to be no monkeyshines about it, unless something unforeseen develops, and we can't believe Jackie is quite that ill-fated. Anyway, he's to work in a vacation-time film, interpreting a brightly featured, motivating character in "The Code of the West," by Zane Grey.

BETTE DAVIS.

Others in the picture will be Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick and Kent Taylor.

Coogan had one trial at pictures during his week-end holidays from Santa Clara University last spring. He was to make a series of short-reelers, but the project went to pieces after one was produced. The last feature he appeared in was "Huckleberry Finn."

Doug Plans China Test.

Foremost in Douglas Fairbank's mind when he returns here will be his Chinese story, according to best reports. Doug still has this particular adventure in mind as a future production, albeit he is anxious first of all to see how "The Private Life of Don Juan," the film he made abroad, will be received.

Doug has considered the Chinese production more than 15 months. Actually carrying it out will depend on China political conditions. Halts and delays would pile up terrific costs because the picture would be done on a magnificent scale.

Consequently the line of Doug's friends and advisers probably will form on the right, seeking to have him make a picture in Hollywood instead, and that also is within the realm of possibility.

Fairbanks is scheduled to arrive in Hollywood by plane from New York next Friday or Saturday.

Bette Davis Reformed.

Now that she has finished playing one of the most detestable of all fictional characters in "Of Human Bondage," Bette Davis will have a future of real sympathy. A best seller has been purchased by Warner's with her in mind. It is called "North Shore," and deals with a Kentucky horsewoman who goes to Long Island and is there much aggrieved by the snobbish attitude of the wealthy.

The story was written by Wallace Irwin, and Miss Davis' character will have a distinct resemblance to those she enacted in "Cabin on the Cotton" (film) and in "The Solid South" on the stage. Probably most of the resemblance will be in Bette's accent.

In "Border Town," starring Paul Muni, which will precede "North Shore," Bette will play a hard-boiled character, but not an unsympathetic one. A woman with a shady past, she is rescued by Muni.

Too Pugilistic For Comfort

The "Great Expectations" set was the scene of a rousing fight yesterday. Too much realism, according to all reports. Hull got a gash across his jaw and Barraud a badly bruised jaw. Both participants had to be taken to a hospital for a while, but no serious damage.

The fight was, of course, for screen purposes.

German Trade Slump Shown

Figures Reveal Gain in Reich Imports Over Export Totals.

Berlin, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—Evidence of the growing seriousness of Germany's problems in foreign trade was furnished today by the publication of statistics covering the first months of 1934.

Imports during that period increased 10 per cent, while exports decreased 12 per cent, compared to the corresponding period of 1933.

This resulted in an import surplus of 216,000,000 marks, compared with an export surplus of 291,000,000 marks for the January-June 30 period last year.

The sharp drop in exports was credited mainly to "decreased purchases by American countries." Sales to the United States during April and June were reported to have been off fully 35 per cent, compared with last year.

The German import surplus with America was given as 334,700,000 marks, compared with last year's 244,300,000.

An 80 per cent decrease in sales to Russia also figured in the drop in total export figures. The Russians were credited with having contributed 134,000,000 marks to the reduction in foreign trade.

Planes Hunt 'Chute Jumper

Searchers Find No Trace of Man Forced From Ship in Storm.

Bradford, Pa., Aug. 14 (A.P.).—The mystery of an object seen falling from the clouds during a heavy storm, believed by witnesses to have been an aviator descending in a parachute, spurred a search today through the hills and woodlands of the upper Alleghenies.

Airplanes soared over mountain ridges and valleys while rural residents hunted on foot in the belief that a pilot had been forced to desert his plane and was injured or became lost in making the perilous descent.

Airmen reported they could find no trace of a plane or flyer but they planned to resume the hunt as weather conditions improve. Check of other airports showed no planes were missing.

Many residents reported sighting the object in the storm, although fog made visibility dim.

Mrs. C. B. Hazard, who lives at Custer City, several miles from this oil-producing center, reported she distinctly saw through field glasses the figure of a man hanging to a parachute, floating above the forest. Many others supported her story and telephoned the information to the Bradford Airport and newspaper offices.

Nelson Hunted In California

Law Forces Marshaled for Dillinger's Aid in Far West.

Department of Justice agents disclosed that George (Baby Face) Nelson, America's new public enemy No. 1, may be in or headed for southern California.

They enrolled the aid of State, county and city officers and promised Nelson, who succeeded his chief, John Dillinger, as the most sought outlaw of the Nation, a "warm" reception here.

"Shoot to kill!" was the order issued to all officers.

Meanwhile Paramount film studios turned over to Federal authorities a letter purportedly written by the wife of Harry Pierpont, another Dillinger bad man who is under sentence of death, which included an intimation of an impending escape. Pierpont is in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

The letter, offering to sell the life story of Pierpont to the studio, said "he (Pierpont) will be in a position soon to dicker with you himself."

"Baby Face" Nelson, Federal authorities said, robbed a Salt Lake filling station last Sunday, and is headed toward Los Angeles or Arizona.

Beebe Snares Live Wonders in Ocean Depths

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 14 (A.P.).—A considerable number of black and red deep sea fish with jaw-breaking technical names were brought back alive today by Dr. William Beebe, American scientist, after a day of fishing half a mile below the surface eight miles off Nonsuch Island.

No new specimen was pulled up in the deep sea nets, but some were taken alive for the first time.

The fish were put in ice water as soon as they were on board the scientist's boat in the hope they could be kept alive long enough for scientific examination, although it was said to be impossible for any of them to live more than 24 hours.

Some bright red shrimps which were brought up from depths of 300 to 400 fathoms were described as quite unusual specimens. After trawling for three hours, Dr. Beebe attempted to fish over the side but with little success. The scientist expressed himself as pleased with his work and made plans to dive half a mile or more tomorrow if the weather permits.

Diving Plane Furrows Earth

Crashing to the ground in a nosedive, the racing plane of Gordon Israel, of St. Louis, plowed a furrow in the earth. Israel, who was attempting to land at 100 miles an hour after winning a feature race in an air meet at Omaha, where the accident occurred, was only slightly hurt.

He'd Let Snake Bite Again

Hill Billy Evangelist, However, Says Over Radio God Would Have to Order Him to Submit to Reptile's Poison.

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 14 (U.P.)—Albert Teester, hill billy evangelist, told a radio audience tonight just how it feels to be bitten by a rattlesnake in a demonstration of faith in God as a healer.

"I would do it again if God told me to," Teester said in a special broadcast over a Nation-wide network from a local station.

He said he was stricken blind 3 minutes after the snake bit him. The snake, Teester said, was brought to church by some doubters of his faith in the creed that "the faithful are immune to death."

"While I was praying on my knees God told me to pick up the snake," the 39-year-old evangelist said. "I opened the box and looked at him and he was watching me. I reached into the box and caught him with my right hand in the middle of his body.

Bit Between Fingers.

"I held him out in front of the congregation so they could see him. The snake turned slowly and bit me between the fingers. I put him back in the box. He got out of the box and ran toward the door.

"I went to the door, picked him up again, and he bit me again at the same place. He wouldn't turn loose this time. I went back to the box, pulled him loose and put him back in the box. I fastened the box this time. God then told me to say a few words to the congregation.

"I did. There were some doubters there. Just about that time I began getting sick. After I started toward a neighbor's house I went blind and for some time I could not see. Some women members of the congregation led me the rest of the way. Some wanted me to go to a hospital, but I refused. Instead, I asked all of them to pray for me.

"The snake's poison hit my teeth next and locked my jaws. I was very sick that night and the next day. The poison nauseated me."

Better in Three Days.

Last Wednesday, three days after the demonstration, Teester said, he felt so much better that he went to his own home. By Sunday he was so improved that he walked 9 miles and preached two sermons.

"Some persons have said that I would pick up another rattlesnake," Teester said. "I haven't said so. I picked up this one because God told me to, but I wouldn't pick up another for all the money in the world unless God told me to. I would if He told me to."

While here as the radio station's guest, Teester received telegrams and telephone calls from Washington, Akron, Ohio, and other places offering him opportunities to appear on the stage.

After his talk he left for his home in the great Smoky Mountains of western North Carolina, near a village called Erastus.

Klan Prepares Fight on Reds

Forces Are Mobilized at Atlanta for War on Radicals.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The fiery cross burned on Stone Mountain again tonight.

The Ku Klux Klan was rededicated, on the spot where it was founded on Thanksgiving night, 1915, to the principles of "100 per cent Americanism" as opposed to "radical alienism."

The ceremonies tonight climaxed the first day's activities of the seventh klonvokation of the Klan, attended by 620 delegates from 28 States.

Mobilization of the Klan, which has been comparatively inactive for the last few years, is being undertaken to combat what leaders term "the menace of communism."

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, just re-elected to a four-year term as imperial wizard, presided at the ceremony held on the side of barren Stone Mountain—a huge mountain of solid rock.

"The Klan has not disbanded," Chief of Staff M. O. Dunning said. "We have been inactive because there was no need for action. Now there is a need and we're going into action with one thought—to eliminate radical alienism.

"No religious or racial prejudice will be connected with our new program. In fact, we welcome the cooperation of all Americans, Jews and Catholics included, in this fight."

Stocks Decline In Extremely Dull Session

Loss Totals Five-tenths as Trading Falls to Only 531,300 Shares.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Speculative ardor for stock and commodities cooled off further today as markets revised their ideas of inflation prospects.

One of the broadest rallies in bond prices in months lent emphasis to the shift in sentiment away from inflation and toward a more conservative apprisal of the Administration's monetary policies.

The chief impetus for the day's movements in financial markets apparently came from announcement that arrangement had been made for export of a moderate amount of gold from New York as result of the decline in the dollar the past few days.

Additional Silver.

Assurance from Treasury quarters that additional silver currency would be issued only on the basis of the cost of the metal also was interpreted as favorable to the "sound money" forces.

The stock market settled a little lower as it reverted to extreme dullness after its advance yesterday. Selling in metal and other inflation favorites had an unsettling affect upon the general market but net changes on the average were small.

Transfers dwindled to 531,300 shares compared with 811,200 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks dipped five-tenths of a point, to 72.3.

Among nonferrous metal shares, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, U. S. Smelting, Howe Sound, McIntyre and Dome were fractionally to 2 points lower at the close.

First of Losers.

Armour of Illinois preferred, Wilson preferred, U. S. Rubber, Cuban American Sugar preferred, Continental Oil, California Packing and Montgomery Ward yielded fractions to more than a point of their gains of the preceding session. American Telephone reacted nearly 2 points.

Scattered strong spots included Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, which advanced nearly 2 points to a new 1934 peak; Interborough Rapid Transit, up more than a point; Coca Cola up 1½, and Manhattan Modified Guaranteed up 2. New York City Traction issues were unusually active.

The rally in the bond market, pivoting around the further comeback of Treasury issues, bolstered Wall Street's hopes for autumn business recovery. Weakness of the bond market had been one of the most potent causes of gloom.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Uncertainty of Business Outlook and Threat of Higher Cost of Living Make Problem of Housing Commission More Difficult.

By Ralph West Robey.

In the last few days an increasing amount of news about the new housing plan of the Administration has been appearing. Whether it marks the start of the real campaign to make this scheme into a great recovery measure, however, is open to question. The character of the news has not been such as to create any large amount of public interest. It seems probable, therefore, that the opening of the real campaign has been delayed beyond the formerly rumored date or perhaps ruled out completely. For, we were told, it will be recalled, that the campaign would be equal to the old Liberty Loan drives. It was supposed to start about the middle of this month.

Such news as we have had to date has been neither interesting nor spectacular. Offhand, four stories stand out. One was that millions upon millions of the homes in this country need repairs. Another was that the New York banks are willing to cooperate in the plan and are so notifying their correspondent banks. A third was that the office of the Comptroller of the Currency has notified bank examiners to consider all loans made under the plan as good. And the last was the announcement of regional directors. In addition to this have been various minor items, such as the A. F. of L. thinking the scheme is sound and various industrialists, who will benefit, expressing the view that everyone should cooperate.

Conditions Not Suitable for Such Stories Being Effective.

Under some conditions such stories as these might be effective in whipping up enthusiasm. At present they fall flat because they fail to touch the basic consideration. This is the question of where one is to get the money to pay back any loans that he may obtain for the purpose of making repairs on his home. If the outlook were one of constantly improving business from here on, this would not be such an important problem. A home owner would have the confidence that comes from not only feeling sure of his job, but as well from believing that his wage will give him a surplus over bare living expenses.

Now a potential borrower can not count with certainty upon either of these favorable elements. On one side he sees evidence of doubts about the future. Business men are hesitant about making plans. They are beginning to express open skepticism of even the ultimate success of the New Deal as a recovery program. In such circumstances the part of wisdom is to delay for at least a little longer the making of needed repairs. When business picks up again there will be plenty of time to get such loans.

Even With a Job Is No Assurance of a Surplus

On the other side the potential borrower sees prices advancing week by week and hears of still higher living costs to come. The promised higher costs, too, are not for commodities which he can get along without. They are prices for necessities. Even granting he holds his job, therefore, there still remains the question of how much he possibly can have left over after he meets his living expenses for carrying a loan from a bank. Again it is the part of wisdom to hold back until the outlook clarifies a bit.

If the housing commission attempts to overcome these considerations it will have a difficult task on its hands. This is doubly so since they are of just as much importance to banks in the making of loans as they are to potential borrowers. It would be well, therefore, to forget the housing program as a great recovery measure and to treat it as a reform step the working out of which will take a long period. If this is not done, the Administration almost surely will have another failure on its hands. It could get some millions of loans made, of course, but not enough to have any noticeable effect upon recovery.

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 14 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Very little business was closed in the Boston wool market. An occasional house handling woolen wool received a little encouragement from buyers. Worsted manufacturers continued to look at greasy combing wool. Definite commitments, however, were lacking from most buyers in either branch of the industry.

Bond Market Is Advanced Four-tenths

Government List Is Firm; Transfers Are Reduced to $12,988,000.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The bond market advanced over a broad front today and recently depressed carrier and utility issues all but wiped out the losses of the past three sessions. The Government list was firm throughout the day.

Transfers approximated $12,988,000 par value compared with $17,186,000 on Monday. Standard Statistics Co. average of 60 domestic corporate loans gained four-tenths of a point to 82.9. The turnover in Governments was $5,670,000 against $9,810,000.

Brokers reported the sudden reversal in sentiment to be due partly to the technical condition of the market after three sessions of constantly dipping values, but said they were of the opinion that the action of the Federal Reserve Bank in releasing gold for export to Paris, thereby carrying out the promise of the Treasury Department to allow the free international flow of gold, was a powerful stimulant to the market.

Treasury bonds had a prominent part in the upward movement and the Government guaranteed issues, a particularly weak spot in the market for several days, came back into favor with Federal Farm Mortgage 3¾s gaining nearly ⅝ of a point to finish close to 100½.

Advances of five thirty-seconds to twenty thirty-seconds were well scattered throughout the various Treasury issues and Libertys.

List of Gainers.

Corporate issues making the best gains included Baltimore & Ohio rg. 6s, up 3 points at 80½; C. & O. 4½s of '95, up 2¼ at 102¼; New York Central gen. 3½s, up 2½ at 89½, and Union Pacific 4½s, up 2½ at 99¾. Other loans advancing to 2 or more included some obligations of the Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific, Burlington, Chicago & Western Indiana, Cleveland Union Terminal, Delaware & Hudson, Detroit Edison, Erie, B. F. Goodrich, Great Northern, Inland Steel, Interboro Rapid Transit, International Telephone, Kansas City Southern, Louisville & Nashville, New England Gas & Electric, Pathe Exchange, Pennsylvania, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron, Pure Oil, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Texas & Pacific, Virginia Railway, Wabash, Western Maryland and Western Union. American Telephone issues improved fractionally.

Curb's Prices Finish Lower Under Selling

Metals, Utilities, Alcohols Decline; Sales Volume, 136,000 Shares.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Prices finished moderately lower after a quiet curb market session today. Selling, which began in metals, spread to utilities, alcohols and other parts of the list. Some specialties improved against the main trend.

The list was narrow and relatively steady in the forenoon. Late irregularity gave way to a lower trend in the last hour, but some support appeared just before the close.

Losses of fractions to around a point occurred in American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Pioneer Gold, Newmont, Lake Shore, Hudson Bay Mining, Glen Alden Coal, Standard Oil of Ohio and Swift & Co.

Swift Internacional, a recent firm spot, stepped into slightly higher ground on an active turnover. Aluminum Co. of America and Commonwealth Edison finished up 1 and 2 points, respectively.

Transfers approximated 136,000 shares, compared with 172,000 the day before.

Movements of Farm Products Climb in First Half of August

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Economics.)

Price movement of farm products continued mainly upward the first half of August. Gains were sharp and frequently followed by equally sharp setbacks of more favorable conditions in some producing sections. Cotton and grain sagged considerably from the season's top prices, but underlying situation continued strong.

Hogs reached a top of $5.50 in Chicago. Hog and lamb markets and dressed meats have made good recovery from the period of hot weather dullness and excessive supplies, but feeders' position is difficult because of shortage and rising cost of feeds. Hides and wool continue weak and unsettled near the lowest prices of the year. Butter sells near the year's top prices. Cheese markets advanced and eggs made further gains, selling about 5 cents above the season's lowest. Prices of fruits and vegetables showed more losses than gains. Potato, onion and apple markets were irregular, tending downward in markets where supplies were increasing.

Cotton Trend Upward.

Prices of spot cotton continued to advance during the first half of August, passing the 13-cent average and exceeding the level of a year ago by more than 4 cents a pound.

Factors contributing to the rise in prices were the continued poor crop prospects as indicated by the Government forecast of the smallest crop since 1921, somewhat unfavorable growing conditions, increased activity in cotton and cotton cloth markets, and the nationalization of silver along with the rise in the prices of securities and of some other commodities.

Unfavorable features were reports of smaller world consumption of American cotton in the United States and in foreign countries, along with some decrease in purchases of finished cotton goods attributed to lessened purchasing power of consumers, due to the drought.

Grain Markets Higher.

Domestic cash wheat markets advanced along with futures the first half of August, under a generally good demand from millers and elevator interests. Marketings of spring wheat increased. Durum wheat did not follow the full advance of the bread grain. Mills have purchased some Canadian durum.

Marketings of winter wheat fell off sharply. Offerings, however, were about sufficient for current trade needs, since milling inquiry slackened with some falling off in flour trade. Quality of the season's marketings to date remains high. Inquiry for soft red winter was less active than that for other classes. Foreign markets strengthened materially, influenced by unfavorable new crop prospects.

Corn markets were independently firm, reflecting continued deterioration as a result of the severe and widespread drought throughout most of the corn belt. Despite prospects for the shortest crop since 1901, marketings of corn continued relatively heavy. These heavy arrivals apparently represented marketings of sealed corn, the release of which has been made possible by the advancing market. Oats markets advanced sharply along with corn, but demand was not urgent, despite only moderate offerings. Barley markets were firm and sharply higher.

Feed Markets Advance.

Feed markets continued to advance the first half of August. Principal gains were in cottonseed meal and linseed meal. Cottonseed meal of 43 per cent protein sold about $5 per ton higher than the week before in the Central Western and Southwestern markets.

Linseed meal prices followed the advance in cottonseed meal. Gluten feed gained about $1 and hominy feed $2, influenced by continued active demand and high corn prices. Wheat feeds strengthened, but inquiry was less urgent. Purchases were principally for immediate needs. Offerings were moderate, and production remained about the same as during recent weeks.

Flour middlings and reddog were independently firm with a good trade reported with Southeastern sections. Alfalfa meal was firm, reflecting the strength in the alfalfa hay market. Beet pulp was quite firm, but very little was available except on the Pacific Coast. Distillers' grains strengthened with other feeds.

Receipts of all species of live stock were materially larger at eleven Midwestern markets during the second full week of August. Cattle showed greatest gains. Chicago cattle market was more or less erratic without much change, being followed by an advance and then a further decline. Most of the fed steers and yearlings sold within a range of $6 to $8.50. Cows receipts were unexpectedly short. Vealers were mostly 50 cents higher.

Chicago hog top of $5.50 was highest since last October and within 15 cents of the highest price in nearly 3 years. Fat lamb and yearling prices were sharply higher, with advances of fully 75 cents for the second week of August, while sheep and feeding lamb values were 25 cents or more higher.

Reductions in asking prices of Western-grown wools, which became effective in early August, have so far had little apparent effect on the volume of sales which have increased to only a very slight extent.

Manufacturers displayed little interest in Ohio and similar wools. A small quantity of short combing 64's and finer Midwestern fleece wool was sold at around 68 cents, scoured basis. Other grades were very quiet at prices unchanged since the declines early in the month. Unsorted lines of Texas kid mohair were sold within the range of 47-50 cents.

Wheat Values Plunge Down In Late Trading

Prices Close 1½ to 2¼ Cents Below Previous Figures; Corn, Oats Off.

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—Lively tumbles in prices late today plunged wheat down 3½ cents a bushel below earlier high points, and forced into execution many stop-loss orders.

Brisk selling, which started from Eastern sources just before the close, revealed that for at least the time being wheat values were without any aggressive support.

Uncertainty over the Washington Administration's crop control plans was in some quarters looked upon as an unsettling influence.

Wheat Closes Weak.

Wheat closed weak at almost the day's bottom quotations, 1½@2¼ cents under yesterday's finish, corn ⅛@⅜ down, oats ¼ off to ¼ up, and provisions showing 20 cents to 50 cents gain.

A disturbing factor in regard to wheat was that announcements of lifting of German import duries on grains were more or less nullified by retention of a system of permits. In addition, inflation talk appeared to have lost effect at present as a bullish influence relative to domestic cereals.

Earlier, however, wheat temporarily tended upward here, responsive to higher prices at Liverpool and Rotterdam today than had been expected.

Liverpool dispatches said strength of the Liverpool wheat market was due to unfavorable crop advices both from Russia and Canada. It was asserted that only half a crop of wheat would be produced this season in the Ukraine region of Russia.

Prospects Deteriorating.

Canadian wheat prospects were reported as deteriorating daily, the time having passed when rains would be of any material benefit.

Helping transient rallies of wheat and other grains, including oats, was comparative strength shown by the corn market, but in the end wheat weakness dominated corn. It was asserted damage to corn crops was continuing over wide areas.

Estimates of corn yield in Nebraska put the 1934 total at only 51,000,000 bushels, compared with 234,000,000 harvested in 1933.

Provisions rose sharply with hog values. Lard jumped to a new high-price record for the season and since 1931.

Perpetual Building Reports Record Gains

Reflecting one of the largest increases in the history of the organization, the Perpetual Building Association yesterday announced a gain of over $2,700,000 in total assets for the interest period ending July 20.

Edward C. Baltz, association secretary, stated that marked activity in building and loan affairs augurs well for the public's favorable reaction to the Administration's housing plans.

Ottawa, Aug. 14 (AP).—Harvesting is well advanced in Manitoba and in southern Saskatchewan, and is under way in central Saskatchewan and in the southern half of Alberta, said a crop report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The report told of some good rains in the prairie provinces during the past week.

224 Companies Report Net of $214,676,096

Total Is 37 Per Cent Gain Over Same Period Last Year.

New York Aug. 14.—An increase of 37 per cent in the earnings of 224 corporations during the second quarter as compared with the corresponding period of 1933 is revealed by a compilation prepared by the Investment Research Department of Eastman, Dillon & Co.

Aggregate net income of these companies for the three months ended June 30 was $214,676,096 contrasted with $156,678,811 for the second quarter last year, when recovery was just getting under way.

"There is sufficient evidence," says the firm in its analysis of the earnings reports, "to indicate with considerable authority that the improvement has been primarily in the heavier industries supplying capital goods in contrast to the poorer showing made by the industries more closely related to the consumer."

Substantial Improvement.

Groups which showed substantial improvement in earning power included the chemical and oil industries, automobile accessories, electrical equipment, railroad equipment and machinery manufacturers, railroads, mining and metal producers and steel companies.

Electrical equipment companies recorded the largest percentage gain for the period—1,200 per cent—with aggregate net earnings of $6,892,670 against $529,794 in the second quarter last year.

The firm points out that the chemical and oil groups continued the outstanding improvement shown in the first quarter. This was regarded as particularly interesting because the increase in earnings was maintained at a rate comparable to that in the first three months of the year, reflecting considerable stability.

In contrast with the favorable showing of certain groups, poorer comparisons were reported by automobile, finance, food and drugs, household products, office equipment, retail trade, textile and utility companies.

The earnings of the 224 companies for the second quarter, as compared with the corresponding period last year, grouped as to industries, follow:

Walt Mason, Himself

The Incumbrance.

I sigh for poor old Jasper Jones, for whom this life has feeble charms; he once had ample store of bones, with which he bought his children farms. His children fell upon his breast, and told him just how high he stacked; they boosted him with mighty zest and whooped until their voices cracked. It was arranged that he would dwell with Joe a while, and then with Jim; and then he'd go to daughter Nell, where glowing lamps would welcome him. He would retire from active life, agreed his sons, those honest men, since he had lost his tollworn wife and was too old to wed again. He thought he'd have a grand old time, thus sampling divers bills of fare, with his stout kids, now in their prime, whom he had reared with tender care. He went to stay a while with Joe, and found existence far from gay; the wife and children let him know that he was always in the way. And Joseph wore a somber frown, upon the map that used to smirk, and often called the old man down for eating when he didn't work. He went to stay a while with Jim, and hoped to find a welcome warm; but James was sullen, dour and grim, inclined to rant around and storm. It was not fair, he said, that he should have this burden on his back; there was the poorhouse down the lea—why not go there with staff and pack? Dad went to stay a while with Nell, and she declined to let him in; she had a dreary tale to tell of hungry kids and assets thin. The children have their handsome homes, and Jasper Jones can only weep; along the dismal pike he roams, and hunts a barn in which to sleep.

Austria Fears New Uprising By Nazi Group

Asks 3 Powers to Renew Approval of Larger Armed Force.

London, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Owing to rising fears of another Nazi uprising, Austria today sent a note to Great Britain, France and Italy requesting renewal of the agreement permitting Austria to maintain a special auxiliary armed force of 8,000 troops beyond the 20,000 men in her regular army.

The United Press learned authoritatively that the former allied powers are considering the request, and an early favorable reply was expected.

Consent by these three major powers would be regarded widely as a gesture from them of support of Austrian independence, and particularly against an "artschluss," or merger with Germany through Nazi control of the Vienna government.

Early Approval Sought.

Permission for Austria to retain her auxiliaries expires November 6, and the fact Austria already has sought renewal is viewed as significant, as she had until November to propose this extension.

Last year the same request was motivated by the necessity "of maintaining order and suppressing any acts of terrorism."

Meanwhile, dispatches from the United Press Bureau in Vienna indicated Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor of Austria, will go to Paris shortly to seek French support of the army program. He has been in Rome for several days conferring with Premier Benito Mussolini.

New Revolt Rumored.

Rumors of another Nazi revolt were given credence in London diplomatic quarters. It is known that the putsch of July 25 was premature and ill-planned. It had only a fraction of the full Nazi strength, which is reliably reported to be tremendous in Austria.

Hangings of men convicted of treason in connection with the putsch last month are keeping the Nazis infuriated and eager for reprisals.

The St. Germain treaty allows Austria an army of 30,000 men. However, it actually totals at present a little more than 20,000. The number of gendarmes, customs officers, foresters and police must not exceed the number employed in similar capacities in 1913. Austria is permitted no naval or military air forces.

Attacker Evades Vigilantes Again

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 14 (AP).—An attacker who has caused a three-month reign of terror among women here had eluded police and 100 vigilantes tonight after his sixth attack.

The vigilantes, quickly assembled upon a secret and prearranged call by Police Chief Karl A. Weaner, surrounded a corn field into which the terrorist was thought to have fled after a pocket-knife attack on Miss Mabel Krotz, middle-aged spinster.

But the move was as fruitless as previous ones by police, and the vigilantes, headed by a "secret eight," organized to capture the stabber, believed to be a mentally deranged youth. Five other women have been knifed or clubbed, and one was shot. None was injured seriously.

Roxboro Pastor to Speak.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—The Rev. James Furman Herbert, pastor of the Methodist Church in Roxboro, N. C., who will be in Leesburg for the four-day sesquicentennial celebration of Methodism in America, will speak at the union open-air services Sunday night on the courthouse lawn.

Mary and Doug Will Confer, But Reconciliation Is Scouted

Actress Silent on Reason for Meeting Estranged Husband.

Hollywood, Aug. 14 (AP).—Mary Pickford, America's sweetheart, came home today from Chicago and disclosed she soon will confer with her estranged husband, Douglas Fairbanks.

But concerning the nature of the conference and the possibilities of a reconciliation with Fairbanks, the athletically inclined screen star from whom she separated more than a year ago, Mary Pickford would only say:

"I predict I shall have even less to say following the conference with Mr. Fairbanks than I have now."

Fairbanks is en route to New York from Europe on the Italian liner Rex. Miss Pickford said he will fly from New York to Denver to attend the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Fairbanks, who died recently in Los Angeles. Then he will proceed to Hollywood.

Hollywood was agog at news of the pending conference between the two members of the film capital's foremost family.

Many observers shook their heads sagely, however, and pointed to the fact an affidavit was filed in superior court here a few days ago stating Miss Pickford has obtained service by publication in her divorce suit against Fairbanks.

"Maybe it's a reconciliation," they commented, "but, on the other hand, such things as property settlements preceding divorce actions quite often are discussed at conferences."

Miss Pickford and Fairbanks have extensive property holdings here, much of which was acquired since their marriage in 1920.

The actress' divorce suit was filed before the names of Fairbanks and Lady Ashley were linked in a London romance.

Nephew of Vermont Jurist Feared Kidnaped

Brandon, Vt., Aug. 14 (AP).—Arthur Brislin, 13-year-old nephew of Chief Justice John S. Buttles, of the Vermont Supreme Court, was reported missing today. The youth disappeared after leaving his home late yesterday to play on Buttons Ledge outside the town.

Acting State's Attorney Milford K. Smith headed a posse in an extensive search for the boy throughout the day. Authorities feared he might have been trapped in the quicksand of "Long Swamp," a morass outside the village, or kidnaped.

Reich Warned Of Church Rift By U. S. Cleric

Leiper Hints of Split With American and English Denominations.

Berlin, Aug. 14 (AP).—The German situation is causing growing anxiety, especially in American and English Protestant circles, the Rev. Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, American church official, declared today.

Dr. Leiper, who is executive of the commission on relations with churches abroad of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has been in frequent conferences with both the government and the opposition groups in the controversy.

The American churchman has been seeking to make the government group understand the effect Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller's recent arbitrary measures are having on churches abroad which wish to maintain friendly relations with the German Evangelical Church.

"If a definite split occurs, such as has been foreshadowed by the Wuppertal proceedings," he said, referring to the recent defiant session of oppositionists, "then the American churches will have to reconsider their position."

Dr. Leiper is leaving this week-end for Fano, Denmark, where he will attend meetings of the Universal Christian Council for Life Work and the World Alliance for International Friendship Through Churches. The German situation is expected to be a dominant topic at this session, Dr. Leiper said.

Inventors' Congress Sees 'Push Button' Era in 15 Years

Cincinnati, Aug. 14 (AP).—An almost workless world within 15 years—perhaps it could be called the "push-button" era—is the inventors' dream.

All the work, says Albert Burns, of Oakland, Calif., will be done in an infinitesimal fraction of the time now required, machinery turning the trick.

Burns is the grand impresario of invention, president of the National Inventors' Congress meeting here. The congress has as its idea the finding of markets for those who conceive something to make man's burden lighter.

The trouble is, he mused, that most of them want a million dollars—or nothing—for their devices. Still others have ideas but no money to make them realities. That's why the convention will discuss, among other things, proposals to have the Federal Government finance invention and discovery.

Among inventions presented were a bathing suit made of wood shavings, an automobile device that combines automatic starter, automatic choke and supercharger, and a cow's tail holder to protect modern milkmaids from smacks from Bossy's tail.

On the practical side were mid-ocean artificial islands for airplane landing fields, printing presses, high-powered and clean grease guns, and such farm machinery as hay cutters.

It's mostly the depression's fault, complained Burns, as he mopped his brow, that the hotel ballroom, where the congress is being held, is a maze of gadgets and whirligigs. For the depression left people with time on their hands, and they turned to inventiveness, he pointed out.
